A Carpet Cansed the Row Between Gilbert and Sullivan.

THE THEATRICAL DOINGS OF EUROPE

THY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH. LONDON, May 17 .- [Copyright]-All the arrangements are now completed for New York's big music hall, which is to be called the Empire, and is to be situated at Seventh avenue and Forty-second street, the present site of Tattersall's. The scheme is the idea of John Hollingshead, founder of the Gaiety Theater in London, and one of the founders of the Albambra Music Hall, who

"Niagara in London."

Two years ago Hollingshead made an offer, through Captain Counor, of the St. James Hotel, and William J. Florence, for the Academy of Music, with a view to esnot carried out. Out of this idea the present scheme has grown. A company has been formed with $1,000,000 capital, half of which has been subscribed in America and London, President Hyde, of the Equitable Insurance Company, being a large holder in New York. The Seligmans, of London, have financed the company here. Captain Buchard Bainbridge, the successful English theatrical manager, who is on the Etruria, has the plans of the New York Empire, drawn by J. Phipps, the eminent London don architect, with whom in the constructhe architect of the Broadway Theater.

ON THE LONDON PLAN.

The performances to be given will be on the plan of the Empire and Alhambra Music Halls in London, and two directors of each of these houses will be on the board of direction of the New York Empire. One feature of the new enterprise will be a roof garden for summer and winter, with a big restaurant and cafe. The house will be constructed with a separate entrance to the private boxes, and the design is to make it a place of amusement for all classes.

The permanent manager will be Captain Bainbridge, associated with an American

Hollingshead will be attached to the enterprise as consulting director, and he will probably go to New York to organize and open the house. The new theater will be opened so soon as the building can be Steele Mackey's drama, "Paul Kauvar," with William Terriss in the title role, and Miss Milward as Diane de Beaumont, has proved a success at Drury Lane, and the big theater has been crowded all week. The play is very well done, Miss Milward being particularly effective in the pathetic and passionate parts, though Terriss is a trifle stagey. Hudson, who will be remembered in America as burlesquing Irving while playing in "Claudian" with Wilson Barrett, broke out afresh the first night of "Paul Kauvar," in which he took the part of the duke, his walk, conversation and general conduct reminded one of Dixey's imitation, and when he appeared as a disguised aristocrat, he might have been taken tor Irving himself.

CHANGED HIS MIND.

On Tuesday the entire London press came down on Hudson with so much energy and unanimity that ever since the actor has been doing his best to be as unlike the great tragedian as possible. Terriss will not re-main in the east of Paul Kauvar. On Monday he returns to the Lyceum stage, and his part will be played by Lawrence Cautley, and when Irving leaves the Grand

The retirement of Geraldine Ulmar from the Savoy Theater was not due to any diffi-culty between the star and the management. It was only that the young lady thought she had been singing the same kind of parts too long, and that she desired a rest. At the same time she has probably been influenced by the fact that she has for several months by the fact that she has for several months past been receiving offers from various man-agers in New York and London, though D'Oyly Carte offered to top any salary any other manager offered. Miss Ulmar has accepted no offer as yet, and she declares that she will listen to no propositions until she has visited home. She leaves the Savoy June 15, and sails for New York on the 20th.

The row that finally ruptured the firm of Gilbert and Sullivan is said to have been all on account of a carpet. Their business has always been done on a sharing system, expenses of all kinds being charged against the receipts, and the profit that is left divided between Gilbert, Sullivan and D'Oyly Carte, their manager. While Gilbert was in India, just after the production of the "Gondoliers," Carte purchased some new "Gondoliers," Carte purchased some new carpets for the great bankrupt sale. The last sale when the sale week to take an inventory of the stock to take an inventory of the last week to take an inventory of the last week to take carpets for the theater, and when Gilbert returned he objected to the expense.

A DIFFERENCE OF OPINION. Carte maintained that the purchase was justifiable, and the two appealed to Sullivan, who sided with Carte. As a great many people have occasion to know Gilbert owed with a temper that is not mild, and when he gets into a row he generally sees it through. He did in this instance, and the result has been a dissolution of partnership. Gilbert is now looking for a composer to collaborate with, and it is said that Alfred Cellier will be the new partner, or at least that he will collaborate with Gilbert in a new opera, with which Horace Sedger will commence his occupancy of the Lyric Theater. Sullivan does not want a new partner, as he declares that he will confine himself hereafter to grand opera. This combination of circumstances will necessitate a change of policy at the Savov Theater after the run of the "Gondoliers" is over. D'Oyly Carte's new theater is expected to be ready in fall for the production of Sullivan's grand opera "Ivanboe." Agnes Huntington's enforced temporary retirement from the stage by Augustus Harriss' brutality is not entirely without its compensations. The beautiful American has become a great favorite in the high world of London, and she is in constant demand at all manner of social functions. Last night she was one of half a dozen guests to dine with the King of the Belrians at the residence of Baroness Burdett Coutts. Another American girl present was Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain. Madam Sembrich has been installed by acclamation first operatic favorite at Ber lin. The other evening the audience at Kroll's Theater cheered her for ten minutes and the stage was covered with bouappearance of Patti. The prima donna was suffering from a bad cold, caught, it is understood, in New York, and made worse by the sea air on the passage. Some of the andience were informed of the fact, but Manager Kuhe evplained that rather than disappoint the public Patti would sing three songs. The people, however, were in the congression of the non-appearance of Tenor Sims Reeves, and when Patti declined encores they howled and stamped and raved, and refused to allow the concert to miss this opportunity. If you wish to attire

Kuhe appealed for fair play, but failed to obtain a hearing from these well-dressed ruffians. A famous violoncellist tried to charm their savage breasts, but with so little success that he finally pranced off the platform in disgust, taking his big instrument with him. The row continued for a considerable time, and order was only restored by a threat to clear the hall. Patti left the place after the third song, much agitated at the people's want of forbearance.
