have it go forth that it was passed by the help of votes which were given only under the operation of the party whip.

Generally speaking, the kicking seems to be largely the result of a desire on the part of the kickers to make themselves conspicuous. It was expected all day long that the tin-plate classe would occasion a lively debate, but the day passed, but at midnight no movement had been made to amend or discuss it, and those having the bill in charge say that will not probably be dis- the House at 11:20 adjourned. cussed to-morrow.

THE FINAL VOTE.

The House will meet at 11 o'clock to morrow, and there will be little time for debate, as the vote is to be taken at 12, and the probabilities are that no discussion will be had on tin plate, and that the bill will pass with the 22-10 a pound rate on tin plate as it now stands.

The most interesting debate of the day was precipitated when McKenna, of California, moved an amendment to the sugar schedule reducing the existing schedule 33 per cent, and retaining the dividing live at 13 instead of 16, as in the present bill. He then attacked the sugar schedule in the McKinley bill amid great applause on the Democratic side. Mr. McKenna said that the pending bill in all particulars, except the sugar schedule, was brave and strong-strong because it was brave. In the sugar schedule it was timid, time-serving and weak-weak because it was time-serving and timid.

In the other schedules the bill carried out the Republican principles, but in the sugar schedule the bill refused to one industry the Republican principle. It might be well for Republicans to pause and consider what they were doing-as to its practical and political effect, if not to its moral effect.

DESERTING THE PLATFORM.

The Chicago platform enumerated the ways and means of reducing the revenue and declared that the internal revenue system should be destroyed rather than any part of the protective system should be surrendered. The sugar industry was part of the protective system. It was surrendered by this bill. The sugar schedule pointed as directly as ever free trader pointed to the benefit of buying in the cheapest market. [Democratic applause.]

Wool was not produced to the extent of our wants, and no one could predict when it would be. [Democratic applause.] The bill made sugar a contraband in the protective system. It made the sugar industry parasite on the Treasury by the granting of a bounty. It put the sugar business under police inspection, and thrust into its affairs the spies of the frevenue department. If the bounty principle were correct why not apply it to other things? [Democratic applause.] Why not apply it to tin plate [laughter] and save at once (if the committee was right, he was only repeating its reasons, not indorsing them) $7,000,000 in revenue and taxation? Then we would have Deserts a Large Family to Elope With cheap tin to go with cheap sugar.

ANY NUMBER OF QUESTIONS.

Why not apply it to linen goods, which we didn't produce, and give the people cheap linen to go with cheap tin and cheap sugar? [Laughter.] Why not apply it to wool until that article was produced in this country to the extent of the people's wants? [Democratic laughter.] A bounty would appear as beneficient in those industries as in the sugar industry. Think of the splen did political effect upon the Republican party when it was enabled to point with pride (as all parties pointed) to the workngman and the farmer sitting down to a heap breakfast in a cheap suit of clothes. the bill had been introduced and reported. The effect of it would be to leave each State in the Union to determine for itself what its policy should be in regard to the traffic in intoxicating liquors. Under that decision of the Supreme Court the State of Iowa could not prevent the citizens of other States, or the subjects of Great Britain, France or Germany, from sending intoxi-cating liquors into Iowa and having them sold there in the original packages by agents.

SPEEDY ACTION NEEDED.

At the present time original package saloons were being organized in his State. The package might be a pint or a half pint of whisky or a keg or bottle of beer. It was to put a stop to such practice, and to recog-nize in every State the power to regulate its own internal police that the bill was reported.

Mr. Vest said that as a member of the Judiciary Committee he had not been able to agree with the majority in reporting the bill, cause it would sweep away the exclusive inrisdiction of the United States over inter-State commerce. What had the Supreme Court decided? It decided emphatically, by a majority of its justices, that alcoholic stimulants were an article of inter-State commerce, and that the power to regulate commerce among the States and with foreign nations was an exclusive power vested in exclusive power vested in Congress by the Constitution The intimation that Congress might dele-gate to a State that power was contained in mere obiter dictum of that decision. He (Mr. Vest) contended that it could not be one.
