KILLS WITHOUT PAIN.

What the Inventor of Electrocution Has to Say.

A CURRENT MOVES SO FAST

That the Man is Dead Before the Nerves Have Time to Act.

SOME CHATS WITH OTHER PEOPLE

Harold P. Brown, the New York electrician who purchased a Westinghouse alternating machine for the State to kill Kemmler, the condemned murderer, was at the Duquesne yesterday. Mr. Brown is still a young man, but the local concern tackled a fighter when they undertook to down him, as it has discovered since. He is the constructing engineer of the Pittsburg and Birmingham road, and came on to see what progress was being made with the work. He returned to New York last even-

Mr. Brown, with the metropolitan reporters, has a reputation for reticence, but he talked very freely yesterday. Said be; "They call me the executioner, but that doesn't make any difference. I am going ahead with my work as if nothing had happened. This delay in the execution of Kemmler, I have no doubt, is the work of the Westinghouse people. They have tried in various ways to have it stopped, and so far have failed. I still claim that the alternating system is the most deadly. Only the other day a little bootblack was killed in New York by such a current by coming in contact with an insulated wire.

and the insulation was not faulty either

ABUSED FOR HIS WORK. "I have been abused roundly by the local people here for my connection with the Kemmler affair, They tried to ruin my business. I had a hard time of it getting a machine. The company refused to sell one when it knew what it was to be used for. When the State committee came to me I suggested that they buy one that I knew had killed a number of people by accident, and after some maneuvering it was finally obtained.

"Now, as to death by electricity, it is absolutely painless. I have experimented with it enough to know, and had one personal experience that convinced me. When the Chicago railway exhibition was held, a a powerful charge, and the current burned the flesh on my hand and body. I was conscious through it all and felt no pain whatever. In fact, I didn't believe at first that I was injured. But for some years before this event happened in my life, an Illinois dentist was in the habit of administering electricity instead of an annesthetic in pulling teeth. He got the patient to hold the baniles of a common medical battery, and while he was being gently shocked the teeth were pulled, and he didn't know it. The theory is that the electricity shocked the nerves in the lower part of the body and so occupied them that the sensation produced by extracting the teeth did not reach the brain at all.

DOESN'T KNOW WHAT HIT HIM. "When a big machine is used, and a man receives a full shock, be doesn't know what hit him. The electricity travels so much faster than nerve force that the sensation of pain never gets to the sent of consciousness. The victim is dead before the pain begins, and is no pain. One peculiar effect of elec-tricity on the body is that it congulates the tricity on the body is that it congulates the Washington street, the only peculiarity of course if there is no consciousness there a nerve it appears to be disintegrated and broken up. The outer covering drops off like a sheath, and the parts of the nerve become visible. This feature of its ac-tion I have often seen demonstrated on the lower forms of life. If an amolba, which is of the simplest of animals, nothing but a mass of protoplasm without any apparent organs, and put it into water, and pass a current of electricity through the liquid yo can see the animal contract and draw itself together, showing that it has this coagulating effect that I speak of. "Kemmler is satisfied to be killed in this way, but then he is imbecile, almost a brute. The only objection people have to it is the thought of being put out of existence by such a forcible power, but if you get a good dose of electricity you won't know what

Ex-Congressmon Bramm Has an Experience in Getting Something to Eat.

Ex-Congressman Brumm, of Schuytkill county, accompanied by his wife, was in the city for a short time vesterday. He delivered the cration at Johnstown on Decoration Day and came to Pittsburg to see Department Commander Joseph Denniston, of the Grand Army. Mr. Brumm was unfortunate enough to get into a botel where they close the dining room early in the a termoon to give the cooks a better chance to get supper, and when seen he was kicking because he couldn't get anything to eat. It is useless to try to talk to a hungry man, and be straightway sought a house where meals are served. Mr. Brumm, it will be remembered is the famous Green back Republican, who held sway so long in Schuylkill county. He said yesterday he would never be a Democrat, but he was afraid the bottom had dropped his district. He intimated that in his opinion it had become hopelessly Democratic. The scheme of the Farmers' Alliance to establish granaries and issue currency for 80 per cent of the value of grain deposited, did not strike his fancy. "Such a plan," he said, "would be classifying the people, and issuing money that would beneuit only one class. That would never do.

