Weims on the Witness Stand Declares Positively That George Kelson Fired the Shot

THAT ENDED JOHN O'HARA'S LIFE.

Surt Sits All Day And Until 11 O'clock at Night in Order to Get on With the Case, but After All

IT GOES ON AGAIN THIS MORNING.

Arguments of the Attorneys Reard, and the Jury Looked up for the Right.

The Weims murder case was resumed yesterday before Judge Collier, * Weims created a sensation by charging George Kelson with having fired the fatal shots. Miss Wright, a school girl, who was passing along Fitth avenue at the time of the shooting, saw the offair. She swore Weims did the shooting. She had asked him why he shot, and he told her "none of her business:" she could not be shaken in her testimony. It was quite light on the street at this point. Officer Mike Hanley, who arrested Weims, said that he were a brown hat and overcoat. When the officers caught at Weims' hip pocket, Weims said: "I have no gun there." Hanly asked him where he had put it and Weims answered "I did not have any."

J. N. McNulty and Edward McNulty testified to the light in the sidewalk. Bcsides the electric street light there was a large office light, and natural gas jets and a big light at the stable entrance.

Mr. Wallace opened the case for the defense, and at once put the prisoner on the stand. His testimony caused a sensation. He fixtly accused George Kelson, one of the men accused as accessory, of having fired the shots. Weims said the fight began between Kelson and Pressel. Some one cried, "Hit the black cur." Kelson answered, "Oh, I guess not." Kelson then pushed through the crowd to Weims and said to the latter, "Give me the weapon Kelson fired twice. Weims left, and next saw Kelson at the Central station. He asked for his revolver and Kelson said: "I gave it to Hains to give to his old man. Don't say a word about it." He had not talked to Kelson since.

Weims said he had on a blue coat, and not a brown one, as Officer Hanley said. He stoutly denied that he had talked to Miss Wright or any other girl after the shooting. After the nuon recess Welms was recalled. He testified that he did not fire a shot on the

A BLUE OR BROWN COAT.

He testified that he did not fire a shot on the night of the murder. The quarrel started hetween Kelson and a white man named Pressel. He said he was in the crowd, and his revolver dropped on the pavement. Kelson grabbed it and fired two shots into the crowd. Weims then left the place, but returned again soon after to see if anyone had been shot. He then went to Mrs. Johnston's house, at 72 Logan street, where he was arrested, he identified the revolver Detective Coulson had found as being his, but stated that he had not used it, and reaffirmed that Kelson had fred two shots from it. On cross examination to his story.

Ella Tolliver, colored, testified that on the Ella Tolliver, colored, testified that on the night of April 5, she started out for grocaries. On the way she met Gertie Norris. They carried Miss Tolliver's basket between them. On Fulton street they met Harris, who put a revolver into the basket and loid the girls to keep it. Alise Tolliver let go of the baske, and Miss Norris took it. A short distance further along they met George Relson, who saked if they had seen Harris. They told blin they had seen Harris and the posted the revolver lind at the mouth of a sewer. Witness was positive she had not testified before the Coroner that Miss Norris had dumped the revolver into the gutter where it was found.

Lottie Johnston, of 72 Logan street, testified that Weims went to her house on the night of the murder, between 10:30 and 11 o'clock. He had on a black stiff rat. She identified the hat Weims had in the court room as the one he were on that night. Also his black overcoat and black pants.

EFFORTS OF THE DEFENSE. The defense made a strong effort to prove nesses in regard to Weims' hat that Kelson did the shooting. A package offered in evidence was identified by Miss Johnston as the one Weims identified by Miss Johnston as the one Weimstook to her house on the night of the murder. Witness was positive that Weims was not crying when he came to her house. He did not say, "I've got something to tell you," and did not lie down on the lounge face downward, with his face covered by his hands. She was positive she had not told Inspector McAleese and Detective Coulson that Weims had acted thus. Charles Ganse testified that Weims were a charles Gause testified that Weims were a stiff hat on the night of the murder, but he did not know what kind. Dr. J. Guy McCandless testified that Weims had been employed by him for six months. Their relations were severed about a month before the murder. Witness could not testify to Weims' general character.

Detective Coulson saw Weims after he was arrested. He then wore a brown stiff hat, which was somewhat larger than the black one exhibited in court. The black hat was positively not the one he wore when arrested. Witness did not recollect what kind of a hat Kelson wore. He remembered that Weims had a brown hat on because he had been looking for the man with the brown hat and brown coat al the murderer, and he noticed that Weims' hat was brown after he had been arrested.

Weims identified the black stiff hat and overcoat exhibited in the court room as the ones worn by him on the night of his arrest. Dr. McCandless gave him the overcoat about a pear ago.

