Braddock Councils Besieged by Street Railroad Men, All of Them Eager for the ## RIGHT OF WAY ON MAIN STREET.

The Home Corporation Making a Lively Fight Against Its Four Competitors.

BIG REDUCTION IN LONG TRIP FARES.

One Electric Line Will Carry Passengers to the Borough for Ten Cents.

Measles in every family in Braddock would not cause more interest than has been raised by the street railway question. It is a snarl in which at least five companies and five lawyers are engaged, and the patient's blood is getting hotter day by day, and the topography of the borough and surrounding country adds interest to the contest. In the first place it should be understood that Braddock borough is surrounded on three sides by Braddock township and on the fourth by the Monongahela river. It has but one entrance and one exit, aside from two railways and the river, and that is the old plank road, of which Main street is a part and the only paved street in the borough that is easily getatable by a street railway. The entrance on the western side is so taken up by two railways and the plank road that there is little room for anything else.

The first company in the fight is the Braddock and Turtle Creek Street Railway Company, and it holds the age in one respect. This company "got a move on it" as far back as 1885, getting the right to construct a horse car road from the Carrie furnaces west of Braddock, through the borough and on to Turtle creek.

WAITING FOR ELECTRICITY.

For a time it was found impracticable to make any advance on account of the distance being too great for horse-power, but when electricity began to attract attention the company repaired its fences and prepared for operations when the fullness of time should come. William Yost, Esq., is attorney for the company, and takes up the gauntlet in its behalf against all comers.

The second company in the order of succession is the Braddock Street Railway Company. It was organized in 1887 by Alexander Dempster, B. L. Wood, Jr., W. Scaife and Arthur Kennedy. Its route originally was from the west line of Braddock to Turtle Creek, but last year it was pieced, and the line now contemplated would connect with the Second Avenue Electric Railway at the city line and extend to Turtle Creek, through Braddock, of course. Some time last year Andrew Mellon, Howard Childs and others bought the charter from Dempster et al. W. F. McCook, Esq., looks after this company's interests.

The third company is chartered as the Hazelwood, Homestead and Braddock Street Railway Company. It proposes to bridge the Monongahela river at Homestead. Its eastern terminus is Braddock. As it is proposed to run on the township road between Pittsburg and Braddock it conflicts with two of the other proposed lines. George C. Wilson, Esq., is the legal counsel for this corporation, and it is owned by Mr. Callery and other gentlemen, presumably largely the owners of the Second Avenue Electric Railway.

The fourth company is named the Braddock Electric Railway Company and is composed of Messrs. L. Sailor-Ellis, George Miller and others. Mr. Miller was once a conductor on the Pennsylvania Railroad, and is a hustler from 'way back. His extensive acquaintance in Braddock and his energy have made him a formidable man to fight, and he has done big work for his company in Braddock. This company proposes to run from Camp Copeland, a suburb of Braddock, and back into the township at the northeast corner of the borough and thence to Turtle Creek. Its attorney is C. C. Lee, Esq.

LAST BUT NOT LEAST.

The fifth and last, but not by any means least, company contesting in the Pittsburg, Braddock and Turtle Creek Street Railway Company. No one found would give the exact membership of the company, but it was authoritatively stated by the representative of the competing company that Charles Newmeyer, of Hawkins station, and Booth & Flinn were interested in it. R. S. Frazer, Esq., is its attorney. The route is from the Pittsburg line, through the boroughs of Wilkinsburg, Swissvale, via Hawkins station and Camp Copeland, Braddock and by way of the plank road to Turtle creek, and the tug of war consists in one respect, that if all get right of way all must run on Main street, Braddock, as there is no other line by which they can accomplish their object. There are but three streets running parallel with the Monongahela river and Main street is the only one graded and paved, and the only one on which a line can be run so as to catch popular favor. Beside a road to pay must run between the Edgar Thomson Steel Works and the Carrie furnaces in order to get paying patronage, and each is located within half a mile of the respective ends of the borough.

Now, here comes the great tug. The "home company," the Braddock and Turtle Creek Company, recognizing the strategic importance of the right of way on the old plank road through the township, quietly went to work and secured the right of way, thereby making the township supervisors men of prominence in the fight, so much so that they are discussing the advisability of having their ears hermetically sealed so as to escape the clamor that has been raised.

HAVEN'T GOT ENOUGH.

All that remains is to get the right of way on Main street, Braddock, and should any of the other opposing companies succeed in getting it, it will have a line but a mile long and on which but two cars will find occupation, as the entire borough route can be traversed in six minutes. Should any of the opponents of the Braddock and Turtle Creek Company secure it, it must then make terms with the former or its victory will be a barren one.

