CARE AT CROSSINGS

Needed as Much by Pedestrians as by Cable Car Gripmen, in Order

TO PREVENT SO MANY ACCIDENTS. Bome Places Where Flagmen Might be Placed to Advantage.

SEVERAL OTHER REMEDIES PROPOSED

The violent death of the boy Wilkins at Eighth street and Penn avenue, on Saturday, following so closely on similar fatalities, has drawn public attention more than ever to the continued frequency of accidents-often, as in this case, with a fatal termination-on the cable roads. From inquiries made yesterday by DISPATCH reporters into some of the causes, it would seem that the accidents, as a rule, followed criminal negligence on the part of the public in crossing the roads without assuring themselves of the absence of danger. The evidence of the officers on duty at crossings, as well as others along the lines, went to show that many people, day by day, attempt to cross a street right in front of a moving car, and in other cases walk from behind a stationary car without ascertaining whether the other line is clear.

Both corner policemen and flagmen declare that every day they have to pull people right from under an advancing car. Women, it was discovered, were particularly negligent in this respect. One officer said be observed that women seemed to be satisfied that there was no car coming down upon them from one direction, without troubling themselves to remember that there were other cars traveling in the oppo-

OTHER CAUSES Of ACCIDENTS.

Another source of accidents was found to result from beys riding behind wagons, and in being chased off, suddenly starting across the street, forgetful of the cars. People also, were careless in crossing streets, after alighting from a car, without ascertaining if the car on the other line was out of the way. Mention need not be made of accidents occurring by getting on or off cars while in motion, as such persons take all responsibility on themselves.

But if, on the one hand, the public is largely to blame for accidents, on the other, not so certain that at times considerable responsibility for mishaps should not lie at the door of the gripman. It is urged by citizens who have given this matter attention, that the gripman should occupy a perfectly isolated position from the passengers, and that he should in powise have his attention distracted. The gripmen of the Citizens' and Central lines are isolated from the passengers, but it is not so clear that they are free from distraction. Speaking on this point, yesterday, an astute citizen

"Being a frequent rider over all the lines. I have had opportunity of observing the gripmen, and forming some opinions regarding their attention to duty. I have generally observed that they are careful, and keep a good lookout ahead, but I am clear that very many of them allow their atten-tion to relax, though perhaps unconsciously. Some of them, glancing ahead and seeing no obstacle in the shape of a wagon in the way, take occasion to examine the pedestrians on the sidewalks, look back into the car, or lift the door of the grip arrangement for a moment or two. Now, I hold that under the circumstance of the gripman's responsi-bility in driving a car along a crowded thoroughfare at eight miles or so an hour, or at ten or 12 in the suburbs, the chances of his attention being for one in-stant withdrawn from his work should be so that he could not look anywhere but ahead. On the Wyke avenue and Penn avenue lines this could be done by blinding the side windows and rear windows of the cab so that he could not see out through them. He has no need to, as the front window commands sufficient radius of vision for his pur-pose. On the Fifth avenue line the gripmen have an opportunity of talking to the passengers and otherwise having their attention distracted, a thing that might be rendered impossible by inclosing them so that they could not do so. The gripmen would proba-bly object, but it is better they should suffer some inconvenience rather than they should take chances on running people down."

Another gentleman suggested that brake-power with more instantaneous action would obviate many accidents. With the ap-pliances at present in use gripmen cannot stop their cars in a sufficiently short space. He said that a closer fitting shoe, which would act by one or two turns of a spindle brake, would be more efficious than the lever brake now used. All the important crossings, with the exception of two, seemed to be sufficiently guarded, either by flagmen or policemen. These two are the Central Traction Com-pany's line crossing at Grant and High street and Webster avenue and High street. At the latter point the double tracks of the the inter point the double tracks of the line meet and converge on a very narrow street. The traffic is considerable. But most danger lies in the fact that the chil-dren from two schools pass and repass, and that frequent accidents do not occur at this point is due to good luck alone. The in-habitants of these streets are strongly in favor of a flagman at this point, as it would relieve them from a deal of anxiety regarding their children.

SUNDAY REGULATIONS. Only at the Fifth avenue, Grant and Fifth avenue and Wood and Fifth avenue crossings is there a policeman stationed on Sun-days. On this day the other crossings, such as Market and Fifth avenue, Wood and Sixth avenue, Smithfield and Sixth avenue are without either policemen or flagmen. A triple line of cars passes the latter point, and some watch on the traffic was said yesterday to be necessary. The flagmen are on duty from 7 o'clock until 6 o'clock, when they are relieved by the night turn, who remain until the last car has gone.

The speed at which the cables of the various lines are operated is as follows. The Fifth avenue line, down town, 71/2 miles per bour; Washington street to Oakland, 101/2 miles; East Liberty, 11 miles; Penn avenue line, 8 miles down town and 10 miles from the Forks of the Road east; Central Traction line, down town 7 miles per hour, and from Wylie avenue power house to Minersville 9 7-10 miles.

Regarding the speed at which the Fifth avenue cars travel in the evening, several policemen and flagmen were emphatic in declaring that the speed was accelerated by a mile or a mile and a hali after 7 o'clock. This seemed so to the reporter, who specially inquired from Engineer Welsh, at the Oak land house, whether the speed was ever in-creased, and he said in reply that a uniform speed, as noted, was maintained day and