S. S. Bemer, the architect, and G. Bushman, chief mechanical engineer for the Pullman Palace Car Company, registered at the Anderson yesterday. They returned

It was not for the purpose of forming a car trust, which George Pullman denied, but Mr. Bemer said they were sent here by the company to look into the merits of fuel gas for manufacturing purposes. Some time ago the company tried to use gas but failed. They couldn't make car axles with it, but they propose to repeat the experthe axles can be made they feel sure that the gas will answer all other purposes required. Chief Bigelow, of the Department of Public Works, has ordered work to be commenced to-morrow on the grading of the Forbes street entrance of Schenley Park through the 190-foot strip presented to the SHE REPENTS HER RASH ACT, city by Mr. John Steel. It is expected that the driveway will be graded and paved with asphalt within two weeks. It is said that Mr. Steel, who is cashier of the Freehold Bank, bought six acres of land through which the entrance is opened, for $24,000. The ground on either side of the driveway, which is 600 feet long, is to be laid out in building lots, and is expected to bring all the way from $100 to $1,000 per toot front. At the lowest figure the property would bring $120,000, and probably much more.

much more. Chief Bigelow hopes to have most of the driveways in the park completed by July 4. Panther Hollow is now looking beautiful, and needs but lew improvements. Severa bridges will be thrown across it, and rusti its. Several seats will be piaced where they will do the most good.

Chief Bigelow has already granted two permits for picnics in the park, and expects that a number will be held there on Independence Day. This permission is granted by Chief Bigelow upon application from any Sunday school or private party, the only provision being that there shall be no danc-ing, nor shall beer be sold.

Lizzie Miller Ends Her Life With an Ounce of Paris Green.

And Fights the Agonies of Death for Nearly Nineteen Hours.

ROMANTIC SOUTHSIDE SUICIDE.

"Miss Lizzie Miller died at the Southside Hospital, at 2:30, from the effects of paris green. She was 23 years old, and reided at 2414 Carson street. Her parents live at Springdale." The above appeared last night on the "reporter's docket" at the Twenty-eighth ward station-house. In those few lines there rests a tale of romantic suicide that vesterday caused a stir of excitement all over the Southside, and is seldom paralleled for ineresting details. Lizzie Miller was well known on the Southside, and had an excellent reputation. For some time she lived with the family of For some time she lived with the family of Mrs. Al Boise, South Sixteenth street, and later was employed in the Southside laundry. Last Monday she left the laundry, and was employed by Mrs. Budee, of South Eighteenth and Carson streets. Friday morning she left the latter place about 7:30 o'clock, and said she was going to a picoie at Kinney's Grove, and as she left she told Mrs. Budee that if she should be brought back with her head broken, Mrs. Budee must not be surprised. She also said, earlier in the morning, that she was troubled over some stories ing, that she was troubled over some stories that had been told about her. She did not return, and when the news was spread last evening that a girl had committed suicide, Mrs. Budee laughed and said: "Maybe it's my girl; she has not returned." And sure enough, it was.

NOT A PICNIC FOR HER. Instead of going to the picnic, Lizzie went agreements made by the Royal Company to her former boarding place, Mr. A. Herb's, have not been carried out. Moorhead wants 2414 Carson street, and said she had come on a visit. She seemed depressed in spirits all day, and in the evening said she wanted to write some letters, and sat up after the others had retired. About 11:30 o'clock the young people of the house came home from th pienie. John R. Daniels, one of the pienie goers, also a boarder in the house, saw Lizzie in the dining room and went in to borrow a pen. She looked deathly pale, and he noted the fact, but she refused to tell him what was the matter, until about 12 o'clock, when she admitted that she had taken paris green. She cautioned him not to tell, and said she was homeless and forsaken, and had wanted to die.

was writhing in terrible agony. A few minutes before, Mrs. Nurse had some words with her husband, and, losing control of herself, she suddenly darted away from the parlor, where the altercation ecurred, and, rushing up stairs to her room ocked herself in the apartment.

SENT ON A TERRIBLE ERRAND. "I can't do anything with her," said Mr. Nurse. "You go up and quiet her."

A low, bitter cry sounded from above, and at the command of Nurse, a boy, who was in attendance, hurried up the stairway to Mrs. Nurse's room. He forced the door open, and started back aghast as he beheld the form of the unfortunate woman lying prostrate on the floor, her white face distorted with pain, and a bottle of paris green lying beside her that told its own sad story. The poy called excitedly to Mr. Nurse, who sprang immediately up the stairs into the room, and comprehending the situation at a glance, dis-patched a messenger for the Allegheny Gen-eral Hospital ambulance.

The circumstances that led to the rash act

I noticed that her infatua-tion was growing, and stopped all further proceedings at once, but a certain doctor on Robinson street, Allegheny, filled my wife with false accounts of my relations with the Beaver Falls lady, and in consequence, the first thing I knew, Mrs. Nurse had a warrant issued for my arrest. I went to Ohio for a few days, when my friends tele-graphed me that my wife said she believed I was true to her and should return home, which I did. Soon she began a tirade of abuse against me, and one day struck me on the head in the office with a paper weight. To-night she renewed her tirade of abuse, and her mind becoming unbalanced she flew upstairs to poison herself before I knew what she was doing."

