This was the more or sulted in a row lasting from 4 o'clock to 9 effect that Mr. Wilson and he had said that o'clock, such as has not been witnessed since $15 a month was enough for any glass the days when the Democrats were about to blower. At times it appeared as if per-had telegraphed to the West Virginia papers denouncing Campbelius a liar and sonal encounters were certain to occur.

Mills was more than usually insulting to Speaker Reed, whom he takes every occasion to grossly insult, knowing that he will have entire immunity in doing so. The occurrences which led up to this ruction are briefly as follows: During the campaign of 1888 Mr. Campbell published a letter in Pittsburg, in which he stated that Mesars. Bypum and Wilson had stated to him when he appealed to them against a reduction of the tariff on to them against a reduction of the tariff on window glass, that $15 a month was good has said that the way a citizen wages for a glassblower. This was denied at the time by both Wilson and Bynum, and at the time by both Wilson and Bynum, and Campbell followed with nn affidavit citing did the other day, knowing full well the three or four witnesses who had heard the remarks of the gentlemen.

Aroused the Ire of the Hoosier.

This was circulated in the Congressional districts of the two candidates for re-election, and their vote suffered considerably on account of it. This hus especially pained Mr. Bynum, and several times he has seized occasion to denounce Campbell as the tool of the protectionists who were under indictment for importing foreign laborers under contract, and finally, warming up at the work, denounced him as a liar and perjurer. Colonel Bayne replied in a Clerk's desk. brief defense of Mr. Campbell, assuring the House of his high reputation, and declaring that his reputation for truth was equal

Bynum and Wilson for assaulting him under cover of their privilege as members of the House, and saying that if they had been honorable men they would have made counter affidavits instead of falling back on insults and bluster. Bynum always loses his head when he gets irritated, while Wilson is cool and courteous under all circumstances.

The Letter That Came.

The House was indulging in the customary tariff debate, when Colonel Bayne arose in his seat, and, after a few introductory re marks, sent to the clerk's desk and had read a letter from James Campbell. The document was as follows:

To Hon. Thomas M. Bayne, Washington, D. C .: From reports in the Associated Press, I see that Messrs. McMillin, Wilson and Bynum have made a personal attack on me on the floor of the House. In relation to the alleged importation of foreign labor under contract, there is a suit pending in the United States Court against James Campbell, and Villiam Sticker, of L A. 300 and James A. Chambers and H. Sellers McKee, of the of Chambers & McKee. Owing the large increase in the demand for workmen in this country, the organization netstied the members in Europe of vacancies in this country. This action was decided necessary, from the fact that, although all th the glass workers in the United States were notified, enough could not be obtained to supmly the demand. Mr. Cutcheon demanded the previous question, amid suggestions of "Gag law" from the Democratic side. Mr. Springer made the point of order that before a resolution of censure could be adopted the Speaker must decide that the language was Suparliamentary. Besides this, it was the right of a member to explain his language before it was in order to offer a resolution of censure.

This resolution was without precedent. Mr. Cutcheon said that he had copied the resolution from the last resolution of the kind ever presented in the House. That resolution had been offered by Mr. Herbert and had been directed against John Van Vorhis, of New York, in the Forty-seventh Congress. The resolution had not been acted upon because Mr. Van Vorhis had made a fall apology to the House and to the gen-tleman attacked. Not a single member had a right to stand the use of which in Irish hands he has repeatedly and fiercely denounced from pulpit and platform. He seceded from the Baptist with the exception of Bynum. Under the rules, the Speaker should have called on the Sergeant at Arms and his deputies to and platform. He seceded from the Baptist union two or three years ago because that body was not sufficiently Calvinistic, and most of his friends left with nim. Some 50 young pastors, however, who had received their training at Spargeon's Col-lege, preferred to remain with the union. Efforts to make them swallow the dogms of Spurgeon's intallibility having finally failed they have been cut off from com-munion with the great man and his flock. Spurgeon's bitterness in this controvery is the Sergean at Arms and his deputes to to clear the area in front of the bar and of those crowding the aisles. To resist would have been riot-ous and have subjected the member resisting to the risk of criminal prosecution. After a moment's hesitation the Speaker said, in measured tones: "As it seems impossible to enforce order the Chair will pro-ceed with the House in disorder," and he Spurgeon's bitterness in this controversy is severely criticised in non-conformist circles.

Countess Aylesford was called upon to pay the costs of an unsuccessful action brought by her against the Great Western Bailway. The Countess pleaded that her separate es-tate consisted wholly and solely of one dog, which she said the plaintiffs could take if the animal would allow it as asset. It proved to be a bow-legged bulldog of sinful countenance. The offer was declined with thanks.

A LOVER FOR VICTORIA.

The Queen Has Him Sent to Prison as Lunatic, However,

IBY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.1 LONDON, May 17 .- Queen Victoria, alhough over 70 years of age, has found favor in the amorous eyes of Alfred Carter, a young man who has been studying for the Wesleyan Ministry. Carter, who is a Lancashire lad, went to Windsor, and failing to obtain an interview with the object of his affections, wrote her several loving letters proposing marriage. Sad to tell the letters were handed to an unromantic and finthearted Police Inspector of the appro-priate name of Savage, who found Carter wondering about the Windsor fields sighing the name of Victoria, and hauled him off to prison on the charge of being a lunatic. The Queen and court start next week for Balmoral, in the Scotch Highlands, where Victoria always spends part of the spring and summer. The castle and estate are her private property having been bought out of the savings of her privy purse. The Prince and Princess of Wales will, as usual, perform the Queen's social duties during her absence.

SOME USE FOR ROYALTY.

Ducal Occulist Who Has Been Healing the People of Tyrol.

IBY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.] LONDON, May 17 .- The Czar has been having a relatively tranquil time of lare, and he has this week been paying marked attention to the Italian Crown Prince, now on a visit to Russia. But the triple alliance remains unshaken. The royal occulist, Duke Charles Theodore, of Bavaris, has just concluded what this most useful and hardworking of Princes terms a month's holiday at Merau, in Tyrol.

As soon as his arrival became known afflicted peasants from all the valleys and mountains of the Austrian, Italian and Swiss Tyrol flocked into Merau and were treated gratuitously by the Duke, who in four weeks performed 53 operations for cataract and 117 minor operations.

The Methodist General Conference Recon mends Reunion.

ST. LOUIS, May 17 .- To-day's session of the General Conference of the M. E. Church South was the last at which new business could be introduced, and it was unusually dull.
