excellent one. Besides, it is quite original; and would supply the necessary excuse for getting young people together, which after all is the great aim of party-givers. Then there is none of the fatigue of tennis about the entertainment. Getting one's photograph taken is an amusement of the laziest type.
And so we need not feel surprised if we receive from Mrs. T. Van Jones Browne, of Majolica avenue, a card announcing that she will be "at home" on a given date, and bearing in the extreme corner the suggestive word, "Photographs," In like manner the very dear triends of Mrs. De Montmorency Robinson may expect honeyed notes, detailing the fun of her forthcoming "tin-type lunch," and begging them to bring their cameras.

Success attend the "photograph party" idea.
May it soon attain to the dignity of a "fad," and enjoy a life, which, if short, will be at least a merry one.

Who among us does not know the slow man? The only thing in which he is not slow, is that he never misses an opportunity of making him-self heard, or of fastening himself upon any un-fortunate creature who happens to be his neighbor for the time being. It matters not what time of the day or night he meets you, he is never too busy to discuss the affairs of the is never too may to discuss the affairs of the nation, the last new thing concerning baseball, the weather, or anything else that happens to craw! into his brain. He is possessed of one redeeming quality, this slow man, and that is he is generally good-natured. He is seldom or never seen to become angry or lose his temper. But this, I am afraid, is the outcome of his alowness.

He belonged to the one eyeglass fraternity, and wore the lovelest glossy flaxen bangs, cut in Spanish style. He was altogether too lovely for anything—but slow and awkward, ch, dear! Notwithstanding I had told him several times that I was engaged for every dance, he insisted on taking my tablet out of my hand and examining it closely. bringing the monocle bear upon the harmless little book as intently as if it had been Sanscrit and it was his duty to translate it offhand. o you know it took me the whole evening to make that booby understand that I never danced galops, and that particularly f did not want to dance one that night. When I left the house at last with my slow man leading me to the carriage, and shutting out others who wanted to say a word or two to me before I left, I actually cried with vexation and annoyance, and asked myself again and again: "What are slow men made for?" The first was for a gold medal by eight children who have won silver medals. The creitathe grande dame is as much delighted with a freshly imported dance, or an original mode of table decoration, as her children are with fresh toys or boxes of bon bons. Every moon brings with it new shapes in headgear, new styles of pet dogs, and new crazes of every kind.

And then the dainty flogers, which are so ready to snatch the plaything, are equally quick in casting it away? The craze is but short lived. Private theatricals and tableaux vivants: croquet, lawn tenus, badminton, claret and champagne cups; all have had their day. Other forms of "singiness," other games, and other leed drinks have taken the places of these former favorites.

A delightful progressive enchre party was held at the residence of Miss Mary Lemans, 110 Manhattan street, Allegheny, Those who had the pleasure of being present were: Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie, Mrs. shooting, and even theater parties have been given to the world. They have come crowding upon one another's heels, season after season, the demand being quite as great as the supply; and one after another they have gone the way of all such evanescent delights.

But the society mill-wheel goes merrily round, and there will soon be a demand for some novel kind of party. What will be the next creation of the caterers who turn out these charming confections? What new "fad" will the fashionable syndicate contributors be privileged to describe?

A well-known Pittsburg grande dame has suggested a probable answer to the question. "The season is propitions," remarks this high priestess of the drawing room, "and just now the camera rage is at its height. Why not get up photograph parties?"

Why not, indeed? The idea seems to be an excellent one. Besides, it is quite original: proved herself a charming hostess. After an hour or more spent in social chat the guests withdrew, assuring Miss Lemans they had never spent a more enjoyable evening.

The election was held last week, and ex-Mayor Smith, of Philadelphia, was the successful candidate, defeating Bonaffon by a vote of 11 to 10. The result was a great surprise, as enough men had promised to support their former Colonel, to carry him through successfully, but at the last minute one of their number went over to the other side and the Third has now a new commander. The feeling is so bitter between the two factions that it is believed Colonel Smith will have a great deal of difficulty in getting the regiment in working order, although his record as a hustler is good. The other members of the field elected on the Smith ticket are: Lieutenant Colonel, S. Thomas McGinnis, and Major, L. C. Hall.