MINERS' TROUBLES NOT YET SETTLED

At the meeting of the Central Trades Council last night the committee appointed to investigate the alleged proposition to settle the Jeannette case for $5,000, reported progress. One night last week the committee went to the Southside and took the testimony of two important witnesses. One of these, it is said, testified to having received the proposition through his attorney. The offer was to the effect that for a consideraoffer was to the effect that for a considera-tion of $5,000 sufficient evidence was not to be presented to convict the defendants.

Another witness is quoted as having said the proposition was laid before the Council of L. A. 300, but that body refused to con-sider it. The committee said in its report last night that it would be able to make a final report on the matter at the next meeting.

The committee appointed to draw up resolutions setting forth the reasons leading to the offering of a resolution by one of the members in council in connection with the Jeannette trial reported the following reso lutions, which were adopted:

WHEREAS. The miners employed in the mines of the Scott Haven district, operated by William L. Resolved, That the Central Trades Council of Western Pennsylvania do hereby extend ympathy and encouragement to the oppressed niners of Scott Haven, in their heroic and noble struggle for honest and fair dealing. Resolved, That the said W. L. The trouble between the M. M. P. U. and the K. of L. was not settled. The Executive Committee reported that they could not settle the difficulty until they secured from the Musical Union the names of people who had been suspended from their organization, so their dues could be paid and have withdrawal cards issued to them, as this is the basis of settlement proposed by the Musical Union. The matter was left in the hands of the Executive Committee.

Thomas Baldwin, Peter Cunningham and Hubert Mecheral were admitted as delegates, and the council adjourned.

NO SETTLEMENT YET.

A Fruitless Conference Between Journey men and Bose Tinners.

Committees from both the journeymen and boss tinners went into a session yesterday, but failed to arrive at any settlement. Both committees were supposed to be empowered to act in the matter, but neither expressed a willingness to surrender their position as taken at the outstart.

. The tinners hold a meeting to-day at 2 P. M., at 537 Smithfield street, at which it is A. Rasner, of Rasner & Dinger, and John McElroy, of McElroy Bros., were seen last night. They said it developed at the conference yesterday that the Workmen's Com-mittee had not full power to act as it was supposed they had, but that they wanted to know what the bosses would do so that they could report back to the union before finally settling the matter. The power of the Bosses' Committee ended yesterday and nothing mittee is appointed, and this cannot be done until the meeting of the association next Friday evening.

The master tinners say they have secured an admission from the journeymen that the strike is irregular and contrary to the constitution, and they will do nothing now unless the men show a willingness to make concessions. They are anxious for the men to both sides, but they want to see the busi ness conducted according to the provisions of their constitution.

A SERIOUS MINERS' STRIKE.

Many Workmen Leaving Irwin, Other Suffering From Idleness.

Inquiries about the Irwin miners' strike resterday developed the fact that the situaon remains unchanged, with the probability of an indefinite stoppage. The strike promises to be really more serious than previous ones, owing to the fact that the men who were most active in demanding the advance, have left town and secured work at other mines, while those remaining idle largely men who are not in sympathy with the rest, are compelled to suffer serious loss rather than seek work outside the Westmoreland and the Penn Company mises These men, although in the majority, are thus forced to remain idle, fearing "blackleg."

operators. A conference will be held early in the week. President Rae expressed him-selt as believing the matter would be ar-ranged without any trouble. The Scale Will be Ready. The idea in inventing the Æolian was to nake an instrument that a person could play without the years of practice made ecessary by the piano and organ and at the same time to have it in no way mechan-ical, but capable of the most delicate shad-sion. This understood, it was reasoned that if the execution could be done for the player, and the tempo and expression left under his control, the desired result would be achieved.

