COMPORTING THOUGHTS OF DEATH.

IMPROIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATOR. BROOKLYN, July 20 .- Dr. Talmage's sermon to-day is on "The Wide Open Door," and his text Rev. iv:4 - "And, behold, a or was opened in heaven." Following is John had been the paster of a church in Ephesus. He had been driven from his position in that city by an indignant populace. The preaching of a pure and earnest gospei had made an excitement dangerous to every form of iniquity. This will often be the result of pointed preaching. Men will flinch under the sword strokes of truth. You ought not to be rprised that the blind man makes an outer of pain when the surgeon removes the cataract from his eye. It is a good sign when you see men uneasy in the church pew and exhibiting impatience at some plain utterance of truth which smites a pet sin that they are hugging to their hearts. After the patient has been so low that for weeks he said nothing and noticed nothing, it is thought to be a good sign when he beguns to be a little cross. And so I notice that spiritual invalids are in a fair way for recovery when they become somewhat irascible and choleric under the treatment of the truth. But John had so mightily inculpated public iniquity that he had be-a banished from his church and sent to Patmos, a desolate island, only a mile in breadth, against whose rocky coasts the sea rose and mangled its voice with the prayers and hymnings of the heroic exile.

You cannot but contrast the condition of this banished apostle with that of another famous exile. Look at the apostle on Patmos and the great Frenchman on St. Helena. Both were suffering among desolation and barrenness because of offenses committed. Both had passed through lives eventful and thrilling. Both had been honored and despised. Both were imperial natures. Both had been turned off to die.

WIDELY DIFFERENT. of pain when the surgeon removes the catarac

WIDELY DIFFERENT.

Yet mark the infinite difference: one had fought for the perishable crown of worldly authority, the other for one eternally lustrous The one had marked his path with the bleached skulls of his followers, the other had introduced peace and goodwill among men. The one had lived chiefly for self-aggrandizement and the other for the glory of Christ. The sucand the other for the glory of Christ. The successes of the one were achieved amid the breaking of thousands of hearts and the acute, heaven-rending cry, of orphanane and widowhood, while the triumphs of the other made joy in heaven among the angels of God.

The heaven among the angels of God.

The heaven of the control shall perish." But over Patmos the heavens were opened, and the stormy sea beneath was forgotten in the roll and gleam of waters from under the throne like crystal, and the barrenness of the ground under the apostle was forgotten as above him he saw the trees of life all bending under the rich glow of heavenly fruitage, while the hoarse blast of contending elements around his suffering body was drowned in the trumpeting of trumpets and the harping of harps, the victorious cry of multitudes like the voice of many waters and the hosanna of hosts in number like the stars.

What a dull spot upon which to stand and have such a glorious vision! Had Patmos been some tropical island, arbored with the luxurisome tropical island, arbored with the luxuriance of perpetual summer and drowsy with breath of cinnamon and cassia, and tesselated with long aisles of geranium and cactus, we would not have been surprised at the splendor of the vision. But the last place you would go to if you wanted to find beautiful visions would be the Island of Patmos. Yet it is around such gloomy spots that God makes

THE MOST WONDERFUL REVELATION. It was looking through the awful shadows of celestial city. God there divided the light from the darkness. In that gloomy abode, on scraps of old paper picked up about his room, the great Dream was written. It was while John Calvin was a refugee from bloody persecution and was hid in a house at Angouleme, that he conceived the idea of writing his im-"Institute." Jacob had many a time seen | to the the sun breaking through the mists and kindling them into shafts and pillars of fiery kindling them into shafts and pillars of flery splendor that might well have been a ladder for the angels to tread on, but the famous ladder which he saw soared through a gloomy night over the wilderness. The night of trial and desolation is the scene of the grandest heavenly revelations. From the barren, surfbeaten rock of Patmos, John looked up and saw that a door was opened in heaven.

Again: The announcement of such an opened entrance suggests the truth that God is looking down upon the earth and observant of all occurrences. If we would gain a wide prospect, we climb up into a tower or mountain. The higher up we are the broader the landscape we behold. Yet our most comprehensive view is limited to only a few leagues—here a river ans there a lake and yonder a mountain peak. But what must be the glory of the earth in the eye of Him who, from the door of heaven, beholds at one glance all mountains and lakes and prairies and oceans?

