HOGS AT THE TABLE,

A Hotel Clerk Frozen Out of the Dining Room for Two Years by

Some Things He Had to See. ORDERS GIVEN FOR ALL IN SIGHT.

An English Numismatician After a Valuable Collection of Mound Relies in Columbus, Ohio.

A VISIT IN VAIN TO BISHOP PHELAN.

Just a Trace of Rebel Tet in a One-Armed Confederate Veteran.

Several drummers were leaning against a hotel counter yesterday chatting with the clerk, when the subject turned to eating and drinking. One remarked that he had his opinion of the man who would order a lot of dishes, frequently from curiosity, and then, often without tasting many of them, leave few things. The food is wasted and goes to the swill barrel.

"Well, that is a fact," spoke up the elerk. "There is so much about the tables that is wasted by the guests. I have not been in the dining room for two years. The fact is, I seldom go there, for when I do I always see something that ruffles my temper, and I keep away.

AN ECONOMICAL DAUGHTER. "I remember once when I worked in a Philadelphia hotel the proprietor had a daughter of a very economical turn. When anw a waiter going to the table with two lamb chops she always stopped him and took one away, with the remark that one was enough, and the other wouldn't be eaten. It is customary, however, in serving lamb chops to give two, but it is also true that only one is usually devoured. Of course if a guest wanted another lamb chop he got it, but we used to have lots of fun with that Suddenly one of the drummers gave the current of conversation a twist, and it flowed to the subject of eggs. It was the drummer's inning, and be delivered himself thus: "Never eat an egg omelet. They look pretty and may taste all right, but I wouldn't vouch for the age of the eggs. Old cooks tell me that when an egg is a little off color they always keep them to make omelets. Sometimes you can fry the odor out of an egg, but the safest way to eat them is peached. Why, you ask. Because you can't peach a decayed egg."

SOME FUNNY PROPLE.

At this point the clerk once more entered the arena: "We have some funny people eat here," he began. "I know one man who never eats anything but fried tripe. He never takes any dinner, but he revels at breakfast and supper with his favorite dish.

The other night he rushed into the hotel about 10 o'clock. 'By George,' he exclaimed, 'I ran here from the Baltimore and Ohio depot, for fear the dining room would be closed and I couldn't get any tripe.' The doors wereinot closed and he got his favorite dish.

'I know another man who is fond of German pancakes, and he won't eat anything else when he can get them. Not long since he got mad because we charged him extra for them. Pancakes were not on the bill of fare, but he ordered them and they had to be made specially. He couldn't see that it made any difference, but the line must be drawn somewhere. Like the man who wanted tried oysters. They were served raw, but he wanted them the other, way; he got them, and had to pay extra. He couldn't anderstand, either, that there was a differ-ence between a fried and a raw oyster."

NOTHING BY HALVES. After this speech by the clerk the subject of drinking was taken up: "Pittsburgers never do things by halves," remarked a drummer. "I always know them by the size of the drinks they take. They pay good prices for their whisky, and seldom fail to drink a full glass. I remember once I saw a fellow lay down a quarter and then fill up the glass to the brim. The bartender took the money. 'No change?' asked the drinker. 'No, we charge 25 cents for a tumbler, 10 cents for a drink. You know what you got.' There was silence for the space of a half hour, and then the man at the counter quietly edged to the door and

It seems that he did not know of Bishop Phelan's departure for Europe, and came on here in order to introduce a new religious order into Pittsburg. The new religious order into Pittsburg. The order is called the "Brothers of the Poor," and is rather like the temale order of "Sisters of the Poor," so well known in France and Belgium. Father Garvey has introduced the order into Baltimore and New York, and being an old friend of Bishop Phelan's thought he could get a foot-hold here. When he found that Bishop Phelan had left he decided to wait until that prelate shall return from the far East. There are branches in fifty cities in the United States, and over six hundred members. The society has existed for over seven years. Mr. Pasko says: "I want to see if I cannot bring your employing printers round to my opinions. I want to make Pittsburg our fifty-first city."

A Distinguished Numismatist Looking After Some Trensures.

