Players' League Men Dissatisfied That the Schedule Was Not Changed.

DIRECTOR KERR'S OPINION.

Without Conflicting Dates Both Teams Would be Prosperous.

SECRETARY SCANDRETT TALKS.

He Says That Neither Pittsburg Club Will Draw Crowds to the Games.

THE SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

A portion of the local contingent of the Players' National League are greatly dissatisfied at the outcome of the meeting called to discuss a change of the schedule, looking to the prevention of conflicting dates. It is claimed that should there be but one game a day there would be money for both teams, that the cranks would attend whichever team was in the city, and that there are a great many persons who can only go at certain times in the season and these times are liable to come when both clubs are away. There are hundreds of men who only get to attend a few games a year on this account and it is agreed that they would go twice as often if a team was at home nearly all the time. To this argument many add the statement that during long trips abroad many regular patrons become weaned away and do not attend the games upon the return of the team. It is claimed that if there were no conflicting dates, the enthusiasts could go nearly all the time and thus keep up a lively interest in the sport. WANTED PEACE, NOT WAR.

Director W. W. Kerr is one of the centleme who favors and has always talked for a nonconflicting schedule. To THE DISPATCH Mr.

"I am now, and always will be, in favor of a non-conflicting schedule. It is business. We do not want to kill the National League, and one or the other must fail if this cutthroat policy is kept up. With non-conflicting schedules both organizations could live and make money. For my part I cannot see why this policy of war is to be continued.

"I was not informed that them."

policy of war is to be continued.

"I was not informed that there was to be a meeting until the day on which it was held, and then supposed that Hanion or Tener knew of it and would attend. Tener always represents the capital of the team and Hanion the players, so I supposed we would be well repre-ers, so I supposed we would be well represented."

The fact that Pittsburg had no representative at the meeting looks very bad. The Players' League people knew this city wanted the dates changed, and why the officials were not notified of the meeting in time to attend does not appear. Mt. Kerr would doubtless have been glad to have gone to New York to state his side of the case, and being a very conservative gentleman, would also liked to have beard the other side of the case. It looks as though the meeting was a cut and dried inder-ement of the present schedule.

When Secretary Scandrett, of the National League, was asked his opinion of the meeting and its results, he replied:

MR. SCANDRETT'S VIEWS.

MR. SCANDRETT'S VIEWS. "It could not have suited me better, and I think it means that the fight will not last much think it means that the fight will not last much longer. Our team has done bud enough while away, but they have played better ball than the local Brotherhood club. It was prophesied that our men would not be able to hold their own in fast company, but Hanlon said he had a leam of stars and was prepared to break even with all the crack teams in the new League. The people are disappointed in both teams. Our people are disappointed in soil teams. Our men won two more games on the trip than was expected. The other team did not take as many as they thought they would. The result is that neither team will draw flies When they return, and it won't take long to settle this business here. We've prepared ourselves for a much longer siege than we will have, and every thing looks all right at present."

Another gentleman connected with the Pittaburg National League team said: "Pay day will be here as soon as the clubs get to the city and then someone will have to go down in tifeir pockets which will cause a squeal. It is a question of who will continue turowing away money the longest and I don't believe the Players' League backers will last forever."

Mr. Kerr takes a very sensible view of the Players' League backers will last forever."

Mr. Kerr takes a very sensible view of the conflicting date question. THE DISPATCH was one of the first papers to advocate a change. Now that the Players' League people have decided not to make the change nothing more can be said than that it's a pity to thus endanger the popularity of the sport, as with conflicting dates it will certainly be killed. Even if one League succumbs at this stage of the fight it will take years to put the game on the footing it had before the movement began.

A Washington Man Learns That Mr. Nim-

Young informing him that he has disposed of his luterest in the Pittsburg League Gub, and hereafter he will simply be a looker-on in basehall matters. Mr. Nimlek probably saw "the type-writing on the wall" and concluded that it was best for him to stand from under. In his communication to League headquarters Mr. Nimlek states that his retirement from baseball matters is due to the pressure of private business, but he has disposed of his interest in the League to a gentleman who will be equally as zealous and enterprising in behalf of the League's success. He adde that he should have retired from baseball several years ago, but the game is so fascinating that he lound if very difficult to break away from the piensant associations that cluster around the National League. ## SULLIVAN IN THE CITY.

