Ad Gumbert, the Boston pitcher, was resented with a cane yesterday at the Players' League Park by his admiring Pittsburg friends, but made a poor return for their generosity. He immediately proceeded to do up the local aggregation in the highest style of the art, allowing them only eight hits and two runs. Galvin was in the box for Pittsburg, and pitched a good strong game, but the bunching of a base on balls, an error and three hits in the fatal sixth ioning caused his downfall. The old man hurt his hand stopping a liner in the eighth inning, and Morris played with the last Boston batters, and got to the plate himself just once. CRIPPLING THE TEAM.

After Hanlon and Visner had speedily got tired in the first, Gumbert sent in a cannon shot pitch which struck Carroll on the ankle and just paralyzed him. He keeled over, and later limped from the field of battle. Quinn took his place behind the bat, atter eckley had retired the side on a loul fly. Nobody on either side looked like scoring until the third inning. Then Hanton got to first on a scratch single, and was advanced on Visner's base on balls, which was Gumbert's only instance of generosity. Quinn reached first on Brouther's error; Hanlor scored and Visner was caught at second.

Beckley and Fields flew out. BOSTON DOES BUSINESS Then all was merry as a marriage bell untill the tatal sixth, when Brouthers got to first on balls; Ke.ly made a three-bagger, Nash and Quinn singled and three runs were tailied. The game was over, although each side counted once in the eighth. The

Pournament Wine by Thirty Lengths, and the Others Are Scattered Out for a Furlong-An Uninteresting Day's Rac-

SHEEPSHEAD BAY, July 2 - The Coney Island Jockey Club brought the most successful pring meeting in its history to a close to-day The last day of the meeting was about as disagreeable as it could well be. Rain commenced to fall an hour before noon, and by racing time the track was quite heavy. This was doubly unfortunate, as the realization stakes was down for decision, and while the crack 3-year-olds were not engaged, some very fast youngsters were down as probable starters, and a good contest was looked for. It was the h race on the card. First race, one mile—Diable first, Reporter second, Granite third, Time, 1:412-5.
Second race, three-fourths of a mile—Russell first, Straubmeath second, Reckon third, Time, irist, Stratimean second, Reckon third, Time, 1-111-5.
Third race, seven furiongs—Shotover first, Vengeur second, Daisyrian third Time, 1:20.
Fourth race, the realization stakes, for 3-year-olds, all starters to pay $250, all of which to go to second and third horses as further provided; the Coney Island Jockey Club to add $10,000, and the second to receive $2,000 of the added money and two-thirds of the sarting money; the third $4,000 of the added money, and one-third of the 2starting money; colts to carry 122 pounds, filles and geldings 119 pounds, allowances, one mile and five furiongs—Starters: Torso 122, 5 to 1; Padishah 10, 10 to 1; Hanguet 10, 5 to 1; Her Highness 10, 8 2 and 7 to 5; Jersey Pat, 106, 5 to 1. Tournament was made the savorite, with Pallsade second choice and Torso and Banquet next in demand. The race was as poor a one as has ever been seen on this track. After passing the stand, it was not a question of who would win, but how much he would win by. When they got the flag Tournament at once ran out and at the end of a furiong was a length before Banquet with Padishah third. At the mile post Tournament was eight lengths in the lead, while Her Highness had passed Banquet and was in second place, Banquet third and Padishah fourth. Hamilton on Her Highness evidently expected Tournament to live and fall back, but he did nothing of the kind, and instead increased his lead attevery lump.

After the stretch was reached Tournament increased his lead still further and fall back, but he figure to the stretch was reached Tournament increased his lead still further and further, and simply galloving passed the post a winner by 20 lengths. The only interest in the race was the figure for second money. Banquet moved up rapidly in the stretch and at the furiong pole, was on even terms with Her Highness drew away and got in by a short head, while Banquet heat Padishah ten lengths for third money. Time 2:51.

Fifth race, mile and a half—Cassius first, Prather second. Eon third. Time 2:38 1-5.

Seventh race, two miles—St. Luke first, Little Jim second, Taragon third. Time 1:31-5.

