CENTER OF THE RACE.

Three-Fourths of Pittsburg's Population Are Scotch-Irish.

WHAT THEY DID FOR CIVILIZATION

They Dignify All Professions and Add Sagacity to Industry.

A PATRIOTIC AMERICAN PEOPLE

"The Scotch-Irish of Western Pennsylvani In peace and in war possessing the highest elements of manhood, virtue, courage, patriot-ism and intelligence."—Hon, Daniel Agnew.

It is particularly appropriate that a great gathering of that portion of the people known as the Scotch-Irish, such as the one proposed for this week, should come together in this city. Pittsburg is the very center of the Scotch-Irish population in America. At one time seven-eighths of the business men of the city were Scotch-Irish, and even now, it is said, three-fourths of the entire population are of that blood. What this stalwart, hard-visaged, but strong-minded element has done to advance civilization in Pittsburg and Western Pennsylvania is hard to estimate. They felled the forests, cleared the lands and filled them with broad farms, large towns, great factories and many Western Pennsylvania was partly settled by the Scotch-Irish along about 1725. Daniel Agnew, the grandfather of Hon.

Alexander King, a Millionaire Manufacturer Daniel Agnew, now of Beaver, emigrated from the North of Ireland in 1764, and settled in New Jersey. Judge Agnew's father was brought west with the great wave of population which crossed the Allegheny river in 1796, after the ratification of the treaty of General Wayne with the Indians.

Hon. Daniel Agnew came here in 1805, with his father, James Agnew, A. M., M. D., who was then on his way to Mississippi to practice his protession. He graduated here and was admitted to the bar in 1829. Speaking of these early times, Judge Agnew in a recent letter, says: "In 1820 Pittsburg's population was under 8,000, and the foreign element was wholly Irish. In the early settlement of the northwestern counties the whisky still was often found at springs of good water. Whisky was then the only article of cash sale. In the main, farm products were the subjects of barter only."

PLAYED IMPORTANT PARTS.

The Clarke family played important parts in the progress of Pittsburg. Thomas G. Clarke, in the progress of Charles J. Clarke, was born in Cannonsburg in 1801. He graduated from the Jefferson College and became one of the foremost men of this city. He and the late William Thaw owned no less than 100 boats on the river beside operating a great system of wagon transportation over the mountains, years before the railroads came into use. They owned the largest line of packets between this city and Cin-cinnati that was ever run on the Ohio river. William B. Clarke, a brother, was born in 1803 and is still living. He also graduated at the Jefferson College and settled in Beaver, at a time when it was a question as to whether Pittsburg or Beaver was to be the larger town. He is now one of the oldest and best known attorneys of the city and is the of father Mrs. John Arthurs, of Oak-

Rcuben Miller, of Miller, Metcalf & Parkin, is another Scotch-Irish descendant. His father came from the dividing line between Scotland and England, and it is said he never knew whether he was Scotch or English. He came here in 1802. English. He came here in 1802.

The Late Thomas G. Clarke,

The ancestors of Colonel William A. Herron were among the oldest and most prominent Scotch-Irish emigrants. They came to America in 1735 and located at Carlisle. Both his grandfathers, James Herron and William Anderson, were Majors in the Revolutionary War. Colonel Herron, who has been styled the "American Gladstone," is one of the recorder of his is one of the proudest of his race, among Pittsburg Scotch-Irish. In speaking of his people to a DISPATCH reporter, he said:

SHOULD INSPIRE SOME PRIDE.

"I tell you this nation ought to be proud of the Scotch-Irish. If it had not been for them the Revolutionary War would have been lost. It is they who have maintained civil freedom in America. It was the Beotch-Irish people that made the Declara-tion of Independence. Without them it could never have been thought of except as a passing fancy."

Alexander King, of the East End, came to Pittsburg in 1836. His brother, R. H.
King, of the Cash Insurance Company, came four years before him, but Mr. Alexander King is probably the best posted on inter-esting reminiscences connected with the progress of the city, and has done more for the advancement of the manufacture of glass than any other citizen of Western Pennsylvania. When he came here there were no houses above Smithfield street. Mr. King made a profitable invesment at the time the city was compelled, by an act of the Legislature, to redeem its scrip issued in 1844. The municipality was obliged to sell some of its property in order to redeem the scrip, and Mr. King purchased several lots on Fifth avenue, between Smithfield and Grant streets, one or two of which he still owns, and the others he sold a few years ago. Mr. King was the first to introduce soda ash for the manufacture of glass in America. Glass was for a long time made from "scorebings," which were used as an alkali; but the supply was very limited and hard to get. Mr. King, who was then in the glass business, had two cousins in Liverpool, England, who sent him 100 casks of soda ash. He tried it and found it a success.

