the warp furnished by Mr. Carnegie the hopes of a new era of æsthetic culture. The plans unfolded from day to day by this gentleman have turned all minds and hearts, as by a common impulse, in the di-rection of that love of beauty and truth which is universal and in all ages has found expressions through works of art. For once, and as never before, have we, under the spell of this new impulse, caught a glimpse, as through an open doorway, of a vast and beautiful field in which bloom perennially the choicest flowers of though and art and from which arises a delicious fragrance, enriching and beautifying the lives of all who possess the qualities neces-sary to obtain entrance thereto. Delightful as this vision of beauty must

Delightful as this vision of beauty must seem to a people who have industriously labored amid 'corests of bleak smoke stacks, bend ng over the anvil of manufacture and the desk of commerce, it must be even more interesting to realize that this field of beauty and fragrance is actually moving this way.

MR. CARNEGIE'S MONUMENT.

To think that those who have for years abored and hoped and labored on in the interest of an art society and of æsthetic culture in Pitisburg are together with their children and all the people to have a shrine dedicated to American art, and that the youth of this city will in coming years go out from this temple taking with them a renewed and enlarged interest in the beauties of nature, and new and higher subjects of contemplation, is enough to satisfy the "old lives of an innumerable company of men and women will be his highest source of pleasure as the ears go by. It is too early to discuss with any degree of detail the plans for the establishment of a collection of paintings which is intended by the donor to represent and foster American art, but there is a peculiar fitness in the fact that this collection, is to be founded in Pennsylvania, because the very first youth to assume the calling of artist in America, and the one who affected more decidedly than any other the hirth of our national art was a Pennsylvania lad, Benjamin ing no sign. West. Born at Springfield in 1738, TECONER Young West's painting of a child sleeping in a cradle is the first canvas by an American artist of which we have record. The colors with which this picture was painted were obtained by grinding charcoal and chalk, and crushing the red wine out from the blackberry. To these primitive pig-ments were added red and yellow earths, with which friendly Indians who came to the West home used to color their faces. War paints of the native Americans employed first in the peaceful pursuit of art.

BIRTH OF AMERICAN APT

There is an additional interesting fact In connection with the birth of art in America. It is that for the most notable impulse given to the very earliest art movement we owe Bishop Berkelev, who induced John Smybert to leave London in 1725 and settle Smybert to leave London in 1725 and settle in Boston, where he labored as a pioneer were given a lively, but ineffectual chase, portrait painter for many years.

Smybert brought with him an excellent copy part. and Trumbull, two of our earliest painters, have both borne testimony to the fact that this single painting exerted a great in-figence and affected them like an inspira-The thought of these men, who possessed Ine thought of these men, who possessed undonbted ability, together probably with West, Copeley and others, gathering about this single copy of Vandyke is full of pathos. England had the means and in-fluence to bring Holbein, Vandyke and Lely themselves to her shores that their example and influence might be felt by her native artists. France could bring Da Vinci and Cellina to decorate her valuees, thereby planting the seed which should ripen into fruit at a later day. In 1725 our painters had a single copy of a masters' work. Infinitely greater are the advantages offered the art student of to-day, but we must be honest and admit that after almost 200 years we have not in Pittsburg even a good copy of a masterly painting on public exhibition. Great has been the loss to our city and people, and greater the pity if we have not even realized it. Art never enters uninvited. To those only who sincerely and earnestly desire her presence does she reyeal her beauty and grace, and the condition upon which we will have a genuine art movement in Pittsburg is that we measure up to the requirement of this standard. The use of pictures as household furniture is not sufficient. We must love art for art's sake alone, and our homes and minds must be made fit receptacles for the best products of the brush.

