NEW TRIAL REFUSED.

Judge White Thinks Roll Attempted to Defraud His Creditors.

NO GAINS IN THE BEAR TRAP CASE.

The Westinghouse Company Again Sues the Thomson-Houston.

HUM FROM THE BUSY COURT ROOMS

An appeal was taken to the Supreme Court yesterday by George C. Roll and his wife, Minnie Roll, against the decision in the lower court in the case of A. M. Marshall, who recovered a debt contracted by the appellants. Roll was a grocer doing business

He contracted a number of debts, deeded his property to his wife and then made an assignment. Marshall, among others, sued and recovered on the wife's property, and a motion for a new trial was made. Judge White refused it on the ground of palpable intent to defraud in a long opinion, and the appeal is taken on this refusal.

IN THE CRIMINAL COURT.

AN UNUSUAL RIVER CASE.

The Right of the United States Court to

The cases of George W. Parker and John wages, were argued before Judge Acheson yesterday. In Parker's case it is denied that the court has jurisdiction by reason of the boat being in the Beaver river, not a navigable stream within the meaning of the admiralty law.

In the case of Potts it is alleged his employment was not maritime; his claim was not filed in 60 days atter being due, and that also the claim cannot be created because the acts of Assembly do not relate to the Beaver river, on which the boat runs. The boat is a ferry boat between New Brighton, Bridgewater and other towns, and was lately seized by the Sheriff of Beaver county and later by the United States Marshal. Judge Acheson reserved his decision.

MASTER SHANNON'S REPORT FILED.

He Says the Defendant Received no Gains

In the Bear Trap Case. report of Master Smith H. Shannon Esq., in the case of Arthur Kirk against John E. Du Bois was filed in the United States Cir-E. Du Bois was filed in the United States Circuit Court yesterday. The suit was to determine the validity of a patent on hear trap dams, begun in October, 1886, and a year later a decree was entered sustaining the complainant, when a perpetual injunction was awarded. The master was then appointed to take an account, and in his report says the complainant received no actual damage by the infringement, and the defendant received no gains. Exceptions to the report was also filed by complainant's counsel on the ground that the master erred in finding no damage for complainant and that he refused to accept certain testimony.

ANOTHER ELECTRIC WAR

The Westinghouse Company After the Thomson-Houston People Aguin. Bills in equity were filed in the United States Court yesterday by the Westinghouse Electric Company. They are against the Wilkinsburg

Electric Company and the Second Avenue Electric Company, two suits being filed against The same company also entered a suit for damages in $50,000 for infringement. The Thomson-Houston system will make the defense in the suit against the Second avenue company, as the latter uses its system.

To-day's Trial List.

He avers that he is ready to pay the amount and that Rynd is willing, but Smith refuses to agree. He asks the Court to compel him to.

Like a Circuit of Electric Wires.

The human sensorium resembles a circuit of electric wires, the various sets of nerves forming links in the circle of continuity. When digestion grows weak the epigastric nerve suffers, and the whole system is affected. Beinforce it with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the nervous organism grows tranquil and reposeful. Fever and ague, constipation, kidney groubles and liver complaints retreat before this remedy.

WESTINGHOUSE STRIKES BACK AT THE THOMSON- HOUSTON CO.,

and Files a Number of Bills Against That Concern-The Second Avenue Railway Company and the Wilkinsburg E. C. Will Suffer-The Cause of the Trouble.

The Westinghouse Electric Company has returned the action of the Thomson-Houston Electric Company in the matter of bringing suits for infringement of patents, with in-

Suits have been filed against the Second Avenue Street Railway Company, a licensee of the Thomson-Houston Company, for an infringement of the Finney patent and Forbes patent, which are both owned by the Westinghouse Company. The Finney patent involved the overhead wire system, which establishes the fact that Finney was the first to propose the operation of electric which establishes the fact that Finney was the first to propose the operation of electric street railways by means of an overhead wire, and suitable regulating device interposed between the wire and the motor for regulating the speed of the car. It is said the Thomson-Houston Company recognising the validity of this patent have frequently negotiated to secure a license under the same, and have offered to pay a considerable sum per car for the use of the invention.
The Forbes patent covers the use of the kinsburg Electric Company, another licensee of the Thomson-Houston Company, for in-fringing patents No. 342,552, for converters and re-issue No. 11,031, for multiple-arc distribution of alternate currents by con-When a call was made upon the Westinghouse Electric Company for an explanation of the litigation, it was stated by one of the officials:

"The Westinghouse Electric Company has always refrained from pressing suits against the Thomson-Houston Company, largely because of the great expense in-volved in litigation, but now that we have been attacked in Pittsburg, where litigation can be carried on with less expense and more convenience for the Westinghouse concern, we have determined to put the Thomson-Houston Company on the defensive. This Houston Company on the Cefensive. This suit last Saturday was only brought by the Brush Company (which is controlled by the Thomson-Houston Company, the latter having bought it at great expense last winter), on account of the meeting of our company to-morrow. The Themson-Houston people intended by their action to create prejudice among our stockholders against our proposed actions at the meeting. Apart from that, the Thomson-Houston Company is well aware that we are now manufacturing a aware that we are now manufacturing a single carbon are lamp, the advantages of which are so apparent that the value of the double carbon patent has been effectually

"It is true that the Duquesne Traction Company proposes to utilize some of the power from its power stations for lighting purposes, but a number of the leading men connected with that company have unqualifiedly said to the officials of the Westinghouse Company that they have no intention to company that they have no intention to commit themselves to any foreign corpora-tion while the Westinghouse Company can furnish them the apparatus they desire, it dustries. In view of the fact that they cannot use the Thomson-Houston apparatus without becoming involved in expensive litigation, there is no reason to expect that more than trial apparatus will be bought

The Forbes patent covers the use of the carbon brush, an appliance which has become essential in the operation of street railways and which is now used by all companies supplying electric street railway apparatus.

In addition to these suits, the Union Switch and Signal Company has sued the Second Avenue Railway Company for the use of the metallic connections from rail to rail, which are now used for all street railways. Formerly the Thomson-Houston Company bought this from the Union Switch and Signal Company, but the Westinghouse people state that they have of late intringed the patent and this action has been brought to restrain a further wrongful use of a very important invention.