KELSON TELLS HIS STORY. Here the defense rested, and George Kelson was put on the stand by the Commonwealth. Kelson said he did not work on that Saturday. On the night of April 5, Kelson, Frank Seymour, Ulysses Weims, William Harris and Charles Ganse followed the colored Mason's parade to the scene of the murder. They went on out to Tunnel street and were disorderly and josting people on the sidewalk. He heard Weims' testimony. He did not fire two shots and did not hear the shots fired. He first knew of the shooting after he had been arrested and placed in the Eleventh ward police station. Will Joinston gave him two revolvers. One he threw into the yard in the rear of 125 or 128 Fulton street. He did not see O'Hara and did not know there had been a fight. He did not fight with Pressel. He threw the revolver away because his boarding house mistress had told him the police were after him and he did not want to have it with him if arrested. He did not know at that time why the police were after him, He knew Weims had a revolver, because he dropped it at the B. & O. depot and Kelson saw it.

William Johnston, of 70 Clark alley, corroborated Kelson's testimony. While going up Elm street Weims said to witness: "Between me and you, Billy, I did that shooting." Johnston left Weims, at Mrs. Johnston's gate and went up to Fulton street.

District Attorney Johnston here offered in evidence several notes Weims had written to evidence several notes Weims had written to be a the prisoners in the jail in which he the other prisoners in the jail in which he made threatsagainst them if they swore against him at the trial.

Detective Fitzgerald contradicted Lottle Joinston's evidence. Kelson took him to rear of 126 or 128 Fulton street, and there they found the revolver.

Sol Coulson corroborated his brother officer's statement. Ella Tolliver told him where Gertie Norris had thrown the revolver, and there he found it.

ABGUMENTS AT NIGHT. William J. Brennen, Esq., in the evening spened for the Commonwealth. He outlined the case, reviewed certain discrepancies in the evidence, and made clear to the jury some points in the testimony which seemed obscure, Andrew Robertson followed for the defense. He argued in the line of an accidental shooting and asked that due mercy should be shown his James K. Wallace followed in the same line, making a masterly review of the entire evidence. He attempted to exonerate the pris-oper by trying to show that Kelson did the shooting.

At 9:30 o'clock P. M. District Attorney R. H. Johnston commenced to close the case for the pro-scoution. He made a clear exposition of the law as regards murder in its different degrees and was interrupted in a powerful advised in which he demanded a verdict of guilty in the first clogree.

At 11 o'clock the court adjourned till this morning at 9:30 o'clock, and the jury was locked up for the night.

WILLS FILED YESTERDAY.

One of a Woman Whose Lawyer is in Peculiar Position. The will of Martha Stowart was filed in the Register's office yesterday. She leaves her enbrother, John Gallagher, of Willow Springs, Douglass county, Kan. She names Dr. John Braham, of Dixmont, as executor. A peculiar feature of the will is that an attorney was one of the witnesses to the document, and after drawing it up and saying, as is usual in such cases, she was of sound mind, he signed it, and when he presented it yesterday, he made affidavit that she was not of sound mind. The proceeding is a peculiar one, but may be made clearer when the other witness files an affidavid.

Other wills were filed yesterday, that of John A. Umberger, of Elizabeth township, who leaves a small property to his family: Eliza Cornelius, of Neville Island, who bequeathes ser property to her children, and that of Capital Weisser, of the Tanth ward, who leaves the child wife.

SUED BY A MINE INSPECTOR

For Not Employing Pit and Fire Box According to Law. Francis Mankedick, a coal operator of Mc-Donald station, on the Panhandle Railroad, was tried in the Criminal Court, yesterday, before Judge Slagle,on a charge of misdeme in neglecting to employ pit and fire bosses in his mine. The prosecutor was Mine Inspector Blick. The testimony went to show that 75 Blick. The testimony went to show that 75 men worked in the mine, and that at times no bosses, as required by law, were employed, to the great danger of the miners.

The defense tried to show how hard it was to get bosses, owing to the rigid examination such men had to undergo, which made them very scarce. They also proved having had them at times, but not continuously, for that reason. The jury was still out when court adjourned.

To-Day's Trial List.

INSURING CHILDREN.

The Allied Humano necirties May Follow the English Way of Abeliahing Such Plans Altogether-A Domand for Additional Watering Places for Horses. floms discussion was also indulged in by the Humane Society Directors yesterday on the receipt of a circular from the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruslty, of Londen, England, on the question of child insurance. The directors agreed that the question was a highly important one, and will see to it that the placing of insurance on the lives of children for the benefit of the persons effected by the insurance is not abused. The directors propose to make abused. The directors propose to make some move in the near future that will put a check on fraudulent cases of that class of life insurance. In England a bill is pending in Parliament abolishing the system entiraly, and it is possible that the allied humans societies of America may follow the lead of their English brethren and attend to the preparation of a similar enactment in this country. In the meantime, the society's agents will carefully investigate all cases of child insurance that may the least semblance of irregularity on the part of persons effecting the insurance.

Since the beginning of the actual heated term, the Humans Rociety has been deliged with complaints that there is a woful lack of drinking places for horses in this city, and asking that the society do something for the best-fit of the poor work horses. President Eston was informed by the water department that there are now 12 places in operation in the entire city where animals can get a drink of water. Mr. Eston was informed that 12 more will be erected during the summer, but when, no one knows. The society believes that a less number than 56 such places is madequate to the needs of the city and urge all persons, who can do so, to provide a public drinking fountain.