AFRAID TO USE IT.

William McCully & Co., who then owned the largest factory in the United States, refused to use the sods ash. They were afraid of spoiling their "mix," Finally, Mr. King induced him to try a few casks and Mr. McCully said it had a demoralizing effect on his men. They all got intoxicated and ruined the glass. However, the use of Store, 123 Federal st., Allegheny.

soda ash was kept up and to-day thousands of tons are consumed annually.

The Scotch-Irish are a temperance pe

The Scotch-Irish are a temperance people. Outside of three large cities in Pennsylvania all the Scotch-Irish counties but one, Armstrong, gave majorities for the temperance amendment, and Armstrong's opposition majority was less than 200 out of a poll of over 7,000.

A study of the Scotch-Irish proves the contributions which that element has made to the intelligence and to the varied and and world-famed industries of the city. They dignify every profession. There are Scotch-Irish here, too, who, for their convictions and for the maintenance of liberty for which they were forced to America, have THE GAIT OF A PREACHER ABROAD. which they were forced to America, have put forth heroic deeds and have made majestic sacrifices. And they stand to-day as

Col. Wm. A. Herron, the American Gladstone they have ever stood, proclaiming the irecdom of the press, freedom of religion and the freedom of the citizen. Colonel Echols, who has been prominently connected with the arrangements for the forthcoming congress, said:

PROUD OF THEIR RACE. "The Scotch-Irish are a truly patriotic race. They are intensely American. They are, of course, proud of their race, but race is a characteristic of man, and so is pride is a characteristic of man, and so is pride of ancestry; and a man who would not take pride in his ancestors and their achievaments, will not do much worthy of remembrance and is not worthy of a place on the earth. But the Scotch-Irish have proven themselves ready at all times to stand up in defense of America and American institu-tions, while yet retaining a modest pride in

How Victorin's Seventy-First Birthday Was Celebrated in Pittaburg. The septuagenarian sovereign of Great Britain and Ireland celebrated on Saturday her seventy-first birthday. Queen Victoria was born in 1819, and succeeded to the throne on the death of her uncle, William IV., in 1837. Thus, with the seventy-first anniversary of her nativity, Madam Victoria Guelph celebrates the fifty-third anniversary of her sovereignty over the British empire. During that period 16 different men have been Presidents of the United States. William IV. died when Van Buren was in the first

The heir apparent to the throne of Great Britain, Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, is in his 50th year, and if he were to become King to-day, he would be the oldest individual who ever succeeded to the English throne.

A number of English residents of Pittsburg celebrated the Queen's birthday with all due honors. In a certain Diamond street saloon, noted as a resort of the Saxon, there was champagne galore, and plenty of good old Burton ale, in which those with a yearning for the chalk cliffs of old England pledged their former sovereign. If the number of healths drank in her honor, benefit the royal Victoria in any degree, she ought to be very glad that her birthday chanced to be on a Saturday. At least half of Pittsburg's mill men come from the North of England, and these brawny chil-dren of Albion drank success to Victoria and confusion to her enemies in a manner that must have filled the coffers of loyal saloons to a surprising degree.

New Building and Lonn Association.

The citizens of the Hill district are taking steps toward organizing a new loan society to have all the more recent improvements of such associations. The name adopted is the Dwelling House Building and Loan Association. At a meeting held on Wednesday evening, the 21st inst., over 800 shares of stock were subscribed and many more agreed for. The society will commence business about June 1, prox.; the stock will be issued in series of about six months apart. The minimum premium is 10 cents per share of $200 each, and stockholders withdrawing at any time after the first six months receive a portion of the profits.

The constitution and by-laws, embracing

A PASTOR'S PEGASUS

That Flew With the Wind at the Rate of 11 Miles an Hour.

Some Interesting Relics Brought Home

for His Congregation. WARM WELCOME FOR THREE TOURISTS

After more than three months' pilgrimage in the Holy Land, Rev. W. H. Pearce, D. D., pastor of the Butler Street M. E. Church; Rev. T. J. Leak, D. D., of the North Avenue M. E. Church, Allegheny, and Rev. J. A. Ballantyne, of the Hazlewood M. E. Church, arrived home Saterday, They were members of a large party of ministers from all over the United States who left New York in February last.