On last Monday evening nine Councilmen solemnly sat behind nine desks in Council chamber and the Burgess sat in his usual place, when they were confronted by five ordinances, five lawyers and other representatives of the five companies, with the home company buttressed with executed rights of way at either end of the municipal corporation, and with jaws sharp set to devour Main street—the tenderloin steak, the juicy part of the menu. The weather was boiling hot and the representatives of opposing interests hotter, and it is supposed some of the Councilmen were, if possible, hotter still. The ordinances were as much alike as so many peas, and the Council could be excused in deciding that the situation was decidedly uncomfortable.

AN UNPLEASANT PROSPECT.

Before some, it is suggested, the prospect offered destruction on the one hand and tophet and perdition on the other. Each contestant was prepared to promise everything from a nickel up to a seat in heaven as a coriolet if it did not keep its obligation and complete the line by August 1, 1891. Further each was willing to agree to keep the portion of the street it used, paved, clean and in repair, and not to unnecessarily interfere with travel while constructing the road. The attorneys were earnest, argumentative and eloquent, but when it leaked out that the home company had secured the right of way through the township, there was some consternation in the opposing camps, and misery making them bed-fellows, they held a consultation to which the attorney for the Braddock and Turtle Creek corporation did not get an invitation. A lawyer for one of the companies more forcibly than elegantly expressed the opinion that Braddock was a queer town. "It is hard to get into it and when you get in you can't get out."

ADJOURNED WITHOUT ACTION.

The ordinances were very long and the reading very monotonous, as each was almost an exact copy of the rest. Councilmen fidgeted, looked this way and that way, craned their necks like wild turkeys in a rail-trap, listened to the Braddock and Turtle Creek Company's offer to put, within 30 days after the passage of an ordinance giving it right of way, $1,000 into the hands of the Borough Treasurer as a guarantee to complete the road within a year, and wearily heaving a comprehensive sigh voted to postpone action until the evening of the 21st instant.

As the matter now stands it is the home company against the field. The contestants will have two weeks to negotiate and there may be a number of interesting conferences before the 21st inst.

Ex-Alderman J. C. Reilly, of the Second Avenue Electric Railway, was seen last night regarding the matter and he said his company certainly hoped to get to Braddock and further, that if it did it would carry passengers to Braddock for 10 cents. Mr. Reilly said the Second avenue line had succeeded so far beyond expectations that it generated the idea of rushing on to Braddock. He further said that he did not think the prior right of way granted to the Braddock and Turtle Creek Railway Company was an insuperable obstacle and referred to the case of the Duquesne Traction Company's fight with the Pittsburg Traction. He thought everything might yet be smoothed, and said the result if they succeeded would be as gratifying to the public as to him and his company. He thought Booth & Flinn had no connection with the Pittsburg, Braddock and Turtle Creek Company, as his (Mr. Reilly's) company had made inquiry on this subject and could not verify the assertion.

ONLY SMALL FRY KICKING.

Councilman Keating Talks On His Funeral Ordinance—Cancerinkers Have Whistles and Make Drivers of Other Vehicles Pull Off the Car Tracks.

Councilman A. F. Keating was seen yesterday in regard to his ordinance giving cable cars the right of way over funerals. Mr. Keating is not very much exercised over the commotion made by the funeral directors and to a representative of THE DISPATCH he said:

"Something I never knew before came to my notice to-day. These so-called funeral directors have whistles the same as car drivers, and when a heavy wagon or something else gets in the way, they compel the vehicles to turn off the track. Undertakers, as they used to be called, have no more right to make drivers turn off the track and give them the right of way than they have to hold the car track against cable cars. This matter of the dead giving way to the living is a reform that must come sooner or later.

"Such men as James Flannery and H. Samson, who are at the head of their profession and funeral directors in every sense of the word, do not object to turning off the track for cable cars. The kickers are the small fry, who are rising up in their indignant might and trying to draw attention to themselves. It has been the custom to allow funeral processions the right of way, but it is only a matter of courtesy. If the re orm was introduced it would be the means of saving much profanity from business men and would not inconvenience anybody. I am sure the mourners would not object, and it would be a great convenience to the public."

One undertaker on the Southside is reported to have a couple of horses in training to draw the hearse at Mr. Keating's funeral. The Councilman was notified yesterday he would be given the liveliest illustration of rapid transit at funerals imaginable. Mr. Keating stated that he did not expect to be able to enjoy the sensation, but if it benefited the public he did not care how fast the funeral went.

UNDERSELL FOREIGNERS.

A Fostoria Glass Man Talks on South American Trade.

"We can undersell Europeans in South America in many lines of goods," said Otto Jaeger, a well-known representative of the glass industry, of Fostoria, O., last night. He is stopping at the Monongahela. "All that the glass manufacturers want is to get there quickly. The business men of Fostoria are heartily in favor of subsidizing vessels. We consider Mr. Blaine as the best friend of American industries and wish we had more such men as he to take hold of the South American business.