The result of the inspections this year indicates that both the local regiments, as a rule, place too little importance on the position of a non-commissioned officer. The State of Pennsylvania is beginning to demand that a corporal or sergeant's stripes mean something more than an ornament on the uniform, and that the wearer have some idea of the importance and duties of his position. Much might be said of the observance of demorial Day here and elsewhere, but the de tails have been given quite fully by the daily press. The day was beautiful throughout, no rain falling to interfere with the services. The revivifying rain was held until evening when it poured down and the newly strewn and planted "stars of earth" gained new life and beauty. A Memorial Day in this vicinity was probably never more quietly or successfully observed. The absence of the general parade gave the day in the old city an air of quietness. In all celebrated in a finished manner which showed careful and conscientious preparation. The careful and conscientious preparation. The work was well distributed and no grave suffered from lack of attention. Cemeteries which had heretofore have had only details sent to them were attended to by full posts and the work consequently better done. Though the thoughtless made a gala day of the solemn holiday the soldiers and hundreds of thousands of others, to whom "patriotism" is not a mere term, reverently paid tribute to the honored soldier dead, and will continue to do so as long as the heroic deeds and sacrifices of the boys of '61 are remembered, which will be forever.

Politics Rigidly Excluded. Concerning the violation of an article of the rules and regulations by two of the Pennsylva-nia posts, Department Commander Denniston has issued the following order:

"The attention of the Department Commander has been called to action taken by two posts of this department, one located in Lancaster county and another located in Crawford county, which is in flagrant and inexcusable viola-tion of article XI, chapter 6, rules and regula-tions, which reads as follows:

N cofficer or comrade of the Grand Army of the Republic shall in any manner use this organiza-tion for partisan purposes, and no discussion of jartisan questions shall be permitted at any of its meetings, nor shall any nomination for political office be made.

"The Grand Army of the Republic is not a political organization in any sense of the word, and one of its proudest boasts is that partisan politics are entirely eliminated by the fundamental law of its existence. It must not be used to defend from accusation, or to extol the virtues and qualifications of any candidate or any political party. Its members are citizens, maintaining a citizenship intensified and made more than ordinarily earnest by the sacrifices they have made for the good of our common dountry. If any of them desire to assist an ex-soldier in have made for the good of our common dountry. If any of them desire to assist an ex-soldier in the way of political preferment, it can be done as an ex-soldier curizen, but not as a member of the Grand Army of the Republic. Posts must not indulge in resolutions of indorsement of candidates, whether such candidate be a comrade or not. The posts referred to which have recently transgressed the rules and regulations, have been instructed from these head-quarters that their action must be rescinded, so far as it is possible to do so, and all other posts are again warned against such transgression in the future. Any further violation of the rules and regulations in this respect will imperit the charter of the post or posts so offending. Partisan politics must be kept out of the Grand Army of the Republic."

The Rebel Fing at Richmond.

The rebel battle flags, which were carried by the enemies of the Union in their fight against those who now form the Grand Army of the Republic, were brought out and defiantly un-furled at Richmond at the unveiling of the Lee furled at Richmond at the unveiling of the Lee monument on Thursday. The spirit of '61 which restlessly smolders in the breasts of those who were "subdued," broke out atresh when the incendiary banners of the lost cause were flaunted, amid loud and fervent shouts of acclamation, through the streets of the former capital of the Confederacy. An officer who fought against the Union troops said, in a speech before an organization of ex-rebels, "that if Lee had known what the herrors of reconstruction would be he would not have surrendered at Appomattox." Confederate flags were put Appomattor. Confederate flags were put into the hands of a statue of George Washington. A weak protest was made against this indignity, but the authorities refused to remove them. The States, of Richmond, placed a banner over the front of its office reading: "Robert E. Lee, America's Greatest Man." Lots of other things happened down there on the occasion of the unveiling of the magnificent monument to the honored Lee. The reports say that the well-known "yell" was uttered with its old time flerceness. These things are very interesting to the heroes who sacrificed so much in '61.'65.