The Result of the Law Suit About the

*SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.1 LEXINGTON, KY., July 2.-The recent suit of Miss Nannie Smith against W. C. France, asking for a receiver for the noted trotting stallion Red Wilkes, has taken a new sensational turn. Mr. France has just applied to the Court, asking that the partnership existing between himself and Miss Smith be dissolved, and a sale of the stallion ordered. In his petition Mr. France says Miss Smith's agent, R. Smith McCann, has annoyed him to such an extent that he feels it impracticable for him to try to carry out his contract. This will cause Red Wilkes to be put up a auction as soon as his season is over and the competition for him will be very great as he is considered the best son of George Wilkes.

WITH LADLES OF HOT LEAD

A Mad Plumber Burns a Comrade and Ter-PERCIAL TRUEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, July 2.- The antics of a maniac caused intense excitement in a building on Howard street this morning. Among the workmen were Max Lando, a painter, and John Dunn, a plumber, who were at work on the sixth floor. As Lando reached the top of the last flight of stairs he saw Dunn bending over his plumber's furnace holding a ladle of melted lead. "Good morning, plumber." said Lando. Dunn answered: "I'll fix you," and as he spoke he swung the ladle round and threw its molten contents at Lando's head.

The lead struck the painter on the neck and shoulder and ran down his body. "I'm the coming man. Jesus of Nazareth told me so. I'm the coming map." Then filling his ladle he extended it toward a policeman and said:
"Will you have this?" After a severe

OTHER GAMES PLAYED YESTERDAY .. 11 . New York ... Cincinnati 6. Brooklyn Boston 5 .. Cleveland

Philadelphia 7..Chicago The Pittsburg National League team went into the game yesterday with a whirl, such as was never seen before. They have a great batting streak, and Burkett's curves were twisted all out of shape and sent sizzling hot against the fence. Then he was wild as well, and gave numerous bases on balls, netting quite a number of runs in themselves. Will Gumbert pitched for Pittsburg, and while he was wild and hit hard at times, he was given good support and won his game. He did well with the bat also, and his hitting is responsible for several runs. In fact, everybody hit the ball but Hecker, and Catcher Decker got four hits and a life out of five times at bat. SCORING BEGINS. Pittsburg began business in the first inning, Miller scoring on a base on balls, a stolen base and Decker's single. In the second Kelty got a single, went to third on Berger's hit, he going to second on the play, and scored on Gumbert's sacrifice, which also sent Berger to third. The latter scored on Sunday's single. In the third Miller got a base on balls and went to second on Clark's error, which also gave La Roque first. Both scored on Decker's two-bugger, and he was caught napping off second. Hecker got a base on balls, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Kelty's single. The latter went to third on two passed balls and scored on Berger's double. La Roque got a base on balls in the fourth and scored on Decker's two-

The fifth proved a blank, but in the sixth three prizes were drawn. Gumbert singled and went to second on Miller's hit. La Roque's single put Miller on third, and he scored on La Roque's out on Decker's life. The latter stole second, went to third on Roat's hit and scored on an error by Howe. bert made a single, went to second on Mil-ler's base on balls and scored on La Roque's single. Miller made third and La Roque second on the play. Decker's single scored NEW YORK'S SHARE. New York began scoring in the second. Henry got a life on Clark's out at second and stole two bases. Howe got a base on balls and stole second. Both scored on Berger's wild throw to first. In the third Hornung and Denny got bases on balls. Clark sacrificed them each a base and both scored on Henry's two-bagger. Burkett got a triple in the fourth and scored on Tier-nan's triple, the latter scoring on La Roque's tumble. In the fifth Henry got a nit, stole second and scored on Howe's single. No runs were made in the sixth, but two were added in the seventh. Burket singled and went to second on Tiernan's base hit. Burkett scored and Tiernan took third on Sunday's fumble. The latter scored on Glasscock's double. The fact that the team has won seems to have helped the attendance, as about 300 people were at the game yesterday. The score follows: PITTSBURG, B B P A E NEW YORK, B B P A E 2 Murphy, c... 0 0 (6 Rusie, r... 0 1 : Burkett, p... 2 2 serger, s.... 1 2 0 5 2 sumbert, p.. 2 2 2 1 0 Totals 13 16 27 13 6 Totals 9 11 27 15 3

It is well-known that Tom Tucker is, or rather has been, an inveterate gum chewer. On and off the diamond field his jaws were continually wagging, and he has been heard to affirm that he could not play a game of bail without his favorite "cud." All that is now a thing of the past. Tucker woke up the other morning and found that his left jaw was akewed out of place; a severe pain extended morning and found that his jets askewed out of place; a severe pain extended over and under his left ear, and reached over his left eye; his eye became blurry, and he had to retire from one game and could not play in another. He sought advice, and came to the conclusion that the ailment resulted from incessant chewing of gom, and now he has give up the practice.—Boston Herald.

