SUMMER FOR THE TEACHERS.

It Means a Trip Over the Atlantic to Some, Sej arms at the Resorts for Others and a Quiet Time at Home for the Rest. Wedding-bells with their merry chime have the bride a happy significance, but their silence, for the school ma'am, has just as much joy for the time being. Just at present the teachers are in a state of indescribable good humor, for have they not a month's pay months' recation ishend of them, and as a retrospect, the most successful year's work ever done in the Fitsburg schools? Some of its results will be risible in the fine exhibit just completed for the Exposition next fall, which is conceded to be superior to the one sent to the Paris Exposition over a year acro, for which a medal was awarded, but it still remains in Paris. Indirectly, through some Eastern journals, Superintendent Luckey learned that if the cities that were presented with prizer wanted them they would have to send money sufficient to transmit them from Paris.

Some Will Try the Sea.

Some of the Pittsburg teachers may be found at nearly all points of the continent during va-cation, but for many the magic word "bome" cation, but for many the magic word "home" has the most restful prospect. Undonttedly, the European party of Pittsburg teachers that will sail on the steamer Devonia on July & holds the preeminence of direction, and it is to be hoped that the Old Atlantic will show a proper spirit of behavior to this distinguished party of lady teachers who will roam through Europe the next two months. The party intended sailing next Friday, but Superintendent Linckey received a telegram yesterday morning from New York informing him that the steamer Dovonia will not sail till July &

By the kindness of Mr. John Dimling, the caterer and confectioner, on Market street, the pupils of the Fourth ward school enjoyed the luxury of an ice cream festival at the close of the term. They are all very loud in their praises of Mr. Dimling.

MANY of the ex-pupils of Miss M. J. Polley. of the Scho school, gave her a delightful surprise last Friday evening. Among the party were Messrs, Will McAdams, W. Wolf, George Hommel, P. Hommel, D. Schaum, Katte Mc-Kinley, S. McCue, A. Whitehead, and many

AT the Garfield building, Nineteenth ward, ecception day was observed on Friday. At present but five of the rooms are occupied, but it is the intention of the directors to furnish the remaining three rooms during vacation, and have them ready for occupancy in Sep-tember.

Among the exhibits prepared for the Exposchool, showing the different processes that wool undergoes, from its removal from the sheep's back, to its weaving into cloth. Ac-companying it are stories on the subject from a number of punits. It is indeed a surprise in educational teaching.

THE entertainment at the Grant School last Thursday afternoon was a great success, the board work being a special feature for admira-tion. The exhibition consisted of dialogues, songs, a sensis drilt and a play representing 26 different characters, many of them being a take-off on a number of Shakesperian characters, which was very unique. The pupils were given a treat on Friday.

A NUMBER of vacaucies can be recorded. Homewood Schoot, will not be an applicant. Miss Myra Dull, of the same school, will attend a normal school the coming year. Miss E. M. Taggart, of the Mt. The vacancy caused by Miss Benton's resignation in this school is also to be filled. Miss Douthett, of the Mt. Albien School, has resigned.

A Mountight Maid. (WHITTEN POR THE DISPATOR.) We had sauntered forth at eventide
Through the blossoming lane for a stroll;
I was young and shy, but ardest-eyed,
And she was the queen of my soul.
The moon shed silvery sympathy
As we gazed in the sky of June;
"Now, what would you do," said my love to me,
"If your were the man in the moon?"

In her dimpled face I gave one glance,

In her dimpled tace I gave one giance,
And Hope leaps high to my bresst;
What lover could wish for a rarer chance
To put his fate to the test?
"If I were the man in the moon," said I,
As I gazed in her face divine,
"I'd scatter the curious clouds on high,
And for you alone I would shine.

"I'd gather the stars in a buckle bright
To gleam on your dainty shee;
To a comet I'd hitch my car to-night,
And wander through space with you,
I'd snatch—" "Now stop! that's enough! dear

And gally her laughter rung.
"If you were the man in the moon," said she
"You'd admire me and hold your tongue." -SAMUEL MINTURN PECK.