LOOKS LIKE MURDER. Suspicious Circumstances Attending the

Death of a Veteran. SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.I NEWARK, O., May 10 .- There is a strong suspicion now that the old man, Edward McSweeney, tound unconscious in the cellar of the County Jail yesterday, was foully dealt with. His daughter, Miss Hattie, arrived last evening to take care of him, He remained in an unconscious condition and could recognize no one, nor even speak The daughter stated that he left his home near Granville, on Wednesday, to come to Newark to be examined for an increase of pension from $4 per month. When he le t home he had about $28 25 on his person, and guard" in departing in peace. Mr. Car-negie's grandest monument will not be in granite, but in the hearts of the people; and the consciouspess of having influenced the $10 was found on his body when he was searched. The wound on the man's head does not indicate that he received it by falling, as there is not a scratch on his skin nor was any o the gravel or dirt imbedded in it as would likely have been the case had he fallen. It now looks as if he had been enticed into th place by some desperate companions, who knew that he had money, and had been dealt a terrible blow, robbed, and thrown into the place. He served through the war in the Seventy sixth Ohio. The man died last night, mak

FIRST DISTINCT RECOGNITION.

Mr. Carnegie's offer to found a national gallery in Pittsburg, and provide $50,000 per year for the purchase of American paintings, is, I think, the first distinct rec ognition of American art. It must and will arrest the attention of people throughout the world; and as the Egyptian pilgrims went playing on castanets and flutes to the shrine of their deities at Bubastis or Heliopolis, so ultimately will come all Americans to the shrine of our native art if the liberal plans outlined are carefully carried out. The end to be attained is supereminent, because the daily pleasure and intellectual enjoyment to be secured through the medium of a great public art callery cannot be gainsaid. Art is for all, and while it is true that the pleasure de-rived is dependent upon the capacity for enjoyment it is equally true that all may and do enjoy works of art to some degree. We have now in Richardson's mastern the Court House, probably the finest archi-tectural structure in the United States. It is quietly but powerfully influencing the architecture of these cities. The Carnegie Library in Allegheny, is also a powerful agent in establishing high standards in this department of art. There is no reason to think that the new library and gallery buildings will be other than magnificent, srchitecturally. We are assured the presence of a new in-fluence in this direction when the plans for an art collection are fulfilled. There is one duty which lies plainly before our people. Mr. Carnegie will give the first year and each year thereafter, $50,000 to be expended in the purchase of paintings, with the suggestion that 10 per cent only be used in the purchase of foreign art. To start this collection there should be at least $500,000 in hand when the gallery is ready for oc-cupancy. Other liberal citizeus should cupancy. contribute the needed $450,000, and I think this amount will be torthcoming when the time for its use arrives. JOHN W. BEATTY.

THE CARNEGIE GALLERY.

How His Recognition of American Art is Summed Up on the Outside.

The Philadelphia Inquirer, in commenting upon Mr. Carnegie's great gifts, says ed-Itorially:

Mt. Carnegie returned to Pittsburg on Tues-day to pour oll on the waters which have been troubled for months by a context for the con-trol of the free library which he proposes to give to that city. A number of respectable

GLASS WORKS ARANDONED.

A Newark Manufacturer Cannot Compete With Improved Machinery.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.] NEWARK, O., May 10 .- In about three weeks from to-day, the Newark Star Glass Works, one of the largest in this State, em-ploying 300 hands, will close down perma-The reason given by the proprieto nentis is that he cannot compete with other establishments without adopting the new devices for the manufacture of glassware now in The works have been in operation for several years, and the average monthly pay roll was about $7,000. This move will take a large number of persons from this city, as glass men seldom stay long in an idle city.

DYNAMITING STOPPED.

The Channel of the Conemangh River Will Probably be Changed.

ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCE. 1

JOHNSTOWN, PA., May 10.-Arthur Kirk's dynamite gang has ceased operations here. During the past two weeks they have accomplished much good in clearing out the river, and they have also dislodged sev-eral bodies, but there seemed to be trouble with the authorities to get their consent to further prosecute the work. The men were paid off and all have returned to their nomes.

The project to change the channel of the river is meeting with great success.

PEPRCIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.1 JOHNSTOWN, PA., May 10 .- All was serene in labor circles to-day. They still threaten a general strike at the Frick works if that firm does not reinstate the miners discharged at the Valley works, and put the same in full operation again. The six days' notice of the employes of the Leisenring No. 1 works was given to the company to-day, and now the notices of every one of the Frick works are in.
