

LIKE AN EARTHQUAKE.

The Havoc Caused by the Terrific Explosion of 1,600 Kegs of Powder.

AT LEAST A DOZEN KILLED, While Any Number of Others Are Maimed and Crippled in a Most Pitiable Manner.

THE MIAMI RIVER DAMMED UP By the Mountain of Earth Thrown Into the Channel of the Stream, Which Seeks a New Outlet.

FIRE ADDED TO THE OTHER HORRORS, Many of the Unfortunates Were Literally Blown Into Fragments, and Their Bodies Will Never Be Recovered.

REMAINS OF THE VICTIMS OF THE CYCLONE The bodies of those who perished in the Northwestern cyclone had not been interfered when another disaster overwhelmed an Ohio hamlet.

THE LOSS OF PROPERTY. From all reports by private telegrams and telephone messages from the vicinity of the explosion, the loss of property by the explosion was about $300,000.

RECAPITULATION OF THE DISASTER. An explosion of 1,600 kegs of powder at King's Mills, near Loveland, practically demolished the little village, and either killed or injured all of the inhabitants.

THE DAMAGE DONE. The explosion of 1,600 kegs of powder had just been placed in two large freight cars and the train was ready to move out when an awful thing happened.

THE HAVOC DONE. There was a terrific roar, a cloud of earth and rocks, dead bodies mingled with all sorts of debris, and out of a volume of smoke came the agonized yells of wounded human beings, literally roasting in a furnace.

THE HAVOC DONE. Huge holes had been bored in the distressed earth, and the hillsides that rose from the railroad tracks had its entire surface torn off.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion shook the earth for miles and every one knew a disaster had befallen the powder mills.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

body, no inquest could be held. He believed that the cause of the explosion in this community it would not be at least be avoidable for the coroner to investigate now, even if the case demanded it.

ALL IN CONFUSION. DIFFICULTY OF LEARNING THE NAMES OF THE VICTIMS.

No Trace of Three Families Living in the Immediate Vicinity of the Explosion—Ten Girls Saved From a Horrible Death by a Rope.

CINCINNATI, July 15.—A messenger of the Adams Express Company, on the local train of the Panhandle railroad, arrived from the scene of the explosion at 12:45 this morning.

SEARCHING FOR THE DEAD. The Scene of the Disaster Abandoned in Ghastly Silence.

St. Paul, July 15.—Thousands of curious people to-day visited the scene of Sunday night's cyclone at Lake Charles.

CAPTAIN WETHERS ARRESTED. The Master of the Ill-Fated Steamer Imprisoned for His Own Protection.

RECAPITULATION OF THE DISASTER. An explosion of 1,600 kegs of powder at King's Mills, near Loveland, practically demolished the little village, and either killed or injured all of the inhabitants.

THE DAMAGE DONE. The explosion of 1,600 kegs of powder had just been placed in two large freight cars and the train was ready to move out when an awful thing happened.

THE HAVOC DONE. There was a terrific roar, a cloud of earth and rocks, dead bodies mingled with all sorts of debris, and out of a volume of smoke came the agonized yells of wounded human beings, literally roasting in a furnace.

THE HAVOC DONE. Huge holes had been bored in the distressed earth, and the hillsides that rose from the railroad tracks had its entire surface torn off.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion shook the earth for miles and every one knew a disaster had befallen the powder mills.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

A DOCTORED CENSUS, According to Democratic Charges, is Now Being Arranged to.

INSURE A REPUBLICAN CONGRESS. A New Apportionment Bill to be Pushed Through This Session.

N'CLURE'S ATTACK ON BRECKENRIDGE. He Practically Accused Him of the Assassination of John M. Clayton.

Democrats at Washington charge that the census returns have been and are being doctored, with the intention of passing an apportionment bill at this session of Congress.

SEARCHING FOR THE DEAD. The Scene of the Disaster Abandoned in Ghastly Silence.

St. Paul, July 15.—Thousands of curious people to-day visited the scene of Sunday night's cyclone at Lake Charles.

CAPTAIN WETHERS ARRESTED. The Master of the Ill-Fated Steamer Imprisoned for His Own Protection.

RECAPITULATION OF THE DISASTER. An explosion of 1,600 kegs of powder at King's Mills, near Loveland, practically demolished the little village, and either killed or injured all of the inhabitants.

THE DAMAGE DONE. The explosion of 1,600 kegs of powder had just been placed in two large freight cars and the train was ready to move out when an awful thing happened.

THE HAVOC DONE. There was a terrific roar, a cloud of earth and rocks, dead bodies mingled with all sorts of debris, and out of a volume of smoke came the agonized yells of wounded human beings, literally roasting in a furnace.

