He desires to advertise the make of goods he is selling, and in order to do so he proposes to donate a couple of hundred dollars' worth of fireworks and Japanese balloons in addition to the $500 to be paid for that purpose by the celebration committee. The Central Fireworks has come forward with a proposition to exhibit a class of young men who have taken first prize in the large cities in turning competition; also a class of girls and another of boys, who are said to be exceedingly clever.
