On bed of suffering, with her head propped up, lies the miserable, unfortunate woman. Her sunken cheeks and sallow complexion give her the appearance of a consumptive. Her long, dark plaited hair lay across her shoulders close to her white throat, forming a contrast that was shocking. A white cloth bound over her eyes and forehead left one in doubt as to whether that or her pallid theek was the whiter. Youngstown, July 18.-Mrs. Seth Martin reported to the police this afternoon that her husband had eloped with a dressmaker residing in the western part of the city. Martin is a house painter and came here a few months ago from Cleveland. Recently he induced his young wife, who is only 19, to visit her parents at Willoughby. O. chock was the whiter. The poor woman was suffering from epileptic convulsions and tossed about and beat the bed clothing as though undergoing the most excruciating pain. The spass lasted about two minutes and then left her as suddenly as it came. She was rational in an instant. Mr. Wuchter told the following sad story:

"My wife will be 39 years o.l on next Thanksgiving Day. When I married her, 19 years ago, she was a healthy, robust country girl and weighed 125 pounds. To-day she is but life in death and weighs not half so much. My wife had a severe sickness eight years ago. Her lungs were affected and she lost speech. She could never since then speak above a whisper. For over a year she has been unable to eat and has subsisted on oatmeal and similar food, which she had to drink. Seventeen months ago she became bedridden and has not tasted bread or meat in all that time. She continued to take food in liquid form up to last Good Friday, when she began to shrink from it as if it were poison. Ten weeks from Saturday she tasted coffee. That was the last time. She will not now even allow water to touch her lips, much less any kind of medicine. For over nine months every endeavorto give her medical relief has proven futile. She will, however, nibble potatoes and peanuts. Yesterday morning, for instance, a boiled potato was given her and she bit into it, but spit it out. She also munched several peanuts, cracking them open and biting them in half and then spitting them out. This she does frequently. But it is the only food that ever passes her lips."

Mr. Wuchter says he can't see much of a change in her condition. She is undoubtedly growing weaker, but her fast is not telling on her face and voice in a manner noticeable to her family. Besides her husband, she has three children, Sarah J., aged 18 years; Harvey A., aged 15, who is now their only support, as Mr. Wuchter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Nolf, reside only a mile from Whithall and visit their daughter daily. Manager Hecker took him out of the box in the fifth inning and put in Osborne, who pitched finely, holding the Brooklyns down to two scratch hits for the balance of the game. Osborne is considered the find of the season. His fielding was superb, and he made two timely two-base hits, driving in four runs.

The Pittsburg team were clad in new cardinal stockings and belts to-day and looked and acted more like champions than tail-enders. Measra, spalding and Beach called on President O'Neil this morning and congratulated him on the splendid work of the team yesterday. Mr. Spalding commented on the courage day-He Retired in Favor of Osborne, Who Held the Grooms Down Well. BROOKLYN, July 18.—The Brooklyn National League club turned the tables when they met the Pittsburg club at Washington Park this afternoon, giving that team about as bad a drubbing as they have received for some time. From the very first inning the home team had everything their own way, and banged the bail right and left. Coleman just suited the Grooms, and their slaughter compelled him to get out of the box in the sixth inning. Osborn, who exchanged positions with him, fared much better, as the Brooklyns only added two more runs to their score while he occupied the box. The latter and Sanday were about the only players on the visitors side that lined out Lovett. The field work by the Pittsburgs was very erratic, as the home team made a number of their runs owing to their numerous errors. The score: MPRCIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCE.

MOREHEAD A WINNER. The Pittsburg Tennis Player Takes First in the Tourney.

REED WINS SECOND IN SINGLES And the Same Men Win the First Prize

for the Double Team.

CRISTY WILL PLAY THE CHALLENGER The third day of the Pittsburg Tennis Tournament is over and the winners have been placed. S. W. B. Morehead, one of the favorites for first place, won the singles and R. R. Reed and Mr. Morehead were declared the best team at doubles. The day was all that could be asked for, for tennis playing, although the sun beat down upon the players and spectators with its usual disregard for people's feelings. As a result there's many a new "cheek of tan"

that betokens a day's outing and the annual trip to the sea shore may be postponed by many this season. Notwithstanding the terrible "scorching" the umpires receivedfrom the sun-they continued to officiate and thus contributed their little mite towards making the afternoon pleasant for their friends. As is usual in such tournaments the longer it continues the better the play be-comes. Gradually the poorer material is weeded out and then comes the tug of war. The matches yesterday were, of course, more interesting and exciting than those of the two previous days. The players had gotten down to cool, steady work, and though each was straining every nerve to win, the general good feeling among the contestants made it pleasant all around. CRISTY LOOKING OUT. Marshall Cristy, the present holder of the Grogan cup, has been present all week. Yes-terday he divided his time between practice with his "double" partner and watching the style of play used by his next opponent, Mr. Morehead. He had picked out the winner. Totals 7 9 27 18 0 Totals 2 5 27 10 5 and knows he has a hard man to defeat, that is, if he does defeat him. Both men have greatly improved over last year's form, and are pretty evenly matched. Each has his sup-porters, but none claim a walkover. To-day's match for the championship trophy will be a hot contest.

The semi finals in the singles absorbed a great

The semi finals in the singles absorbed a great part of the interest yesterday, as that would show the play of the winner of the tournament. Reed defeated Nevin without great difficulty, although the latter showed some excellent work. The match between Morehead and Buch was the major fight of the semi-finals and Morehead won. He also defeated Buch last season. The latter is an excellent player, but hardly played up to his usual form, though it is not likely that the result would have been different had he done so. WON BY DEFAULT.

The result of these matches left the final between Reed and Morehead, and the former gave it over by default. He knew he would be gare it over by default. He knew he would be defeated, as they often play together, and as time was short he threw over the match. In the doubles the interest was absorbed by the final contest of Reed and Morehead, of the Pittsburg Tennis club against Fay and Buch, of Altoona. At times this was a splendid scientific exhibition of tennis, then again it would resolve itself in a game to win, whether it showed up well or not. The hard drives would be left out and the ball would be bobbed into the air. But it at last settled down into a contest of good playing, and though the Altoona the air. But it at last settled down into a contest of good playing, and though the Altoona men showed some excellent work, they were clearly outgeneraled by the Pittsburg team.
Fay, of Altoona, was especially active and he made some beautiful strategic plays. The local men did not show as good team work as they are wont to do, but still they were a good match for their opponents. The result of this match made Messrs. Reed and Moreland the "team" winners of the tourney.

The second prizes in doubles were won by Messrs. Fay and Buch, of Altoona, by default, as Underhill and Williams and Gorman and Kinkaid were not present to defend their title to second honor. Messrs. Reed and Buch played the last match of the day for second prize in singles, and Reed won without great difficulty. The consolation prize goes to Walter Scott, who defeated W. Kinkead, and to whom Whalen defaulted.
