Union Station Crowded With People Anxious to Get Out of Town.

"It looks like old times before the cable roads got in their work," said one of the Union station employes last night, as the crowd surged and jostled each other before the ticket windows. "There has been more people here to-night than I have seen for a long time. It is not a 25-cent crowd, but every one seems to be going a good distance. Most of them are going to Pittsburg's suburb-Atlantic City."

Extra cars had to be put on all the through trains, and those who had failed to provide themselves with sleeping car tickets were "not in it." Among those who were going away were: Dr. W. H.
