NEWS OF INTEREST PROM CHURCHES

The Rev. Dr. Charles H. Richards, of Madison. Wis., who recently accepted a call to the pastorate of the Central Congregational Church Philadelphia at his installation, read a paper on "Christian Thought and Service in Our Day," which is more than usually replete with valuable suggestions to ministers who are anxious that they may be successful in their calling. Among other things he said:

"A minister should not merely know the ology, he should know the world of his day, that he may be prepared to meet its peculiar needs. He should not merely be a student of God's revelation in the Bible, he should be equally a student of God's providence in human life, that he may adapt his efforts to the particular perils and opportunities of the time. He should bring his methods down to date, and not think be is fighting a real battle when he is only rehearsing again some finished combat of two centuries ago. If the enemy has changed his point of attack. he should know how to change front to meet him, without changing his base,

"I do not by any means hold that the main tenor of a minister's preaching should be apologetic, that he should be always defending the faith or attacking the various forms of error that are disputing its progress. I hold way to dispel darkness is just to let the light shine, and the most effective method of meeting the flaunting falsehoods of unbelief is by the clear, strong and earnest presentation of great truths. The main staple of preaching should be those great fundamental facts and spiritual vertices which have alread been referred to as the common possession of the Christian world. The great problems which disturb faith should be fairly met by religious teachers.

"It is the duty of ministers to frankly face

"It is the duty of ministers to frankly face and thoroughly understand these urgent doubts and fully equip bimself to meet them. He should be a student of science, net as a captious critic, but as one who means to be familiar with modern knowledge. Our knowledge is partial, one-sided and misleading if it does not include the facts and laws of the spiritual realm as well as the physical. The way to undermine materialism is to give men a vivid and distinct perception of the higher realm of reality which we call the spiritual realm. It is the inestimable privilege of the religious teacher to widen the thought of men, so that these paralyzing doubts shall be dissolved, and these critical questions of the age find a just solution.

But in adapting himself to the needs of the ply the intellectual and speculative quest at confront him, but must also preself to deal with the great practical questions of Christian service. Ours is pre-eminently an of Christian service. Ours is pre-eminently an age of marvelous gospel opportunity. The changes that have transformed the world in the last half century have opened the way for new advances of the gospel, such as have been possible in no other period of Christian history. Old methods of church work have had to give way to new ones better suited to the urgent needs of the new period.

"The minister of to-day must set himself to the task of securing resuits such as will glorify God and advance His kingdom, not by servile capying of the past, but by the bold and energetic use of modern methods. He must win men to Christ and seek to build them up into robust and symmetrical Christian character, rebust and symmetrical Christian character, letting the gospel light shine through them as intensely as possible over the community, the State, the nation and the world.

"It is while minds and characters are still plastic and easily molded that they should be prought under the power of the best Christian influences and be taught the great fundamental truths of life. They are the hope of the future, and will be the power in the Church in the next generation. They must be recruited into its generation. They must be recruited into its ranks and enlisted in its active service as early as possible. The Sunday school should not merely be for the young: it should be a great Bible school for the whole congregation—a piece where fathers and mothers and children should come together to study the word of life and learn about that law of God which is of equal authority over all members of the family.

"We must secure the interested attendance of children and youth in the church at its regu-lar services, more than has been in many places the custom. The service must be made helpful and attractive for them. The line of distinc-tion has been run too sharply between young people and old people in our churches, and they need to be brought together into the stronger unity of one great household of faith." and learn about that law of God whi

THE CHURCH AND LABOR

Power of One to Ameliorate the Condition of the Other.