THE HAVOC DONE. Huge holes had been bored in the distressed earth, and the hillsides that rose from the railroad tracks had its entire surface torn off.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion shook the earth for miles and every one knew a disaster had befallen the powder mills.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

A BITTER ATTACK MADE UPON MR. BRECKENRIDGE. The Attorney Called to Order by Members of the Committee—The Arkansas Congressman Will Submit a Reply in His Own Behalf To-Day.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The House Committee on Elections, to-day, heard arguments by Judge John McClure, of Arkansas, upon the Breckenedge election case.

Democrats at Washington charge that the census returns have been and are being doctored, with the intention of passing an apportionment bill at this session of Congress.

SEARCHING FOR THE DEAD. The Scene of the Disaster Abandoned in Ghastly Silence.

St. Paul, July 15.—Thousands of curious people to-day visited the scene of Sunday night's cyclone at Lake Charles.

CAPTAIN WETHERS ARRESTED. The Master of the Ill-Fated Steamer Imprisoned for His Own Protection.

RECAPITULATION OF THE DISASTER. An explosion of 1,600 kegs of powder at King's Mills, near Loveland, practically demolished the little village, and either killed or injured all of the inhabitants.

THE DAMAGE DONE. The explosion of 1,600 kegs of powder had just been placed in two large freight cars and the train was ready to move out when an awful thing happened.

THE HAVOC DONE. There was a terrific roar, a cloud of earth and rocks, dead bodies mingled with all sorts of debris, and out of a volume of smoke came the agonized yells of wounded human beings, literally roasting in a furnace.

THE HAVOC DONE. Huge holes had been bored in the distressed earth, and the hillsides that rose from the railroad tracks had its entire surface torn off.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion shook the earth for miles and every one knew a disaster had befallen the powder mills.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

IT MAY BE HUSHED UP. Nobody in Beaver County Eager to Press the Boodie Charges.

BEFORE THE CRIMINAL COURTS. Butler, Politician, However, Demands a Full Investigation.

FIFTY DOLLARS PAID TO ONE WORKER. According to the Testimony Introduced in the Eastern Case.

There is a difference of opinion as to the outcome of the Twenty-fifth district middle. Many people believe that there will be no criminal prosecutions for bribery, as those most guilty cannot be reached.

SEARCHING FOR THE DEAD. The Scene of the Disaster Abandoned in Ghastly Silence.

St. Paul, July 15.—Thousands of curious people to-day visited the scene of Sunday night's cyclone at Lake Charles.

CAPTAIN WETHERS ARRESTED. The Master of the Ill-Fated Steamer Imprisoned for His Own Protection.

RECAPITULATION OF THE DISASTER. An explosion of 1,600 kegs of powder at King's Mills, near Loveland, practically demolished the little village, and either killed or injured all of the inhabitants.

THE DAMAGE DONE. The explosion of 1,600 kegs of powder had just been placed in two large freight cars and the train was ready to move out when an awful thing happened.

THE HAVOC DONE. There was a terrific roar, a cloud of earth and rocks, dead bodies mingled with all sorts of debris, and out of a volume of smoke came the agonized yells of wounded human beings, literally roasting in a furnace.

THE HAVOC DONE. Huge holes had been bored in the distressed earth, and the hillsides that rose from the railroad tracks had its entire surface torn off.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion shook the earth for miles and every one knew a disaster had befallen the powder mills.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

TO JOIN A PARTY AFTER FROGS SAID TO YOUR CORRESPONDENT. It is an amazing thing to the people that are told that consistency may be jewel, still, but on this occasion it isn't.

THE STATE TO ASSUME CONTROL. Large Number of New Cases Reported in the Spanish Provinces.

CHOLERA ON THE INCREASE. Rapid Spread of the Dread Disease in Spanish Provinces.

SPANISH REPUBLICANS ACTIVE. Circulating Stories to Arouse a Feeling Against Foreign Interference.

THE EASTERN CASE. FIFTY DOLLARS PAID FOR ONE WORKER'S INFLUENCE.

He Takes the Stand and Makes Public the Details of the Entire Transaction—An Endeavor to Bring the Charge Close to Senator Robinson.

SEARCHING FOR THE DEAD. The Scene of the Disaster Abandoned in Ghastly Silence.

St. Paul, July 15.—Thousands of curious people to-day visited the scene of Sunday night's cyclone at Lake Charles.

CAPTAIN WETHERS ARRESTED. The Master of the Ill-Fated Steamer Imprisoned for His Own Protection.