It is pleasing to the veterans to learn that a general protest comes from many places against the displaying of the "rebel rags," as they are called, and that a bill is now being prepared for presentation to Congress which will prohibit such displays. There were many excellent things said upon the subject by prominent speakers in different parts of the country in Memorial Day addresses, words that would into the hands of a statue of George Wash in Memorial Day addresses, words that would do the old soldiers good to hear, but they can-not be reproduced here as there is not room.

Extensive preparations have been made for the reception of the Legion. The full Cathedral Band will be stationed in the balcony over the main entrance, and play appropriate music as the veterans enter and during the service. The Fathers of the College of the Holy Ghost will occupy the sanctuary and will sing a solemn requiem, while the choir, largely increased, will furnish the music. The church will be decorated with American flags, and as the legion moves through the center of the church with its guidons and colors, they will fise to the right and left and occupy the seats nearest to the pulpit. It is estimated that many hundreds of old soldiers not members of the Legion, and citizens and their families who have never seen the inside of the Cathedral, will be there, and as it has the largest seating capacity of any church in the Haired States. he inside of the Cathedral, will be there, and as it has the largest seating capacity of any church in the United States, seating nearly 4,000 peo-ple, there will be room for all. The recent im-provements have made it one of the handsomest churches in the country.

Chill Hezzard's Elequence. Colonel Chill W. Hazzard, Past Department Commander, delivered the Memorial Day address at Monongahela City. For more than an hour he held an audience of 1,500 spellbound with his burning eloquence. Eyes were suffused with tears frequently. Whisperings of approval could everywhere be heard when he deprecated the spirit that had recently dragged forth the "foul and decaying flag of treason and flaunted it in the face of a forgiving people." The speaker concluded in a dramatic way by offering a tribute of flowers to those who had given their lives for the country they loved so well; another tribute for those who had suffered the dangers, the trials and the hardships of war; another for the $,000,000 widows and orphans scattered across the continent, and another for the mother who gave her son a living sacrifice upon the altar of liberty. Then pausing with a handful of flowers, he asked: "Are the people of this land torgiving enough, is the patriotism of this country brave enough, is the heart of this mation greatenough to cast a tribute of flowers upon the grave of treason? No; not to-day. If they were right we were wrong." hour he held an audience of 1,500 spellbound

A Charge of Desertion Removed. Many comrades of the Eleventh Reserves will be glad to know that the charge of desertion that has existed since 1868 against Lawrence Ruch (or Ruff), Company D. Eleventh Re-serves, has been removed by order of the Secretary of War. Through the efforts of his attortary of War. Through the chorts of his attor-ney, J. H. Stevenson, and his mother, an old lady of Butler, Pa., during a long fight, the ser-ious charge is removed. Comrade Ruch was an inmate of the West Penn Huspital about April, 1863, and through the persuasions of some of his old Butler county friends he went home only to stay a few days; but his sickness took a serious turn, and resulted in death about June 21, 1863. It was this absence from the hospital that caused him to be marked a deserter.

A Happy Change of Hendquarters. The department headquarters are at last to be removed from the present rooms, corner of Tenth and Chestnut streets, Philadeiphia, to a fine location on the ground floor at 1025 Arch street. Department Commander Denniston, since his election, has insisted upon the change, and now it is to be made. No more will the visitors to headquarters have to climb up three stories of steep, winding stairs. The new quarters are elegant ones, being two large parlors connected by folding doors. They are light, well ventilated and are very accessible. The change will be made early this month.