The Champion Barqueted and Tonated the Parlors of the Duquesar.

the Pariors of the Dequesar.

The famous John L. Suillvan arrived in the city last night, accompanied by his side partner, Joe Lannon and The Paymaster Company. Suilivan has a host of friends in Pittaburg, who know him as a manly fellow, ever ready to do a good turn. A few of the hig fellow's admirers prepared a reception for him last night, and he was royally hanqueted in the pariors of the Hotel Duquesne. Twenty-one genilemen were seated around the table, and there was an amount of jovial good feeling pleasing to see. All were giad to welcome the champion to Pittsburg, and he was happy to again see his many friends.

Mr. Russell, of the comnany, made a few remarks, thanking the gentlemen for their generous hospitality, and proposed a toast to the health of the lamous John L. Mr. Stillwagon, of this city, responded in a very pleasant vein. Others followed, including the champion.

Suilivan is apparently in first-class health and ready to uphold his reputation as a puglist against all comers. He had nothing to say in regard to the proposed battles with either Jackson or McAuliffe.

Suilivan's colors, designed by himself and the handlewors of his mother, will be placed on exhior McAuliffe.

Sullivan's colors, designed by himself and the handlwors of his mother, will be placed on exhibition to-day. He will be found all week at the Bijon, where he and Joe Lannon spar three rounds in the course of the play.

After the banquet last evening the entire party were the guests of John Stroup.

A FIVE MINUTE FIGHT.

Brief But Decisive Battle Between Herald and Standard.

EL PARO, Tex., June I.—The sporting fraternity have been in fever heat for the past three weeks over the battle between Charles Herald, of St. Paul, and Tom Standard (colored), the hardhitter of the Southwest, for $250 a side and gate receipts. A chartered train left the Southern Pacific depot at 4:30 with the purilists and hundreds of eager speciators, under the management of James McDermott. Five miles west of the city, just over the line into New Mexico, the train halted, a ring was quickly made and Charles Dowd chosen referee.

Time was called at 5:15. Standard led with a right-hander on Herald's side, made two clever ducks, when Herald caught him in the neck with a swinging right-hand blow and knocked him silly. Standard falled to respond at call of time and the fight was given to Herald. The battle lasted 5 minutes and 10 seconds. Standard weighed 142 and Herald 180%, and was a perfect picture of manhood. and Standard.

LEAGUE GAME TO-DAY.

Captain Asson and Men Arrive in the City Ready for Business. Captain Anson and the Chicago League colts arrived in the city last night, prepared to try a hand against the local Leaguers. The captain says he is very well satisfied with his team's work in the East, though they might have done better. In the East, though they might have done better. He says the attendance favors the League and not the Brotherhood, but the latter swell their figures to make it look big. Amon thinks the League has the best of the fight all around, and says the players are beginning to wish they hadn't made the break. The Chleago battery to-day will be Hutchiuson and Kittridge.

In the game to-day some new faces will be seen on the local team. The battery will probably be Sowders and Berger.

The affair ended with an ail-round singing match between a number of brawney Hooslers who were present and the Chicago crowd, which included a batch of Board of Trade men. The natives were routed.

BOODLING IN CANADA

The Prime Minister of Quebec is Accused of Complicity.

CHARGES MADE BY A CONTRACTOR. Money Was Necessary to Get Big Bills Through Parliament.

LACONIC BUT TELL-TALE DISPATCHES

QUEBEC, June 1 .- All the boodle exposes of this most prolific of Canadian candal seasons have been cast completely into the shade by developments in connection with Contractor Whelan's bribery of two successive Governments of the Province. The Murphy-McGreevy dock swindle of $250,000, the Rykert land deal of $200,000, which cost its author his seat in the Canadian Parliament, and General Middleton's looting of turs in the Canadian Northwest, all pale into insignificance before a scandal that proclaims the shame of the principal public men of the Province of Quebec.

