Moving Enstward.

"The hordes of tramps moving eastward are lagger than ever," said Special Agent Hand Gon Honghton, of the Pennsylvania road, yesterday. "Only last Wednesday we stationed officers at New Florence, where all the trains stop for water, and we captured 36 riding on the cars. The county jails are full of these fellows.

Their Meeca in the summer is the large Eastern cities, and in the winter they mi grate South. Since the panic started many honest men on the road looking for work the tramp has become a permanent institution, and as a class they are people who would not earn their bread under any conditions by the sweat of their brow. They are too any. There is no lack for employment these days, but the ranks of the tramp, instead of depleting, are increasing. Once in a while we find one among them who is looking for expected that most of the members will be a job, but he is soon proselyted and becomes as bad as the rank and file.

"They find it much easier to rob farm and springhouses and occasionally a store in a small town than to work for a living."

HOTELS WANT GUESTS.

This Business Has Its Dall Season Like All Others.

"This is the summer of our discontent," remarked a hotel clerk yesterday, "Every | han's death. season has its dull period and ours is on now, and has come to stay until the middle of August. Only a month ago we were turning people away every night, but at present we have plenty of rooms as the reg-ister will show. The drummers are not moving in the hot weather, and the business man is away spending his vacation. Well, guess we can stand it as well as the rest of a local newspaper, vesterday morning,

What the clerk had to say has been a fact for several weeks. None of the hotels are for several weeks. Advancing Prices and Not the Removal of the Ticker, Did the Work. "What has been the effect of the removal of the ticker?" was asked of John M. The Union Pacific will furnish six-horse Oakley, the broker, yesterday.

"My business has doubled," he replied, "but I am not sure that it is due to the removal of the ticker. The bucket shops have been closed up, but it was the ad-vance in prices that knocked them out rather than the loss of the quotations. Busidess on the Chicago market has been very active, with advancing Very often the market is lively on declining prices, but then we never make any money.

They are still very strict, however, about the quotations. There isn't a wheat ticker in the country. They might put them back now with safety, though some bucket-shops might be started as a result."