All three of the Pittsburg tourists look sunburned and healthy. They traveled over 14,000 miles, riding considerable of the distance in the remoter lands on camels, donkeys and horseback. Although they lived a good many weeks in tents, and were frequently soaked through and through in Syrian storms, none of the gentlemen took even a serious cold.

RELICS FROM SACRED PLACES. Rev. Dr. Pearce brought home 65 canes from all the sacred places, reaching from Jaffa all through the Holy Land. He either cut or had them cut from trees around celebrated spots on the Mount of Olives, the range of Calvary, in Italy and at various points in Egypt. Each member of the Official Board of the Butler Street Church and each male teacher of the Sunday school will receive one of these canes as a gift. Mr. Pearce also brought about 50 paper knives and napkin rings made of the tame olives about Jerusalem for the lady teachers of his Sabbath school. Even the pupils of the school were remembered by the Doctor. He had made for them, by hand, 800 flower cards in the convents around Jerusalem. The nuns made them from flowers, some of which came from the Garden of semens.

Beside all these things, Rev. Mr. Pearce brought relies of all sorts for many of his friends; a choice collection of alabaster and other curious stones; and probably 200 or 300 very fine, large photographic views.

Dr. Pearce says the most difficult part of the whole tour, trying alike on health and patience, was the Syriau trip. "Yet, with all its hardships," he adds, "I would not have missed it. It was most enjoyable, the life quite adventuresome. From those mountains you get some of the grandest views imaginable," The doctor continued:

At Jaffa, on the Mediterranean, where we commenced our Palestine tour, we selected the horses that were to bear us from place to place. We were confronted by 150 horses, from which to select 50. We could select them curselves, or have our guide, or dragoman, select them for us. Most of the party had the dragoman to make the selections, but some of us who thought we knew something about horses made the choice ourselves, and in every case we were well suited. The animal I took proved to be very fleet and trustworthy. These Arabian horses are all trained for the work, and while wild and speedy, are generally safe. SELECTING THE HORSES.

LEARNING TO RIDE. The bit used upon these horses is entirely different from that used in this country and it took us some time to learn how to control the brutes us some time to learn how to control the brutes with the reins. After that we got accustomed to riding the horses easy enough, all except Dr. Leak, and he says his horse was not a good fit for him. The last day out, having finished the Palestine tour, we camped within 30 miles of Beyrout, on the old Roman road. Not having heard from home for 30 days, and knowing that letters awaited me at Beyrout, I determined to get there ahead of the balance of the party. I knew my horse's speed well by this time, so at 6 o'clock the next morning I started. The road crossed the ante-Lebason mountain range, and from the point at which we started there is a gradual ascant until you attain the height of about 4,000 feet. Up there I gathered snow in about 4,000 feet. Up there I gathered snow in my hands.

This Roman road is a magnificent highway. It is wide and as smooth as a marble pavement. In the dangerous places it is fenced with stone. You may go to the edge and look over the precipice, but there is no risk, so well protected is it. This is a macadamized road, and being so many centuries old, has been worked over and over again until it is as absolutely perfect as a road can be. It is the same highway that was traveled by the Roman conquerors.

HIS HORSE FAIRLY FLEW.

Well, that morning my horse seemed to fairly fly over that road. Turkish troops are stationed at various points, and I know they must have wondered what was the matter be-cause I dashed past them so fast. I never urged my steed. He was so fleet, the morning was so fresh, and the road was so solid, that he sped along with the wind of his own accord. I reached Beyrout in two of his own accord. I reached Beyrout in two hours and three-quarters, covering about 30 miles in that time, without leaving a wet hair on my horse. Our conductor had told us that it would take the party five and three-quarter hours to make the 30 miles. Only a few got there as soon as I did, and most of the party did not arrive until from 230 to 4 in the afternoon. Mine was said to be the fastest ride ever made across the ante-Lebanon.

In honor of Rev. Dr. Pearce's return, the Butler Street Church yesterday was beautifully decorated with flowers and hothouse plants. Above the pulpit was an immense floral design, on which were worked letters reading "Welcome Home." The pastor preached an able sermon in the morning, and at night there was a special service of