As we take our stand upon some high point single objects dwindle into such insignificance that we cease to see them in the minuties, and we behold only the grand points of the scenery. But not so with God. Although standing far up in the very tower of heaven, nothing by reason of its smallness escapes His vision. Every lity of the field every violet under the grass, the timest heliotrope, aster and gentian are as plainly seen by Him as the proudest magnolia, and not one vein of color in their leaf deepens or fades without His notice. From this door in heaven God sees all human conduct and the world's moral changes. Not one tear of sorrow falls in hospital or workshop or dungeon but He sees it, and in high heaven makes record of

in all their ghastliness glower under His vision. Wars and tumults and the desolations of famine and earthquake, whirlwind and ship-wreck, spread out before Rim. If there were no being in all the universe but God, He could be happy with such an outlook as the door of heaven. But there He stands no more dispurposed by the fall of a kingdom than the dropping of a leaf, no more excited by the rising of a throne --n the bursting of a bud, the falling of a deluge than the trickling of a raindrop.

a throne con the bursting of a bud, the falling of a deluge than the trickling of a raindrop. Earthly royalty clutches nervously its sceptre and waits in suspense the will of inflamed subjects and the crown is tossed from one family to another. But above all earthly vicissitude and the assault of human passions, in unshaken security stands the King of Kings, watching all the affairs of His empire from the introduction of an era to the counting of the hairs of vour head.

Again: I learn from the fact that a door in heaven is opened, that there is a way of entrance for our prayers and of egress for divine blessings. If does not seem that our weak voice has strength enough to climb up to God's ear. Shall not our prayer be lost in the clouds? Have words wings? The truth is plain. Heaven's door is wide open to receive every prayer. Must it not be loud? Ought it not to ring up with the strength of stout lungs? Must it not be a loud call, such as drowning men utter or like the shout of some chieftain in the battle? No: a whisper is as good as a shout, and the mere wish of the soul in profound silence is as good as a whisper. It rises just as high and accomplishes just as much.

But ought not prayer to be made up of golden words if it is to enter such a splendid door and live beside seraphim and archangel? Ought not every phrase be rounded into perfection, ought not the language be musical, and classic, and poetic, and rhetorical? No, the most litterate outers, the unjointed petition, the clumsy phrase, the sentence breaking into grammatical blunders, an unworded groan, is just as effectual if it be the utterance of the soul's want. A heart all covered up with garlands of thought would be no attraction to God, but a heart broken and contrite, that is the acceptable sacribles.

THE SINCERE PRAYER.

I suppose there was more rhetoric and classic elegance in the prayers of the Phurisee than of the publican, but you know which was successful. You may kneel with complete elegance on some soft cushion at an altar of alabaster, and utter a prayer of Miltonic sublimity, but neither your graceful posture nor the roll of your blank verse will attract heavenly attention, while over some dark cellar in which a Christian pauper is prostrate in the straw, angels bend from their thrones and cryone to another: "Behold, he prayer!" Through this open door of heaven what a long procession of prayers is continually passing! What thereesions! What confessions! What intercessions! What confessions! What intercessions! What beseechings! "And behold a door was opened in heaven."

Eagain: The door of heaven is opened to allow us the opportunity of looking in. Christ when He came from heaven to Bethlebem, left it open, and no one since has dared to shu it. Matthew threw it still wider open whan he came to write, and Paul pushedshe door further back when he spokeed the giory to be revealed, and John in Revelation actually points us to the harps and the wiers, and the crowns, and the thrones. There are profound mysteries about that blessed place that we cannot solve. But look through this wide open door of heaven and see what you can see. God means us to look and catch up now something of the rapture, and attune our hearts to its worship.

It is wide open enough to see Christ, Behold Him, the chief among ten thousand, all the bannered pomp of heaven at His feet. With your enkindied faith look up along these ranks of glory. Watch how their palms wave and hear how their volces ring. Floods clauping their hands, streets gleaming with gold, uncounted multitudes ever accumulating in number and ever rising up into gladder hosannas. If you cannot stand to look upon that joy for at least one hour, how could you endure to dwell among it forever? You would wish yourself out of it in three days and choose the earth again or any other place where it was not always Sunday.