Shorn of its unnecessary and unimportant details, this new story of national humiliation is as follows: Some eight years J. P. Whelan, of Montreal, then editor and proprietor of the Daily Post and True Witness, signed a contract with the then con-servative government of the Province of Quebec to build a new Court House in the city of Quebec at a cost of $170,000. Up to the present time, however, $700,000 have been paid out to the contractors, and Whelan has filed claims for $300,000 more.

QUARREL BETWEEN PARTNERS. The present scandal, like that of the Mo-Greevy dock scandal, might have been suc-cessfully kept from the public but for a quarrel between partners over the division of the boodle. Whelan's partner in the Court House contract was Daniel Ford, a practical architect and builder, who supplied most of the mechanical experience, while Whelan supplied the money. Ford did not furnish all the experience, however, for that necessary to successful political financiering was supplied by Whelau. Notwithstanding the large amount of boodle paid out to the politicians, both partners have already made handsome fortunes out of their share of the profits derived from the Court House contract. Whelan's last claim for extras, in consideration, it is said, of the payment of large sums to leading politicians, he succeeded in having referred to arbitration. Whelan was clever enough to take for his lawyer Mr. Beausoliel, M. P., Premier Mercier's law partner; but, complaining that he bled him too much for political subscriptions, Whelan some time ago dropped him and re-tained in his place Mr. Prefontaine, M. P., another influential politician, and a law partner of the Premier's son-in-law, Mr. Gouin. Thereupon Beausoliel took up the case of Ford, Whelan's old partner, and In Chicago, Tom Hanley and Joe French fought target representation in regard to his disposal of certain moneys that had passed through his hands.

JUST LIKE TWEED.

"I paid it to the boodlers," said Whelan, "to prevent the rejection by the House of my claim of $155,000." Report has it that when his $300,000 claim was referred to arbitration an unclaim was referred to arbitration an un-derstanding was arrived at by which Preiontaine, the lawyer of Whelan and partner of Premier Mercier's son-in-law, was to receive 10 per cent of all the extra recovered by Whelan before the arbitration, the appointment of which arbitration was made by the Premier, and that an arrange-ment was actually made or offered the arbitrator of 2 per cent upon all sums accorded by him to Whelan. The arbitration gave Whelan $155,000, and it is over the division of this amount between Whelan and his late partner, Daniel Ford, that the details of the boodling have come out. No record of payments made by Whelan in late years can be found, for books are missing, and he claims that payments of sums aggregating $100,000, of which he was bled by politicians, cannot, for obvious reasons, be esablished by him.

The unsavory part of the scandal is that though a change of government took place three years ago, Whelan seems to have succeeded equally well in bribing both parties, while in power, to recognize his extortionate demands. He claims that while the Legislature was in session last February he paid $10,000 to Errest Pacaud for the purpose of having his item of $155,000 pass the House. This item was included, according to the decision of the arbitrator, in the Government's estimates of expenditure, and Whelan claims that Pacaud notified him that the item would be withdrawn from the estimates unless he handed over $10,000. CLOSE TO THE PREMIER. Pacaud is the confidential friend and adteur, the Premier's personal organ, is his election organizer and Secretary-Treasurer of his party's Chief Executive Electoral Committee Parand should be supported by the committee of the commi Committee. Pacaud admits reception of the $10,000 from Whelan, but states that its object was to buy off the opposition in the House, not on the part of his own and Mer-cier's political friends, but on the part of their conservative opponents. He says he did not keep the money, but gave it to a friend of the opposition, and in corrobora-tion of his assertion points to the fact that from the date the money was handed him by Whelan in Montreal the opposition to Whelan produced telegrams that look as of Mr. Mercier was a party to the whole transaction. Immediately after Mr. Pacaud received the $10,000 from him in Montreal, he (Pacaud) telegraphed Mercier in Quebec as follows:
