been a complete revolution in the gardener's trade in this vicinity. The land I am now working was worked by my father more than a half century ago. When he first invested the cost of ground was $70 per acre. Now it is valued at $1,000 per acre. Now it is not of gardening goes back to war times, when everything produced by the earth commanded high prices. Then it paid to bring hay, potatoes and watermelons to Pittsburg markets. My father gathered in many an honest dollar at the old Scotch Hill market on Second avenue, by selling sweet potatoes and watermelons to the old-timers. In those old days there was no competition with Southern markets. Rajruads had not then griding each and their rights there ware an unknown quantity in Pittsburg markets Gardeners in this section were monarchs of all they surreyed, and their rights there ware to all sections of the land there came great to all sections of the land there came great to all sections of the land there came great changes in our occupation. "But with the advent of railroads reaching to all sections of the land there came great changes in our occupation. If we attempted now to follow in the same lines as our fathers we would be left every time. The same meth-ods followed now as a quarter of a century ago would bring starvation. Our main dependence at this day is on early garden atuff. Ground has become too valuable in the vicinity of Pittsburg for late crops.

Early Fruits and Vegetables.

"Early corn, tomatoes, asparagus, etc., are now our mainstay. In the line of late staff we are no longer able to compete with gardeners and farmers at a distance, where land and labor are cheap. The early bird catches the worm, and the early gardener in this region reaps the best profits. Our best profits of late years are from early corn. Last year I brought to this market fully 2,000 hushels of roasting ears, and prices av saged $1 per bushel. One-half of the re-celpt, probably, went to expenses in the way of taxes, labor, freight, etc. Roasting ceiys, probably, went to expenses in the way of taxes, labor, freight, etc. Roasting cars do not bear long shipment, and hence, that which comes from the South cannot compete with the home grown article. We consider that we are doing well to have corn ready for market by the 4th of July, Prospects are that this year it will be later than usual. There was some Southern corn on the market last Saturday, but it was very poor stuff. Gardener's prospects for this season. Gardeners' prospects for this season, far, satisfactory. To be sure, the season are, so far, satisfactory. To be sure, the season has been backward, and the yield has been below average. But this is more than offset by the better prices we have received for stuff. We have had better prices for our asparagus, lettuce, and in fact, all garden products this season, so far, than we have been receiving for a year or two past. This means more money and less work to the This means more money and less work to the producer. The consumer has to pay more for his stuff these backward seasons. But so far as the gardener's side is concerned there is no reason to complain of the season so far." In the interview with this market gardener it was developed that the annual cost of manure for the 27 acres of land cultivated by him was not less than four hundred dollars on an aver-are, and that in the busiest part of last season freight bils were up to thirty dollars per week.

It is understood that options have been secured on several properties not far from those in question at still higher figures.