General Moran Will Return to His Nativ

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., July 2 .- General Fabio Moran, formerly commander of a division in the army of San Salvador, who was forced to leave his country at the time of the election of the late President Menendez and took refuge in San Francisco, where he has been living since, will sail from here Thursday for San Salvador. General Moran held a number of positions of trust in his native country, among them being that of Minister of War. In 1886 he was the Republican candidate for President of the Republic, but was de eated by General Menendez. Just after the latter's election he is-sued an order for Moran to leave the country at once under pain of death. General Moran's return to San Salvador is due to the recent death of President Menendez and also to a cablegram said to have been received from a leading Govern-ment official at San Salvador urging Moran to return at once, and intimating that he would find opportunity to succeed Menendez as President.

HOW TO DEAL WITH NIHILISM. The Aged Ex-Chancellor Very Anxious to

Promote Peace. COST OF A GREAT EUROPEAN WAR

A correspondent of an English journal has written an interesting account of a visit he paid to Prince Bismarck at Friedrichsruhe. Passing through a spacious antechamber lined with oaken bookcases (writes the correspondent), I entered a long narrow drawing room, in the center of which stood His Highness talking to the Princess and another lady, the fourth and fifth members of the group being two fine Danish bounds one a singularly handsome black dog named Tyras I. was gathered to his fathers at a good old age some three years ago; he died painlessly in his master's bedroom, conscious of the latter's presence to the very last. To quote the Prince's own words: "A few minutes before the faithful old dog died I spoke to him. He had not the strength to wag his tail; but he opened his eyes, and as he looked at me an expression came over his ace that told me—as plainly as i he had spoken—that he recognized me, and wished me well." Tyras II. was the gilt of the present Emperor, and is "more even-tempered, but of a less strongly marked individuality" than his predecessor. The other stately hound, a glossy slate-colored semale, of great strength and beauty, is own grand-daughter to the famous "Realm Dog," to which she bears a striking REST AND RECREATION. the age of 75, Prince Bismarck is as upright as a dart, and as firm of foot as many a strong man 40 years his junior. His complexion, which used to be sallow when I first knew him, is clear and ruddy; his eyes sparkle with all their old fire and brightness; his voice is mellow and sonorous; his heavy mustache and bushy eye-brows are no whit grayer than they were 20 years ago. He looks younger than his age by a decade at the very least. "Rest!" he exclaimed; "yes, a definitive rest. Official life, as far as I am concerned, is all over and done with. Now I shall have time for some of the recreations I have foregone throughout 30 years. Repose is good; still better is the certainty that I shall not have to change houses any more. You English have a proverb that save 'three removes are as bod as a fire,' and it is a true one. Don't pleasures?

you think it is high time that I should have a little amusement and enjoy a few social The journalist went with the statesman for a stroll through the woods, Bismarck's daily round. "Let me try to describe," writes the correspondent, "the outward writes the correspondent, "the outward seeming of my illustrious host, as he strode firmly along. He wore a soft, broad-brimmed hat, a thick white neckerchief knotted in front, a long, dark, loose coat buttoned up to the throat, grey trousers and strong double-soled boots. In his right hand ungloved he carried a black stick with a slightly curved handle, upon which he rarely leaned while walking on level ground. His mustache no longer overhangs his whole mouth, as of yore, but has been trim-ned comparatively short, so as to show the under lip. He bears himself in his old martial fashion, with head erect and shoulders well thrown back; the incipient corpulence which made him appear some what overbuiky about ten years ago has entirely vanished." NIHILISM AND LABOR, Seated for a few minutes on the summit talking about Nihilism and the difficulties of carrying on any sort of government in Russia. "I asked the Prince whether, in his opinion, there was no way of deteating Nihilism by timely and generous conces-sions? 'No,' he replied, rather severely; 'no concessions can be made to the Nihilists, who are would-be murderers, one and allassassins by premeditation, it not by deed. The only way to deal with them is to strengthen and sharpen the law, and to bring it to bear upon them with increased stringency. There can be no question of yielding to these wretches: nothing kindly or conciliatory can be offered to people who do not even know what they want, but are perfectly ready at all times to commit any sort and number of hideous crimes."