CHICAGO, May 9 .- The concluding session of the Western Unitarian Conference was held this afternoon. An address by Henry D. Lloyd, of Chicago, attracted much attention. Mr. Lloyd referred to the great change wrought in the condition of the London dock laborers by the agitation led a few months ago by the Socialist, John Burns. He said that before the successful strike so ntelligently conducted by Burns, the dock laborers had been treated more like cattle than human beings. Such a thing as any consideration of their rights as individuals was held this afternoon. An address by consideration of their rights as individuals was never heard of. Burns' agitation showed to the English people and the civilized world their condition. It aroused public sympathy, and the church in the person of Carcinal Manning took hold of the matter and made the dock laborer a man. It was within the power and clearly within the was within the power and clearly within the province of the church to bring about the amelioration to the condition of the laboring men throughout the world. Church should move in the matter with the same intelligence shown by the Cardinal. Humanitarian interests should and would be the religion of the future. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Judge D. L. Shorey, Chi-cago, President; Rev. Mary A. Safford, Sioux City, Vice President; Rev. Effinger, Chicago, Secretary; Myron Leonard, Treas-

RAPID GROWTH OF THE EAST END Shown in an Interesting Paper Filed in the Traction Suits.

IMPORTANT MATTERS IN THE COURTS Judge White yesterday heard the arguments in the case of the Pittsburg Traction Company, the Ellsworth Street Passenger Railway Company, Central Transit Company and the Larimer Street Railway Company against the Duquesne Traction Company to restrain the latter from laying its railway on certain streets. The case opened by City Attorney Moreland reading on behalf of the city the reasons that operated on Councils in granting the privileges that have been given to the Duquesne Traction Company. Charles McKee, Esq., followed by reading an affidavit made by C. L. Magee, President of the Duquesne Traction Company. The paper reviewed the growth of Pitisburg in industry and population. It stated that the estimated cost of buildings erected as follows: In 1885 402 buildings were erected cost $872. 498; in 1886, 444 buildings, cost $941.617; in 1887, 609 buildings, cost $1,414.508; in 1888, 920 buildings, cost $1,921,475; in 1889, 1,128 buildings, cost $2,673,134, The City Assessor's office shows that in 1888 the taxable value of property was $33,012.505, records of the Building Inspector show the

and in 1889, $49,972,084. INCREASE OF BUSINESS. As to the business done by the Pittsburg and Citizens' Traction Companies, Mr. Mages con-tinued that in 1886 the railway on Fifth avenue carried 1,690,447 passengers, and in 1889 over 6,000,000 passengers. Its earnings in 1886 were about $300 per day, and recently it was as high as $1,400 a day. The Citizens' road in 1886 carried 5,490,372 passengers, and in 1889, over 9,000,000 passengers. Its earnings in 1886 were about $700 a day, and it now runs as high as $2,000 a day.

It was stated that the rapid growth of values and property in the East End was entirely due to the rapid transit street railways, and the facilities furnished by the two cable roads are now innadequate to accommodate the wants of the traveling public. Especially is this true of the Pittsburg Traction Company. The object of the construction of the Duquesne Traction Company was to meet the present and prospective wants of the people, and it will cover 22 miles of railway, while the other two cable lines have but seven miles within the same territorial limits.

Mr. Mages added that he believed the object of the suit to be to secure a monopoly to the Pittsburg Traction Company of the travel to the East End.

the East End.

Following the reading of the paper, George Shiras, Jr., opened the case for the Pittsburg Traction Company. He said that they have rights given them by the Legistature, which they had not forfeited nor given to the defendants. These rights were charters to use certain streets in Pittsburg for street railway purposes. The defendants now propose to eccupy these streets, a thing expressly forbidden by law. The defendanta, he said, must show a legislative grant or charter, and a proper and legal consent of the city Councils. These propositions, he contended, the defendants had not met.

TERMS THEM TRESPASSERS. He said he listened with pleasure to Mr. Magee's labored apology, in his affidavit, for taking from them rights and valuable fram chises, individual property by act of Assembly. and more, claiming certain grants by Councils to his company, which the plaintiffs have been unable to get. He contended that the defendants were trespassers, and should be enjoined from such interference.

D. T. Watson, Esq., came next, arguing in favor of the Duquesne Traction Company. He said the piaintiffs must show a property right that is liable to irreparable injury to entitle them to a hearing in a court of equity. If the plaintiffs cannot now get the consent of City Councils to lay its tracks upon these streets the defendants are not doing them any injury when they set the consent and so on with the when they get the consent and go on with the milding of their road. As to the Centra transit Company he said that the right given to the old company by the city authorities cannot now be urged as being given to this new company, with its enlarged powers. The city has refused to sanction this right, and they cannot lay a rail or move a stone till this right has been given. The Central Transit Company had such a right under the act of 1879, but never under the act of 1879, which gave it increased powers.