"Our workmen receive from two to three times the wages that are paid to foreign laborers, but there is already a demand in South America for certain lines of fine glassware, which we can manufacture cheaper than they ern in Europe."

DEATH'S RICH HARVEST.

The Weekly Mortuary Report Presents Some Very Unpleasant Figures.

The mortuary report for the week ending July 5 shows that there were 124 deaths in the city during that time, as against 114 for the corresponding time last year. The leading cause of the mortality was diarrhea, there being 26 deaths from that source, 21 of which were choleraic. Typhoid fever caused 10 deaths; measles, 5; pneumonia, 7; consumption, 5. Of the total number 71 were less than 5 years of age, and of these 49 were under 1 year.

The East End lead the other section of the city with 52 deaths; Southside, 32; old city, 28.

A Turnout of the Boys.

The Eighteenth Regiment assembled at the armory last night and marched to Bluff street, headed by the Second Brigade Band. It was intended to have a dress parade here, but owing to darkness setting in and the density of the crowd which gathered to witness the parade, it had to be deferred.

CAUGHT ON THE FLY.

Prominent Citizens Who Were Enumerated Without Knowing It.

WAITING FOR OFFICIAL FIGURES.

Pittsburg May Yet Reach the Quarter Million Mark.

ONLY A FEW DISTRICTS TO COME IN

"Something like 20 cases, all told, have been reported to us of people who thought they were not enumerated," said Census Supervisor Oliver yesterday afternoon, "and the latest is a communication received from Mr. F. M. Magee to-day. Here it is:

PITTSBURG, July 9, 1890.

George T. Oliver, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—Your census enumerator was not along the side of Highland avenue on which I live. Mr. Flinn told me he had not been to his house and certainly he has not been to mine. Please look into this. Very truly,

F. M. MAGEE.

"This is the same thing over again," said Mr. Oliver, "and on investigation I find that no omission has been made. This is my answer to Mr. Magee:

A GOOD CONTRIBUTION.

"F. M. Magee, Esq.:

"DEAR SIR—I have just received your favor of the 9th inst., and upon investigation I find that both you and Mr. Flinn and your families were enrolled by Mr. Weaver, the enumerator for your district, and have contributed an aggregate of 20 persons to the population of our city. Mr. Weaver probably called when you were away from home. Yours truly,

"GEO. T. OLIVER,
"Census Supervisor."

"Will the official returns from Washington differ much from the approximate figures of Allegheny county's population as given out by you?" was asked.

"Yes, several thousand one way or the other, but not over six or seven thousand. We could form only a rough estimate, but the figures are not very far out of the way."

"What will be the probable population of the city?"

"About a quarter of a million."

PREPARING TO CLOSE.

Returns from five rural districts are still due, and expected to come in every minute. They are looked for to-day, and immediately after the papers now on file at the office in the Leader block are sent to Washington, little will remain to be done in the Ninth Census district.

"I will hang out my flag on the Southside in a day or two," said Mr. Oliver, "and all census matters will be attended to there."

John Skobba, the Hungarian who refused to answer Census Enumerator Diemer's questions, had a hearing before Commissioner McCandless yesterday. He answered the census queries and was discharged.

Mr. Oliver Wickline will have a hearing this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

A FALSE ALARM.

Bloomfield Scared by a Reported Case of Asiatic Cholera Which Proves to Be Merely Cholera Morbus—Immediate Action Advised in the Case of Overcrowded Tenements.

Rumors of a case of Asiatic cholera in the city caused considerable excitement yesterday. Dr. Weisberger reported Rosa Weller, of Pearl street, Sixteenth ward, as the victim of the dread disease. Dr. McCandless was immediately requested to investigate the matter, and last evening gave the result of his examination to a DISPATCH representative.

"I found that the patient was not suffering from cholera at all," said the doctor. "Mrs. Weller is afflicted with only a slight attack of cholera morbus. She is doing splendidly, and was moving around the house. There is no truth in the statement that the case shows symptoms of Asiatic cholera."

In speaking of the city, Dr. McCandless stated: "The authorities should take immediate action in the matter of our overcrowded houses in Pittsburg. There is fearful danger in allowing so many persons to live together in a single room. In case of the spread of an epidemic, these overcrowded tenements would cause frightful ravages among the people.

"Great care should be exercised by all at present in the selection of fruits, etc. The average grade of watermelons on the market just now are not overripe, and have a direct tendency to produce severe cases of cholera morbus. All unripe fruit should be avoided. These hot days and cool evenings are particularly favorable to the spread of that disease."

Sudden Death.

Heart disease is developed by modern civilization, and is increasing to an alarming extent. Let him who suspects the approach of this cause of sudden death take Dr. Flint's Remedy and let all persons read his treatise on "Heart Disease." At all druggists, or will be sent on application by Mack Drug Co., N. Y. MWF