"As, at a leisure pace, we were strolling down hill by another tortuous woodland path, the labor question cropped up, apropos of the recent miners' congress in Belgium. After trankly recognizing and praising the moderation of Burt's address to the delegates, Prince Bismarck abruptly broke out with: 'Tell me, did you ever know a banker with a million who was contented?—or a scientist, politician, artist, lawyer satisfied with his gains and position? I will go further, and ask you, have you ever known a contented man? I mean, among the rich, the successful, the highlyborn or highly-placed? How, then, shall the workingman be contented, whose life is necessarily one of few pleasures and many troubles, of frequent privation and rare in-dulgence? The more operatives get the more they want. I don't say it is not natural, nor that they differ from other men in this respect; but the fact remains. Let what real grievances they still have right themselves by natural processes, as they will gradually and in due time. Above all, let them continue to improve their positio without State interference, which can only BISMARCK ON CAPRIVI. As we were nearing the schloss Prince Bismarck spoke to me very favorably of his successor in the Chancellorship, General Caprivi, as "a fine soldier, a man of remarkable intelligence and varied in ormation-above all, a thorough gentleman. I am sure," continued his Highness, "that Cap-rivi's appointment as Reichskanzler was an absolute surprise to him, that he accepted it from a lofty and loyal sense of duty, and that he is quite free from any charge of over-weening personal ambition. He has a clear tery, and he had been an invalid for quite | head, a good heart, a generous nature, and great working powers. Altogether a firstlass man."

At luncheon I observed that he drank nothing with his food, and asked him whether "eating dry" were a habit of his own choice, or an article in the dietetic own choice, or an article in the dietetic code drawn up for him by his famous "Leibarzt," Dr. Schweninger. "The latter," he replied. "I am only allowed to drick thrice a day—a quarter of an hour after each meal, and each time not more than half a bottle of red sparkling Moselle than ha of a very light and dry character. Bur-gundy and beer, both of which I am extremely fond of, are strictly forbidden to me; so are all the strong Rhenish and Span- John Kilpatrick, the past I have been a total abstainer from all these generous liquors, much to the advantage of my health and my condition, in the sporting sense of the word. my doctor's orders, and any excess of that
exercise and special regiment. I ride a good exercise and special regimen. I ride a good deal as well as walk. Cigar smoking I have given up altogether, of course, under advice. It is debilitating and bad for the nerves. An inveterate smoker, such as I used to be, probably gets through 100,000 cigars in his probably gets through 100,000 cigars in his life, if he reaches a fair average age. But he would live longer and feel better all his time if he did without them. Nowadays I am restricted to a long pipe, happily with a deep bowl, one after each meal, and I smoke nothing in it but Dotch Knaster tobacco, which is light, mild and soothing. ANXIOUS TO PROMOTE PEACE.

As soon as the raign of tobacco had definitively set in, the ladies left us, and I changed my seat for one near the head of the table, next to that of His Highness. I casually observed that his retirement had been unexpected in English political circles, and had taken the general British public quite by surprise. He renlied, "I dare say it seemed rather sudden to you. Even my friends here in Germany scarcely expected it. It would be somewhat difficult for me, don't you think so, after 40 years' incessant occupation and absorption in political study—after such a tremendous spell of activity and responsibility—to play a part the two inviolable conditions of which are speechlessness and immobility. That is what they want me to do. But I am not so easily silenced and paralyzed. I were kept busy for several hours by the recan continue, in retirement, to serve my country, and I mean to do so to the last. In some respects I have a freer hand than I had when I was in office. Abroad—for instance, in France and Russia, the only countries possibly bearing us a grudge—I can in many ways promote the propaganda of peace, my main object and aim for 20 years past, now that I am unfettered by any