AS TO DISCRIMINATION. On the subject of unjust discrimination Mr Watson remarked that the Pittsburg Traction Company never had an ordinance from the city

Company never had an ordinance from the city of Pittsburg, and did the city discriminate against them?

Mr. John G. Johnston, of Philadelphia, closed the argument for the plaintiffs. He said that the object of the defendants was not to give the city rapid transit, but to steal certain streets. He argued that the law requires a general ordinance to determine if a certain street shall be occupied by a street railway, with the requisitie safeguards and regulations. The City Councils are not to determine who shall occupy the streets. The franchise of the corporation to occupy the streets must come from the State. If the officials at Harrisburg acted properly in granting the second franchise in these cases, it meant that 20 corporations could be chartered to occupy the same streets, and they come to City Councils, and bid and barter for the right to enter the streets. He maintained that the municipality's powers come from the Commonto enter the streets. He maintained that the municipality's powers come from the Commonwealth itself, and when a corporation has been chartered it alone has the power to construct a railroad over the street in question, and the power of the municipality is only to say if such streets shall or shall not be occupied. The statement that a franchise is worthless until the corporation gets the consent of Councils is correct, but that doesn't say that the plaintiffs have not the rights given them by their franchise.

It is, said Mr. Johnston, a case of corpora tions abrogating to themselves the right to in-terfere with the rights and franchises of individuals and other corporations. It is an invasion of a franchise to put a railway on a vasion of a franchise to put a railway on a street for which another company has a franchise, and because the consent of Councils has not been obtained by the one does not make it the less an invasion; and because tracks have not been put down for ten years does not after the case. A franchise is not a hop, skip and a jump affair—now you see it and the next moment you don't see it. Its rights are perpetual, and a moment's cessation would be as fatal as the cessation of the beating of his heart to a man.

Mr. Johnston concluded his argument with the claim that a prior charter gave first claim to possession of a street, notwithstanding that the officials at Harrisburg saw fit to grant a charter to a second company.

Judge White took the papers and reserved his decision.

WENT RIGHT BACK ON THEM.

Weeping Witness in the Postoffice Robbery Gives His Pals Dead Away. The trial of William Casterline and Ernest Titman, charged with robbing the postoffice at Nicholson, was continued in the United States Court yesterday. Jerome Lord, the postmaster, related the circumstances of the robbery. Dr. E. Wheeler deposed to seeing a light in the postoffice and to giving an alarm. C. A. Wilmot testified that he saw a man jump from the postoffice window and gave chase to him but the man fired at witness. He said the moon was shining brightly and the shooter was a tall man. moon was enining originally and the shooter was a tall man.

Henry Talmage's testimony was the same as Wilmot's.

T. J. Twigley related the circumstances of the capture of Morris on the train. Defendant's counsel admitted that the jewelry found on Morris had been taken from the postoffice building the night of the robbery.

George Sprague, proprietor of the jewelry store, stated that what was found on Morris was not all that had been stelen.

Jesse Thomas, one of the gang who pleaded guilty, testified that he went to Nicholson on February 6, of this year, and met the accused and Morris. Witness was stationed outside, and the other three went into the postoffice. A few moments later Sprague handed him a satchel and witness subsequently met at the railway and witness saw Casterline with a letter. Witness heard Titman say he fired the shot. After Morris was arrested the shot. After Morris was arrested Titman said "Sprague will give it away and we might be arrested. We are all in for it." On cross-examination Thomas told of the loss of the satchel and said he was ignorant of its contents. He said that at the preliminary hearing in Scranton he had told his cousin, Squires, that he was innocent. He said the statement was not true. Jesse at intervals shed tears by way of variation.

Edward Briggs, of Scranton, testified that he knew the defendants and met them at Lilley's tavern the day before the robbery and "smiled" with them at the bar. He overheard Casterline say: "I know where we can make a haul," and they went out. Witness also heard Casterline say something about the Nicholson postoffice.

Lohn Lilley, proprietor of the tavers, testified

John Lilley, proprietor of the tavern, testified that defendants were in his house the night of that defendants were in his house the night of the robbery.