RECAPITULATION OF THE DISASTER. An explosion of 1,600 kegs of powder at King's Mills, near Loveland, practically demolished the little village, and either killed or injured all of the inhabitants.

THE DAMAGE DONE. The explosion of 1,600 kegs of powder had just been placed in two large freight cars and the train was ready to move out when an awful thing happened.

THE HAVOC DONE. There was a terrific roar, a cloud of earth and rocks, dead bodies mingled with all sorts of debris, and out of a volume of smoke came the agonized yells of wounded human beings, literally roasting in a furnace.

THE HAVOC DONE. Huge holes had been bored in the distressed earth, and the hillsides that rose from the railroad tracks had its entire surface torn off.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion shook the earth for miles and every one knew a disaster had befallen the powder mills.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE BELLAMY IDEA. May Be Tested in the Court of German Insurance Business.

AND AMERICAN COMPANIES TO LOSE THEIR LICENSES IN VATERLAND. Large Number of New Cases Reported in the Spanish Provinces.

CHOLERA ON THE INCREASE. Rapid Spread of the Dread Disease in Spanish Provinces.

SPANISH REPUBLICANS ACTIVE. Circulating Stories to Arouse a Feeling Against Foreign Interference.

THE EASTERN CASE. FIFTY DOLLARS PAID FOR ONE WORKER'S INFLUENCE.

He Takes the Stand and Makes Public the Details of the Entire Transaction—An Endeavor to Bring the Charge Close to Senator Robinson.

SEARCHING FOR THE DEAD. The Scene of the Disaster Abandoned in Ghastly Silence.

St. Paul, July 15.—Thousands of curious people to-day visited the scene of Sunday night's cyclone at Lake Charles.

CAPTAIN WETHERS ARRESTED. The Master of the Ill-Fated Steamer Imprisoned for His Own Protection.

RECAPITULATION OF THE DISASTER. An explosion of 1,600 kegs of powder at King's Mills, near Loveland, practically demolished the little village, and either killed or injured all of the inhabitants.

THE DAMAGE DONE. The explosion of 1,600 kegs of powder had just been placed in two large freight cars and the train was ready to move out when an awful thing happened.

THE HAVOC DONE. There was a terrific roar, a cloud of earth and rocks, dead bodies mingled with all sorts of debris, and out of a volume of smoke came the agonized yells of wounded human beings, literally roasting in a furnace.

THE HAVOC DONE. Huge holes had been bored in the distressed earth, and the hillsides that rose from the railroad tracks had its entire surface torn off.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion shook the earth for miles and every one knew a disaster had befallen the powder mills.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

TO JOIN A PARTY AFTER FROGS SAID TO YOUR CORRESPONDENT. It is an amazing thing to the people that are told that consistency may be jewel, still, but on this occasion it isn't.

THE STATE TO ASSUME CONTROL. Large Number of New Cases Reported in the Spanish Provinces.

CHOLERA ON THE INCREASE. Rapid Spread of the Dread Disease in Spanish Provinces.

SPANISH REPUBLICANS ACTIVE. Circulating Stories to Arouse a Feeling Against Foreign Interference.

THE EASTERN CASE. FIFTY DOLLARS PAID FOR ONE WORKER'S INFLUENCE.

He Takes the Stand and Makes Public the Details of the Entire Transaction—An Endeavor to Bring the Charge Close to Senator Robinson.

SEARCHING FOR THE DEAD. The Scene of the Disaster Abandoned in Ghastly Silence.

St. Paul, July 15.—Thousands of curious people to-day visited the scene of Sunday night's cyclone at Lake Charles.

CAPTAIN WETHERS ARRESTED. The Master of the Ill-Fated Steamer Imprisoned for His Own Protection.

RECAPITULATION OF THE DISASTER. An explosion of 1,600 kegs of powder at King's Mills, near Loveland, practically demolished the little village, and either killed or injured all of the inhabitants.

THE DAMAGE DONE. The explosion of 1,600 kegs of powder had just been placed in two large freight cars and the train was ready to move out when an awful thing happened.

THE HAVOC DONE. There was a terrific roar, a cloud of earth and rocks, dead bodies mingled with all sorts of debris, and out of a volume of smoke came the agonized yells of wounded human beings, literally roasting in a furnace.

THE HAVOC DONE. Huge holes had been bored in the distressed earth, and the hillsides that rose from the railroad tracks had its entire surface torn off.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion shook the earth for miles and every one knew a disaster had befallen the powder mills.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.

THE HAVOC DONE. The explosion had befallen the powder mills, and the little hamlet that surrounded the depot a quarter of a mile from the mills, not one escaped uninjured.