LOOKING HEAVENWAED. The Apostle's Vision on the Island

ways Sunday.

LOOKING HEAVENWARD.

My hearer in worldly prosperity, affluent, honored, healthy and happy, look in upon that bright company of the redeemed, and see how the poor soul in heaven is better off than you are, brighter in apparel, richer in estate, higher in power. Hearers, afflicted and tried, look in through that open door that you may see to what gladness and glory you are coming, to what life, to what riches, to what royalty. Hearers pleased to fascination with this world, gather up your souls for one appreciative look upon riches that never fly away; upon health that never sickens, upon scepters that never break, upon expectations that are never disappointed. Look in and see if there are not enough crowns to pay us for all our battles, enough rest to relieve all our fatigues, enough living fountains to quench all our thirst, enough glory to dash out forever and ever all earth's sighing and restlessness and darkness. Battles ended, tears wiped away, thorns plucked from the bosoms, stabs healed, the tomb riven—what a scene to look upon.

Again: The door of neaven stands open for the Christian's final entrance, Death to the righteous is not climbing high walls or fording deep rivers, but it is entering an open door. If you ever visit the old homestead where you were born and while father and mother are yet silve, as you go up the lane in front of the farmhouse and you put your hand on the door and lift the latch, do you shudder with fear? No, you are glad to enter. So your last sickness will be only the lane in front of your Father's house from which you hear the voice of singing before you reach the door. And death, that is the lifting of the latch before you enter the greetings and embraces of the innumerable family of the righteous. Nay there is no latch, for John says the door is already open. What a company of spirits have already entered those portals, bright and shining. Souls released from the sarthly prison house, how they shouted as they went through! Spirits that a speed up from the fiame LOOKING HEAVENWARD.

THE DOOR OF MERCY. The step beyond this life seems so mysterious you dread the taking of it. Why, who taught you this lesson of horrors? Heaven's door is wide open, and you step out of your sick room into those portals. Not as long as a minute will clapse between your departure and your arrival there—not half so long as the twinkling ce than this has been of an eye, not the millionth part of an instant. There is no stambling into darkness. There is no plunging down into mysterions depths. The door is open. This instant you are here, the rocks of the French coast, while the crow were rith the the crows of the French coast, while the crow were rith dily say the say they were singing yet. Even so in the last hour of our dissolution, when driven on the say they were singing yet. Even so in the last hour of our dissolution, when driven on the coast of the other world, may our dissembarkation from this rough, tossing life be amid the cliental singing of a thousand promises of deliverance and victory!

For all repenting and believing souls the door of heaven is now wide open, the door of mercy, the door of comfort. for the poorest as you have the coast of the other world, may out client and all fountains, deeper than all depths, higher than all beights, and broader than all breadths is the saivation of Jesus Christ which I pressure and wind the four and trenty elders which I pressure than the faint outline of whole empires yet outstretching beyond the capacity of any vision cave the eye of God Almighty. Youngstown, O., July 20.-Intense excitement prevails at Mineral Ridge, in the western part of the county, owing to the discovery of what promises to be a good field of meeca oil and natural gas. The Mineral Ridge Prospecting Company, while working on the farm of Jacob White, struck natural gas, and pushing the drill deeper were rewarded by finding mecca oil. moralize Cheese. LEATHER AND HIDES ARE ACTIVE

The Hot Weather and Heavy Supplies De-

The features of the grain and hay markets for the past week have been the strong and advancing prices, especially of oats and corn. The rise in oats since the week opened has been equivalent to 6c per bushel, and dealers are predicting still further advances before many days. Corn has advanced nearly as much as oats during the week. Cereal markets have taken on new strength all along the line, and demand is good for everything offered in spite of the extremely hot weather. Though wheat and flour have not yet joined in the general upward movement of cereals markets are very firm in both lines and an advance may be expected any day from present indications.