The Æolian is an embodiment of these ideas, and upon it, with one week's prac-tice, a person with no musical education whatever can become a really fine per-former. The great feature of the instrument is the high class of music it performs. The catalogue embraces nearly 5,000 pieces, including the symphonies, operas and over-tures of all the great masters. The rendition of these pieces is wonderfully accurate, and serves to make the Æolian a wonderful

NEWSPAPER MENHAVE A REUNION

And Revisit the Places Where They Labored and Suffered. HOW THE STRICKEN CITY IS GROWING

Through the gathering dusk of May 31, 1889, a special train stole out of the Union depot, changed across the intersecting rails, and rushed with headlong speed along the track toward the East. In the single, swaying car, which formed the train, sat a handful of Pittsburg reporters, silent and apprehensive. Vague news of Johnstown's awful fate had been flashed over the wires, and these tew newspaper men formed the vanguard of the great press army which was soon to pour into that ill-fated city of the Conemaugh.

burg but for the fact that part of the money to be raised is for the benefit of the old soldiers cared tor in the West Penn Hospital. The committee is much encouraged Needless to tell how these pioneers found at the interest taken in the affair, and the willingness with which all who have been the object of their quest; needless repeat that woeful tale which the world already knows so well. That wild trip by special train, along the flooded valley, was but the beginning of hardships innumerable for the reporters who made it, and for those who followed them. Water and Business Tax Books Being Sleeping in wrecked limekilns, or rat-haunted mill garrets; tramping through mud between huddled corpses, or up to their knees in the seething torrent; eating when they could get for food, and not infrequently Water Assessor Miller yesterday completed the work of assessing water rents for 1890. He will turn his books over to the City Treasurer to-morrow morning.

AN ENTIRELY DIFFERENT SCENE. A very different scene was presented a the Union depot yesterday when over 40 Pitts-burg newspapermen, with a host of guests, principally ladies, boarded another special train, drawn by the same engine which last year conveyed the earliest flood reporters to Johnstown. The occasion was a reunion of the reportorial and editorial staffs of Pittsburg papers, in memory of the trials and labors of the press during the flood.

On this latest 31st of May there was no furious rush of the special along the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks to Johnstown; no dread of lurking danger weighed at the heartstrings of these holiday-makers. In the two coaches, and the combination smok ing car, laughter and small talk resounded merrily, while from the dining and kitchen cars in the front, came the sounds of busy preparations for lunch. Then, too, the trip was not made through the twilight, but be-neath the full glare of a glorious summer

The train started at 8:10 A. M., and rolled leisurely out of the depot yards, quickening its pace but little while passing through the suburban districts. Pretty orange-colored badges were distributed by Messrs. W. S. Connelly and A. S. McSwigan, the respective Chairman and Treasurer of the Reunion Committee. Then everybody settled down to quiet enjoyment; remuiscences of the od and comments on the exquisite woodland scenery of the Conemaugh being rite in the coaches and smoking car.

Many faces well known in the newspaper profession were recognized among the excursionists. The most prominent among the guests were: Colonel Thomas E. Watt. Messrs, J. B. Scott, E. D. Smith, and Francis Guffy. Mr. Robert Pitcam, Superintendent of the Pennsylvania Railroad who had kindly supplied the special train, was unable to accompany the party. OUT OF THE BUINS. About 10:15 A. M. Johnstown was reached and as the train ran into the Union station many were the expressions of surprise from reporters who had seen the shattered city. The marvelously rapid growth of second Johnstown from the ruins of the first astonished them considerably. Indeed reporters, once very wise in the topography of tumble down streets, were wholly at fault It was too late for the newspaper men to attend the memorial services held in the diff. erent churches, but they visited many old scenes and old acquaintances during the interval preceding lunch.

when the party left the train and scattered over the city, it was amusing to note how

Lunch over, the city and suburbs were sgain traversed. Much hospitality was shown by the residents, in spite of the fact that so many of their houses were draped with black. ON THE RETURN TRIP. At 4 o'clock the train left for South Fork. where a short stay was made, after which where a short stay was made, after which began the return trip to Pittsburg, perhaps the most enjoyable part of the whole excur-sion. The sun had sunk almost to the horrizon; the air was deliciously cool; it was that pleasant hour, "'Tween the gloamin' and the mirk When the kye come hame." The shadows lay darkling down the long glens through which the train raced a madeap race with the foaming mountain stream. Overhead, on either side, swelled wave upon wave of foliage, the towering

The many thousands having musical taste and bloffs being clothed to their summits with innate ability, but who are unable to give trees and brushwood. the years of practice necessary to enable them to perform with the accuracy de-manded by their correct ear and cultivated taste, are with the Æolian able to gratify their love of music and play for themselves Lounging back in their cushioned seats, the excursionists were swept by Johnstown and Latrobe, along the sinuous Conemaugh and down through the East Liberty valley, into the heart of roaring Pittsburg again. So the reunion ended, as all such delightful any and all classes of music. One of the most remarkable things about the Æolian things must end; but those who had partici-pated in its pleasures, did not part without is its peculiarly beautiful tone. It is not like the piano or organ, but resembles more a solemn covenant to renew the pleasant ex-perience when the 31st of May again comes than anything else a small orchestra with