Mr. Lloyd G. Woodside, of Clapham, near London, England, is staying in this city. Mr. Woodside, in his own country, is known as a distinguished numismatist all over Western Europe. He is a member of the Boyal Society of Numisinatists, in the Boyal Society of Numisinatists, in Household goods packed for shipment London, and an honorary member of the Haugh & Krenan, 33 and 34 Water St.

"Societie Numismatique Française." When seen yesterday, Mr. Woodside said: "Although not an official delegate of the R. N. S., it is an understood fact across the water that my business is in behalf of that society. I have heard that a gentleman is now residing in Columbus, O., who has in his possession some prehis-toric coins, found among the Ohio mounds. I am now going to meet this gentleman, whose name is J. Stuart Williams, in order to induce him to sell a few of the coins, or at least permit me to have them photographed.

"I presume Pittsburg is not ancient enough to have coins interesting to a numis-matist, or, as you put it, a 'coin crank?' I have heard a good deal of this city, how-ever, and will stay here for another day."

CHARLES ACHENHEIL'S BURIAL

Funeral of a Noted Engineer, Business Ma and a Good Citizen. Business and society both sustained a evere loss by the death of Charles Achenheil, who was buried from St. Paul's Cathedral yesterday afternoon. At the time of the railway accident, which cost Mr. Achenheil's life, he was returning from Baltimore, where he had been conducting important business for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, ceased was a man of liberal cation, having graduated from Heidelberg University. He was born in Baden-Baden, and was about 48 years of the table, his appetite satisfied with only a fage. He served under his Government for some years as a civil engineer in the Black try, entering the service of the Baltimore and Ohio Rallway Company, and remained in its employ to date, except for a short time, when he was Chief Engineer of the Rochester and Pittsburg Railway. BEST BREAD BAKERS

Receive a Testimonial to Their Skill at the Hands of the Mayor.

THE M'CANDLESS PRIZES AWARDED To Three Proficient Little Pupils of the

School Kitchen. SKETCH OF A WORTHY INSTITUTION

The cooking school is a pronounced success, and one of no small proportions, either, judging from the large audience in attendance at the closing exercises vesterday afternoon, and the interest evinced in the tiny cooks, their teacher, Miss Ballou, and the tempting results of the combined skill and abor of both teacher and cooks. The literary programme preceded the seeing and sampling of the dainties that ladened the tables in the school kitchen, and was very nteresting. The exercises were held in the school hall, which was well filled with the immense class of little cooks, in charming little white frocks and white caps, occupying the reserved seats in front. On the platform were seated the distinguished gentlemen who were to make the addresses, and Miss Ballou, with Dr. W. H. McKelvy, the Chairman of the Central Board of Education, as master of ceremonies, who an-nounced Mr. D. R. Torrence, Chairman of Committee on Industrial Schools, as the first furnish a teacher for a year, if the school authorities would provide suitable room who proved a very efficient teacher and a good organizer, but whose resignation was tendered in July, nearly a year ago, and to whose place Miss Ballou was elected, with most gratifying results, as the school has increased greatly in number and popularity, and receives the co-operation of all connnected with the public schools or Board