"What is the actual state of Germany's relations with France? you ask. Excellent indeed; all that both countries can wish it to be. The attitude of the French Government is exemplary; the French people are sincerely pacific, alike in views and hopes. I need not tell you how peaceably disposed the Germans are; no one is more earnest for peace than His Majesty the Emperor, whose attention is eagerly bent upon home affairs, upon national consolidation integral improvements. onal consolidation, internal improvements and the establishment of a cordial under tanding between class and class. Germans want nothing from our neighbors out fair dealing and civil treatment. fought two terrible wars to achieve our unity; we have got it, and mean to keep it; we ask no more. All our armament is purely defensive and precautionary; not a the grand jury. bit of it is intended for attack. No idea of aggression or of further frontier extension finds a lodging in the head of any intelli-gent German." I asked him i, in his opinion, there was no possibility of finally extinguishing the French grievance against the Fatherland by some voluntary and spontaneous concession on the part of Germany-some rectification of frontier involving the retrocession to France of the Frenchspeaking populations now unwillingly sub-mitting to German rule—some arrangements, in short, that would satisfy France without imperilling the security of Ger-many. "There is none," he answered, quite decisively. "We can yield no territory to them, excert after a lost battle.

ENGLAND, GERMANY AND AFRICA. "As for England and Germany, I regard it as an impossibility that these two countries should ever be at war, and as singularly unlikely that they should even quar rel seriously. Were that to happen, how-ever, it might lead to a continental conflict, even i England should abstain from taking any active part against us by sea or by land But this contingency is as wildly improbable as that we should draw the sword against England. Differences, of course, may ocawaiting equitable settlement. Every such difference between yourselves and us, however, can only be of altogether inconsider able moment compared to the consequences of an appeal to arms. If we growl a little at one another, that is nothing to be alarmed at. Looking this African affair straight in the face, what does it amount to? In yo British Company, I believe, about hal million sterling is embarked; in our Ger-man company, something less. Pat the two amounts together, and the sum total at stake does not equal one day's expenditure in mere preparation for a great war. COST OF A GREAT WAR. "For every man drawn into the ranks by the mobilization process we must reckon, on the average, a loss of 2 shillings a day, his earnings, and an outlay of 3 shillings a day for his food, clothing, pay and transport. A general European war means the mobilization of at least 4,000,000 of reserve troops, so there you have your waste of 1,000,000 a shot is fired. After hostilities con we may take that waste as doubled in daily amount. All this is without counting the preciation of securities, which are more ruinous than war expenses. In the case of England and Germany's colonial rivalry, the object to be attained on either part or both parts—if their double success could be estimated-can never, appraise it as high as you will, be anything like equivalent to the certain calamity that would suit from a serious A German encounter with hot lead and cold steel, all about the partition of regions, the worth of which is altogether problematical. For few trustworthy Europeans know anything about these mysterious territo -scarcely even their names. No fear that England and Germany will ever come to blows about them. For my part, I feel sure that Lord Salisbur, 's temperate and states manlike utterances are more to the English taste than Mr. Stanley's hot exhortations and bitter denunciations. Between Germans and Englishmen it is always easy to come to a righteous and amicable understanding. We are both fair-dealing peoples; we know one another well, and respect one another sincerely. There has been so much arrant nonsense talked and written about this paltry affair that a few plain words, dictated by ommon reason, can do no harm. HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER. SAD RESULT OF A FROLIC BETWEEN TWO afternoon into the death of George Sheriff, the 14 year-old boy who died from the effect of an injury received from John Kilpatrick, a companion with whom he worked in the office of Oliver & Roberts' Wire Works. Albert Unks, a boy employed in the time keeper's office at the works, said that Sheriff and Kilpatrick were in Mr. Oliver's office upstairs and were squirting water on each other with fire extinguishers. They are sixfoot pieces of hose with a brass nozzle on on end and work by a suction process. Sheriff had thrown ice water on Kilpatrick and the latter squirted on him. Sheriff chased him out of the office and hit him on the head with the hose and knocked him down the stairs. Kilpatrick then turned and chased Sheriff, and as the latter dodged behind a desk the brass nozzle hit him on the head stuck there, and the witness pulled it out. Both boys were bleeding and the witness helped to wipe the blood off them, and when he told Mr. Greiner, the timekee boy, told of his brother, relating the circum-

Brinkman, confectioner, on Third avenue, Several of the victims narrowly escaped death. Their lives were saved only by the greatest exertions of the physicians in the neighborhood, who peated calls. The symptoms in each case were of metallic poisoning and the trouble was at once traced to the ice cream. The patients were seized with severe pain and violent vomiting. In the worst cases utter prostration followed, with insensibility, and the body became almost pulseless. Mr. and Mrs. Brinkman, who sold the poisoned cream, were taken violently ill after eating a liberal portion, which they partook of as an evidence of good faith, when the first complaint was made by one of their customers.