THE Bavarian Parliament proposes to reduce the annual appropriation of 100,000 marks for the purchase of works of art to 60,000 marks. The Clerical party is particularly hostile.

THE Greek Government proposes to raise a monument in the form of a mausoleum to the French, Russian and English who fell fighting for Greece during the war of independence. From the Paris Salon of 1890 the Department of Fine Arts has purchased for the State, among other things, the marble statue called "The Siren," by Denis Puech, and the land-scape by Fernand Quignon called "The Harvest."

an archeological journey through Greece and Asia Minor made in 18424 under the direction of Philippe le Bas. The plates are after designs by E. Landron. The book appears in a series called "Bibliotheque des Monuments Figures Grees et Romains." A PARIS dealer sold a violin this spring to Hall & Son, of London, for $10,000. It is a Stradivarius called "The Messiah." and was shown in 1872 at the South Kensington Museum, when its estimated value was $3,000. Musical instruments are beginning to rival pictures as costly objects to look at, for such pieces are rarely used.

Acquisitions of the Louvre include a 'V irgin Mary" by Germain Pilon, a sculptor of the gin Mary by Germain Pilon, a sculptor of the sixteenth century, which has been in the chapel at the military school of St. Cyr; a "Calvary" in oakwood, containing life-size figures of Christ, Mary and St. John, by an unknown Flemish sculptor of the early sixteenth cen, tary, which has been in a church at Nivelles, and a marble "Virgin Mary," from Ecouen-which has been for half a century at Versailles, in St. Louis' Church.

THE great megalithic underground building at New Grange, Ireland, shows signs of caving in. The entrance to this strange building is so in. The entrance to this strange building is so long, low and filthy that very few persons have ever penetrated it. Mr. George Coffey, of Dublin, proposes to take photographs of the interior by the flash light, and keep a record of its actual appearance. Those who are anxious for the preservation of prehistoric monuments in Ireland demand that stops be taken to protect New Grange from collapse.

TARIFF HALF A CENTURY AGO.

The following letter, which was written in 1832 by Mr. Andrew Murphy, father of Mr. N. Grattan Murphy, a highly respected citizen of Pittsburg, to the Hon. Harmar Denny, then representing the city at Washington, shows the depth of feeling on the tariff question even at that early day:

wool growers by the tariff of 1828 should not be abandoned so soon until things get a fair start—for under its influence it was very apparent the country prospered; in an unparalleled degree unknown in the history of any country—but this sudden and unlooked for change, which must inevitably take place in the woolen business, will undoubtedly be attended with ruinous consequences to the manufacturer and those engaged largely in the raising of wool.

to be the choice of the manufacturers, and is said to be the only man calculated to save the country from inevitable ruin, that is likely to be brought about by this outrageous attack or the industry of the country. With respect, remain, yours truly, Andrew Murphy.

tariff question even at that early day:
FLEECEDALE, July 6, 1832.
HON. HARMAR DENNY:
DEAR SIE—On my return from the East I was very much gratified to find at my house several papers sent to me by your kindness from Washington relative to the tariff, for which I return you my sincere thanks. By a paper I saw yesterday it appears the bill has passed the House of Representatives, and is now before the Senate, where I am in hopes it will be rejected, if not improved, as in my opinion as a woolen manufacturer, it would be better to have no bill than either of those I have seen. We would not know what to depend on, and be obliged to turn our attention and industry to something of more certainty.
I recret to see so many of our State Representatives deserting the manufacturers and recret to see so many of our state Representatives deserting the manufacturers and wool growers, and indeed the interest of their constituents generally; the country should feel grateful to you for your great perserverance and industry manifested throughout in favor of the protective system. The encouragement that was held out to the manufacturers and wool growers by the tariff of 1828 should not be abandoned so soon until things get a fair start