THE PRIZE WINNERS. Congratulating Miss Ballou on her sucess as a teacher, and the public schools of Pittsburg for having made the art of cooking one of their studies, Mr. Torrence retired, and the Bread Baking Committee, tired, and the Bread Baking Committee, consisting of Mrs. A. G. McCandless, Hon. George L. Holliday and Hon. H. P. Ford presented its report, which gladdened the hearts of little Mamie Kelly, of Mt. Washington; Pearl Ruch, of Belletield, and Blanche Ward, of Belletield, and Blanche Ward, of Belletield, as the knowledge of good bread which Mrs. McCandless possessed, after living three-score of years and ten, enabled her to pronounce them the winners of the first, second and third prizes, reof the first, second and third prizes, respectively, the gentlemen having confessed spectively, the gentlemen having confessed their ignorance and left it entirely in the hands of the lady, who was much more competent to judge than a younger and less experienced woman would have been, but who consented to act only at the earnest request of her son, whose command instead of request is generally conceded to be law. The committee, represented by Han-The committee, represented by Hon. George Holliday, complimented the entire class upon their skill in bread baking, and, while awarding the three prizes, regretted that they were not possessed of one for each little pupil. Hon. H. I. Gourley, in a happy manner, presented the prizes to the successful ones, after descending from the platform that he might be on a level with the petite cooks to whom he addressed HIS FIRST STEPPING-STONE. Referring briefly to his own principalship of the Grant school, as the first stepping-stone in his life, he went on to pay Massachusetts a deserving compliment for its progress as a State, and said that while Pittsburg had to go to Boston for a cooking-school teacher, the time was not far distant when, through Miss Ballou's efforts, Pittsburg would send any number of teachers to Massachusetta. After giving the little ones a hearty invitation to celebrate the Fourth of July in a regular old-fashioned, patriotic style, under the trees in Schenley Park, the honorable Mayor presented the prizes, which Sheriff McCandless has furnished—an exquisite little ring to Mamie Kelly, a beauti-iul stick pin to Pearl Ruch, and a handsome souquet to Blanche Ward, Superintendent George J. Luckey, standing beside the three little maidens, received the prizes in their behalf, and though he said it was the first time he had ever tried to be a little girl, yet the thanks returned be a little giri, yet the thanks returned proved him quite successful in his efforts. Miss Ballou concluded the exercises by pre-senting the diplomas, and made honorable mention of little Helen Montreville, who had prepared 406 dishes in nine weeks. The company then descended to the im promptu diving room, where a beautiful sight greeted them. The tables were by far the most beautiful of the many that have been laid there, and reminded one that it was the season o flowers as well as the season of delicious eatables. Everything imaginable was to be seen, in such per ection, too-meats of every description, biscuits, doughnuts, crullers, cookies, tarts, pastry, cakes and jellies—all temptingly arranged and quickly served, to the evident satisfaction of the visitors, by the white-uniformed

VALUE OF A GOOD NAME.

Miss Louisa Simendinger Places it at the McNell Divorce Case-She Says She Lost Her Position Through It.

Miss Louisa Simendinger yesterday entered suit in Common Pleas Court No. 1 by her attorneys, Robb and Fitzsimmons and A. Fisher, for $30,000 for alleged defama-tion of character. The defendant is Mrs. Margaret McNeil, wife of Foundryman James McNeil. According to the allegations, the trouble arose out of Mctions, the trouble arose out of Mc-Neil suing his wife for a divorce, which suit terminated in a verdict for the defendant. Then Mrs. McNeil-turned the scale by bringing a suit against her husband for divorce, accusing him of infidelity, and in her statement is found Miss Simendinger's grievance, Mrs. McNeil charging that her husband had held im-proper relations with the plaintiff in this suit.

Miss Simendinger states that the accusa-Miss Simendinger states that the account tion was false, malicious and defamatory, and by reason thereof she is rendered liable to persecution, and is shunned by her neighbors and acquaintances. Also, that by reaching the same and acquaintances and any suffered in son of the charge she not only suffered in reputation, but lost a situation as saleshady in Boggs & Buhl's store, in Allegheny, where she received a salary of $18 a week. She sues generally for damages sustained to reputation, and specially for the resultant loss of her means of livelihood.

It is stated that when the scandal first arose Messrs. Boggs & Buhl said they would not discharge the plaintiff unless something further developed, but when Mrs. McNeil's statement was filed and was published in the papers the matter became published in the papers the matter became so notorious that they took cognizance of the matter and dispensed with Miss Simendinger's services. She, it is stated, waited for a vindication until it became apparent that Mrs. McNeil was not pushing the case, thus depriving her of a chance to vindicate herself, making it necessary for her to assume the offensive. The plaintiff says that previously she bore a good character.