A singular bird has recently been added to the collection in the London Zoological Gardens-the much talked of carniverous parrot, which confines its love of an imal flesh almost exclusively to mut-According to the naturalists have examined this rara avis, it possesses two qualities heretofore unknown in birds of its species. The first is this flesheating propensity, an exception to the whole parrot family, which is frugivorous, living on fruits, seed, leaves, buds and the like; and second, the fact that this carniverous taste is not natural, but acquired, This curious bird is the kea (Nestor notabilis), or mountain parrot, and comes from New Zealand. In the time of the Maori rule in New Zealand the bird was as innocent and harmless as any of the parrot spesies, and it was not until the higher tracts of the country were utilized as sheep runs that the kea was tempted to desert its fruiteating habits and join the destructive army of the carnivora. About 1868 it was noticed that the sheep of the uplands were suffering from sores and scabs in the region of the loins, and that almost invariably the sufferers were those sattest and healthiest. Many discussions ensued as to what could be the cause. Soon after some of the shepherds saw the feathered cannibal seated on the hips of a sheep helpthat day forward the bird was known as the sheep-enting parrot-the feathered wonder of the antipodes.

A MACHINE FOR SWEARING.

The Device of an Ingenious Chinaman to Lessen the Wicked Man's Labor. Drake's Magazine.]

The Chinese are the most skillful inventors in the world, and it is not surprising that Wun Lung has succeeded in pertecting a device that at one jerk of the string will outswear a regiment of Hoang Ho flat-boat

Chinese oaths sound very much as it made by machinery, and so Wun Lung experi-enced little difficulty in imitating them by a mechanical device. A complete swearing machine consisted of six cylinders, each containing a complex swearer, and all worked by a string after the lashion of the praying machine. By pulling the string once a man could swear more copiously than he could by a week's hard work in the old way. Fitted out with a swearer and a prayer machine, a Chinaman has no cause to consider himself anything but well fixed.

CLEVELAND FINDS FOR THE CITY. His Decision in the Famous Langdon Case

Will Probably End It. NEW YORK, May 31 .- Grover Cleveland, the referee appointed by the Supreme Court last December to determine the questions of value in the eight cases of Langdon against the Mayor, has announced his decision, in which he finds in favor of the city. The plaintiffs sued to recover compensation for the destruction of their wharf rights, which had been extinguished when the city built the new bulkheads and piers on the North river in pursuance of the act of 1871, and claimed that such compensation hould be at the rate of at least $1,000 per running foot. Mr. Cleveland has decided that the value of the plaintiff's rights is only $100 per running toot, which will result in a judgment against the city aggregating in all the cases probably less than $75,000. This sum the city has always been willing to pay. Corporation Counsel Clark said that in his opinion Mr. Cleveland's decision would not only finally dispose of the Langdon cases, which it seems have now been pend cases, which it seems have how been pending before the courts for upward of 13 years, but would enable him to secure a final determination of several other litigations affecting she city's water front.

The above are the attractions at the theaters

The regular season at the Bijou Theater will close this week. As a final attraction Duncan B. Harrison has been engaged, and will present his thrilling military comedy drama, "The Pay-master." It was seen here a season ago, and was pretty favorably received. As a special feature for this occasion, John L. Sullivan, the world's champion puglist, will appear in a three-round exhibition of the manly art with Joe Lannon. So far Mr. Sullivan has been quite a success, and has filled the houses where quite a success, and has filled the houses where he has appeared to overflowing. Last week he was at the Grand Opera House, New York, and it is said that the entire house was filled every night with fashionable audiences. He spars in a full-dress suit, and, if Dame Rumor is to be believed, the matinees were composed of ladies who wished to catch a glimpse of the big fellow. His manager, Mr. John Barrett, says he is in splendid form, and that his daily exercise keeps his flesh in good condition. Arrangements have been made to accommodate the out-oftown people, and we are informed that the country is billed for miles around, and that excursionists from the surrounding towns will come in large numbers. The sale of seats is extraordinary, and it looks as if the closing week of the Bijou would be a most profitable one.

The entertainment which is given under the title of the "Equine Paradox" comprises four acts, in which 24 handsome trained horses perform wonderful feats. They seem to be capaform wonderful feats. They seem to be capable of doing almost anything but talking. Bartholomew has, it is said, very much improved the exhibition, and the novel mechanical effects, fine trappings and appropriate scenery make the entertainment a most attractive one. It is the next attraction at the Grand Opera House.

"Hilarity," a musical comedy, will commence a week's engagement at Harris' Theater to-
