The total number of men employed in the district above described will reach 6,400, and estimating that, on an average, five persons are sustained by the labor of each adult employed in a manufacturing establishment, the population that could easily be supported by the industries named, not to mention many others, that will probably locate in the Turde Creek Valley in the near future, would reach the surprising sum of 32,000. The figures show conclusively the solid foundation upon which is based the value of property in the Turtle Creek Valley.

REAL ESTATE.

Of all classes of investment, those in real estate should be the most carefully considered, and the reason is plain. Based upon solid values, such investment is the surest and the safest that can be made. On the other hand, nothing depreciates in value with such startling rapidity or is harder to dispose of at any price than real estate, which, at the time of its purchase, has for for its sole recommendation a "lovely situation" or a "perfect A LLEGHENY RESIDENCE—A NEW SEVEN-ROOM house with all modern conveniences, corner of South Diamond and Young, Allegheny, sear Parks. The experience of persons who have thus hastily and inconsiderately bought property for no better reasons than those enumerated and afterwards repented at leisure-an experience so oft repeated all over the world in a greater or less degree-should teach men that only in the natural centers of population, where ample opportunities for employment are provided, can the people at large safely afford to invest in real estate. The most correct standard of judgment, therefore, as to the value of property is furnished by the truthful answer to the question: "How large a population can be supported by the well established industries of the district in which

WOMEN'S WORK FOR THE SOLDIERS

City Lots Offered at $200 That Are Now Worth That Much a Foot.

HINTS AT OLD HABITS AND CUSTOMS

TWRITTEN FOR THE DISPATCH.) Old records are interesting. Old papers will oftentimes bring to mind whole chapters of history that would otherwise be forgotten. A single copy of THE DISPATCH in 1863 calls freshly to memory the whole story of "the war." The notices of the solciers' aid societies bring back the days when every girl and woman was knitting socks for the soldier or making shirts for him, or collecting money to spend for his comfort in the field. Women seemed to live only in thinking of those at the front. With much of fashions, and yet looking back over the old records the advertisements are about as usual. People died and got married and dressed and dinnered and carried on about the same as to-day, if we may judge by THE DIS-PATCH, that furnishes the picture of the times. Names differ, styles have changed, new fashions have come up, but life goes on about as of old. In the copy just before us "hair jewelry" is ad-vertised specially, but no one cares for hair jewelry now; "panel papers" are largely advertised, but panel papers went out long

WHAT LOTS SOLD FOR. Lots were advertised in the Eighth ward from $200 to $500 a piece—a house and garden well stocked with grapes, strawberries and other fruit, is advertised to rent at $150 year, at the corner of Sheffield and Bidwell street, but no such rent would pay for that corner now. Joseph Horne advertises skirt braids, twilled tapes and shoe laces, and a full line of notions, at less than Eas ern prices, at his store 77 and 79 Market street. Who remembers him there? At that time Lawrenceville was a borough and East Liberty was likely out in the country. Ambrotypes were in style then, and Drake's Plantation Bitters and hooped skirts. Among the amusements we find "An Old Folks concert" with Emily Page advertised to sing "When This Cruel War is Over." Who was Emily Page? Was she the singer who figured in the fainting scene at Tete-doux's concert-a sketch of which was "Stan" Reinhart's first bid for fame? Looking back now her unpopularity was some thing amazing, and hardly to be accounted for. By all of the women singers of the chorus she was held in derision for some reason or other, and not a spark of sympathy was shown, as it was thought she was shamming. Reinhart's sketch, showing Mr. Tetedoux, Mr. Mellor and others as deeply concerned, was inimitable. In these day it would have gotten into the papers, but then it was only "passed around" among those interested. The reading of the old paper recalls much that is interesting and has long been lost sight of. Mr. Weyman and Wm. Lyon are recorded as taking over one hundred boxes of good things to the soldiers at Murfreesboro, the girt of the ladies of the Pitts-burg Subsistence Committee. Nowadays the ladies would carry their own gifts, ther the men had to do everything in the public line. The girls did the work behind the scenes, but the world would have been shocked if they had prayed, or spoken, or shown themselves capable of "bossing" anything under the gaze of mankind.

MIGHT HAVE SAVED THE HALF. On one page of the old paper published in 1863 we read with interest a letter from Edward Jay Allen to Mrs. Thurston in response to a generous contribution to the which she was President. In this letter, after earnest thanks and a relation of how the supplies were appreciated by the soldiers, the Colonel says he feels assured the presence of women in the camp would de-crease the ratio of deaths one-half. "These poor sick soldiers," he says, "bear up un-der severe privations until endurance is tasked beyond limit and the prostration is so great that all powers of reaction seem gone. They need such tender nursing as only woman can give. I ask for furloughs to send them home to get it, and after eight or ten days they come perhaps—but the men are dead." On the same page there is a gloomy letter from the Sixty-first Regiment, which relates that things are in a very bad way, and that Captains Bryson and Crawford and Lieutenants Haldeman, Jones and Rippey have resigned and gone home, and that Lieuten-ants Brown and McGlaughlin have gone home without leave. "Desertions," reads the letter, "are numerous and alarming 75 left our regiment since last pay day. We wonder if these are the boys who are everlastingly clamoring for back pay and pensions, and threatening every Congress-man with political death who does not vote for a pension that will include deserters. BRIDGET MURPHY'S TROUBLES. Another item on the same page is to the effect that Bridget Murphy was found "not guilty of selling liquor without a license."

As appears she was a married woman, and Judge Stowe charged that the law presumed she was acting under compulsion of her busband, and must be acquitted, unless the contrary was shown. The jury found Mrs. Murphy "not guilty," but sentenced her to pay the costs. What queer justice it is for those found innocent to pay the costs all the same. Still they do it nowadays. Juries and verdicts seem not to have improved with added years, In the same paper the arrival of Mrs. Jane G. Swisshelm, editor of the St. Cloud Democrat, is announced. She was on her way to Washington, presumably to give Mr. Lincoln a piece of her mind as to the management of Minnesota, and to argue against the pardon of the leaders of the terrible Indian massacre in that State. She was also anxious to secure women compositors in Pittsburg to take out to St. Cloud to 'run" her paper.

That sil were not patriotic and devoted to the Union and Abraham Lincoln is shown by a quotation from the Harrisburg Patriot, says "Lincoln is a despot and Stanton Among other items that the eye takes in with a glance are concerts by Gottschalk and a lecture by Ralph Waldo

Emerson, while Matilda Heron was playing All of these have passed from the stage of life, We learn that the men of '63 dyed their hair and whiskers, and the advertisement states that the work would be warranted at prices. How they must have looked! An old paper is a mine of histori-