In her divorce suit, Mrs. McNeil has ob-tained a rule on her husband to show cause why he should not make her an allowance for counsel fees and other expenses pendente

Mayor Gourley Will Make a Personal Canvass in Behalf of

A GLORIOUS INDEPENDENCE DAY. Inmates of Orphan Asylums Will Join in the Celebration. PICNIC PARTIES CORDIALLY INVITED

"Will I go to Harrisburg next week? That depends," said Mayor Gourley yester-day. "If the contributions for the oldfashioned Fourth of July are not coming in pretty freely by Tuesday, I shall stay in this city and make a personal canvass of the wealthy men of Pittsburg." City Treasurer Denniston was out of the city yesterday and, therefore, it is not known how much money has been sent in. The Mayor will be back on Monday, and it is expected that when he opens his mail he will find quite a nice sum for the celebration fund. Chief Bigelow wants everyone to thor oughly enjoy themselves. He says: "Bring out baskets full of good things and have a picnic. The park is large enough to insure comfortable degree of privacy for each party, and I will see that there is an abundant supply of lemonade and ice water on hand. I ordered 25 swings to-day. Each one will accommodate four adults or six to eight children. The roads through the park will be in good shape and parties can drive out the in their own conveyances.'

OUTING FOR ORPHANS. Actuated by a spirit of patriotism, the managers of the various flourishing orphan asylums in Allegheny are beginning to make active preparations for a glorious Fourth of July celebrations. Yesterday a round was made of the different institu-tions, and the gratifying intelligence re-ceived that the thousands of children in the care of these benevolent societies will have an opportunity to elebrate the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence in a way that will fill the hearts of the little ones with a keen feeling of patriotic pride and instill in them some ideas of the greatness of our country.

"We have been talking the matter over," said a matron at the Pittsburg and Allegheny Protestant Orphans' Asylum last evening, "and discussed the feasibility of the proposition. It is an excellent plan. The children will be delighted. We have never had any special observance of the Fourth in previous years, excepting a pleasant time at home in the way or a treat. We would like very much to make some denarture this year.

UNDER DISCUSSION. "It has been suggested that we take the children to Schenley Park. That would be charming, but there is one objection. There would be trouble in getting the little one there safely. The only ones who can go will will make provision that they may go. It is too early to say exactly what will be done, as no definite arrangements have been made as yet, but we will decide on some plan be-fore Tuesday. It would be so nice to have a regular old fashioned celebration again. I expect the little children will be well pro-vided for at home in the way of a celebra-tion. They will have all the ice cream they want, march around the building, send up Mr. W. R. Thompson's balloons, and have good time generally.

"Our older friends who have gone out "Our older friends who have gone out into the world, but not forgotten their childhood days spent in the orphans' home, will return to the bosom of the family on the Fourth of July and unite with the household in a jolly celebration. We all intend to participate in the children's jubilee if the schools of the city succeed in making arrangements for that anniversary."

OBSERVING THE FOURTH. Other asylums for orphan children report that they will observe the Fourth in a fitting manner, shooting firecrackers, etc., but no provision has been made so far in regard to going away from home to Schenley Park or other localities. One of the managers of the Pittsburg and Allegheny Home for Friend-less Children, on Washington Street, said yesterday, in reply to the reporter's query as to how they would celebrate the coming

"Our elegant flag, presented to us by the G. A. R., will float in the breeze on the Fourth, and we intend to have a splendid time, but no special arrangements for a pub-lic display have been made. On the day betore, July 3, the Central Presbyterian Church desires to give the little ones a picnic at Aliquippa."

NO ABATEMENT

NO LET UP!

Although this is supposed to be the beginning of the dull season in the Furniture and Carpet line, and other houses already look like so many graveyards,

KEECH'S

Sales continue to increase, and all on account of the Great Building and Extension Sale. Evidently there is no such word as "dull season" in Keech's business vocabulary. When such golden opportunities as these present themselves, there are no LACK OF BUYERS! NO LULL OF TRADE! At any rate, Keech's Building and Extension Sale is making things hum at the GREAT PENN AVENUE HOUSEFURNISHING EMPO-RIUM. How many thousands of dollars will be saved by those who avail themselves of it is a hard thing to tell. If you are wise, YOU WILL DELAY NO LONGER, BUT BUY THIS WEEK, BE-FORE THE BEST THINGS WILL BE GONE.

THINGS IN SEASON!