Miss Josie Lord, daughter of the postmaster, deposed that on the night of the robbery as she came home from a party she saw the defendants near the postoffice. She was acquainted with them. George Warner, a boy, told how he found the satchel in a hole in the bank of the creek near Nicholson.

The testimony of W. S. Decker and Sidney Pratt was not of general interest, and Court adjourned after it was heard.

IN THE HANDS OF THE COURT. Law Points as to Dinmond Street Widening

Appeals from the decision of the Board of Viewers on the widening of Diamond street, were filed yesterday, by E. D. Wilt, lessee of the Grand Opera House, and Thomas Rose & Son, dealers in shoes at No. 19 Diamond street. E. D. Wilt, in his petition, stated that he has a lease of the Opera House, running from July 1, 1887, to June 30, 1894. His agreement with the 1887, to June 30, 1894. His agreement with the owners was to pay $10,000 per year for the first two years, $11,000 a year for the second two years, $12,000 a year for the third two years, and $15,000 for the last year. He was also bound by his agreement to make certain improvements, and returnish the house, and did so at a cost of $35,000. For the unexpired four years of his lease he will have to pay $45,000. The building will be destroyed as a theater by the proposed widening, and Mr. Wilt's business will be destroyed, and he says the unexpired portion of his lease is worth $75,000. The house has been used as a theater for 19 years. He anpeals because the viewers allowed him no damages. He alleges that the street act of May 16, 1889, is unconstitutional, and that the widening is therefore invalid and illegal. Also, that it is not a local but a public improvement. provement.

The same allegations are made in the appeal of Thomas Rose & Sen, who likewise received no damages in the award. The court ordered the City Clerk to remit to courtail records and proceeding in the widening matter.

testimonials from patients who have been cured by the physicians of the Catarrh and Dyspepsia Institute at No. 323 Penn avenue. Please remember that these patients were not these who had some size. hose who had some simple catarrh of the head-which, with a few local treatments and seem to be cured—but were patients suffering form, and which, in some cases, had deve into consumption. Notwithstanding the fact that numerous traveling doctors and so-called steadily increased. The testimonials published, and which always contain the name as signed by the patient, together with the crowds of people who daily call on these specialists, prove their success in the treatment of catarrh. Also in Pittsburg where only catarrh, dyspepsia and preferring to treat these diseases successfully has been a victim of catarrh and dyspepsia. His stomach gave him an endless amount of His stomach gave him an endless amount of trouble. He had belching of gas from his stomach after eating, sour taste, and often felt like vomitting his food. His appetite was poor, and as his liver was much enlarged it gave him great pain. In fact, he would often be taken with such sharp cramps and pain across his stomach and bowels it seemed as if he could not live. He had palpitation of the heart, dizziness, weakness and pain across the small of his back, and a numb, lifeless feeling in his limbs. He could get but little sleep, and as every change of weather gave him a cold, he took on a lingering cough. His breath became short and he felt pain and soreness in his lungs and under his shoulder blades. Night sweats weakened him very fast, and he gradually grew worse until he lost 30 pounds of flesh. Having a wife and two small children whom he dearly loved, depending on him for a living, and having spent all his money in doctoring to no avail, not being able to work, he became discouraged and disheartened, and often became so melancholy that he would feel tempted to jump into the river and thus end his suffering. One day he noticed in the paper an account of a patient who had been cured by the caturth specialists at 323 Penn avenue of conditions that seemed similar to his own. He resolved to call on these specialists. He did so, and was told he could yet be cured. Although he had but little faith, he resolved to try once more, and after taking a course of treatment became cured. He says: "The above history of my disease and cure is true in every respect. I had received treatment from 25 physicians, yet gradually grew worse, and for one year before beginning treatment with these physicians is was scarcely able to do any work. I have now worked hard for the past two xonths, feel well and strong, and words do not express the joy I feel that my life has been spared and health restored. I hereby sign my name. FRED HAHN."

Please bear in mind that THESE SPECIALISTS HAVE BUT ONE OFFICE, and which is PERMANENTLY LOCATED trouble. He had belching of gas from his