In produce lines the week past has been one of great activity. There is no longer the diffi-culty procuring stuff there was last week and demand is good for all that comes in good shape. Potatoes are not so high as at the be-ginning of the week when $4.50 was received for choice stock. The outside price to-day was for choice stock. The outside price to day was $4.00 per barrel. Apples of decent quality are very scarce and high and are likely to continue so all the season. Tropical fruits are moving out freely and prices of lemons and oranges have advanced sharply since last Saturday.

The Cheese Market. Contrary to common expectations in the early part of the week, cheese shows weaken-ing tendencies. This is due partly to the very early part of the week, cheese shows weakening tendencies. This is due partly to the very hot weather, and partly to beavy receipts. Receipts in New York on a singlé day this week reached 21,136 boxes, and markets there were somewhat demoralized. The price of Ohio cheese in New York at latest advices ranged from 5c to 6½c in job lots. With such prices there must have been a slaughtering of the innocents. It is hard to figure out anything but loss to the Ohio cheese maker whose product only yields 6½c, after freight and other expenses are paid.

There has been an unusual scarcity of fresh eggs in this market for several days past, and prices have advanced from 16c to 20c per dozen for choice stock within a week. By comparison with prices both East and West, it is developed that Pittsburg has been about the highest market for eggs in the country.

Even Boston quotations are below ours of late. In fact, it is devolved life there has been any better market for all lines of country produce than this has been the past week.

All commission men report trade as satisfactory, and, it is seldem that stuff is as well cleaned up at the commission houses as it is this Baturday.

The early advance was attributed largely to the buying of a prominent local trader, though helped some by the tenor of European advices and export news. The opening, however, was rather easy on reports of rains in Nebraska, and fair selling and prices receded slightly. There was good general buying, and the weakness was of short duration. Prices were bid up 3/6/2/6 for the more deferred futures. July opened ic higher, receded 3/6, August declined 4/6, being supported by a prominent local operator.

Shipment of Specie for the Week.

NEW YORK, July 19.—The stock market of to-day was a fitting tender for that of yesterday, as only 21,220 shares marked the dealings in listed stocks, and 21,099 of unlisted stocks, of which Sugar Refineries furnished 20,793. A market in which Reading furnishes only 100 shares. Northwestern nothing, Lackawanna only 300, and when the largest sales in any one stock is only 300% shares, and that a medialty.

have been in short supply for several days. There has also been a scarcity of berries and prices tend upward. Eggs are still very firm. Choice, nearby stock is hard to get. Creamery butter of standard brand is steady. Ohio cheese is quiet and weak. All tropical fruits are moving freely, and price of lemons and oranges steadily advances. The produce commission men find few grounds of complaint concerning the past week's trade. There has been a good demand for all stuff offered.

market in which Reading furnishes only 100 shares. Northwestern nothing, Lackawanna only 300, and when the largest sales in any one stock is only 3,080 shares, and that a specialty, the trading calls for little comment.

The interest of the day was centered in the dealings in Sugar Refineries, Sliver Certificates and Citizens' Gas, of Brooklyn. Sugar continued its rise of yesterday upon the favorable decision of the general term and scored a further advance of 1½ per cent to 77%, but at that figure plenty of stock came out, and it retired quickly to 75%, and after some fluctuations of small fractions finally cide at its lowest point. Sliver Certificates advanced again, but only reached 109%. The general list presented a firm front, but failed to move except slight fractions. Rock Island and Louisville and Nashville were rather strong, but their movements were devoid of interest. The market finally closed intensely dull, which even the bank statement, with its comparatively small loss in surplus reserve, failed to move, at about the opening prices. The final changes are in no case for more than a fraction, Sugar being down %.

Raiiroad bonds were dull and steady, as stocks and the business reached very few issues in which there was nothing of interest whatever. The dealings reached only $822,000. Government bonds have been dull and heavy. State bonds have been entirely neglected.

grounds given for the decision are that the enabling act admitting South Dakota to Statehood authorized the enactment of the prohibition clause in the enactment of the prohibition clause in the State Constitution. Such enabling act having been passed by Congress subsequent to the passage of the inter-State commerce law, therefore the prohibition law has received the sanction of Congress and the Supreme Court decision does not therefore apply to South Dakota.

This brings up a new question, which will be carried up, and which, if sustained, will be of great importance to all of the new States which have adopted prohibition.
