Ethelbert Nevin's Talks on the Nibelungen Ring Last Week.

THE SERIES MAY BE REPEATED.

Scharwenks, the Famous Berlin Musician Coming to America.

GOSSIP OF A LOCAL CHARACTER

On the past three evenings the spacious parlors of Colonel Robert P. Nevin's residence, at Edgeworth, have been crowded with music-lovers, mostly recruited from the Sewickley Valley, but with a fair sprinkling of city folk-all intently listening to the unfolding of the wondrous old tale of the "Nibelungen Ring," as composed by Richard Wagner in his four immortal musicdramss and described in words and pianoforte tones by Mr. Ethelbert Nevin.

organ and song recitals at Carnegie Hall and the open air concerts by bands and orchestras, given periodically at Highland Park, Herron Hill Park, Shaqyside, Allegheny West Park and Sewickley—to say nothing of the mealtime and evening music in leading hotels and the marching bands of all kinds in the streets—every inhabitant has abundant opportunity to hear music of some kind. A hearty godspeed to them all! The first and longest step in the musical advancement of the community is to catch the ear of the people at large, to get them into the habit of listening, so that they shall regard music as one of their constant and unfailing sources of enjoyment. Such an attitude toward music—even if it be at first positively bad music—turnishes the indispensable fulcrum for all kinds of levers intended to raise the standards of popular taste to the point where all will crave the best music. It is safe to say that every auditor went away with an entirely new realization of the intent and meaning of Waguer's art-work; with a new realization, indeed, of the capacity of absolute music (without vocal text) for expressing concrete ideas and

Mr. Nevin made no pretense of formality in his remarks, por even of connected logical arrangement of the subject matter. Taking up the pianoforte scores, he simply stated at the beginning of the "Rheingold," and, in the successive evenings, went on through to the sloss of the "Goetterdammering," telling close of the "Goetterdaemmerung," telling the story and describing the scenery and action as he went along, calling attention to action as he went along, calling attention to the more important leit-motifs with their meanings and treatment, constantly illustrating his words by snatches of playing and frequently playing whole scenes of the score. Indeed, the instrument was used much more than the voice, thus giving to the terse, but sufficient, verbal explanations a constant musical illustration more graphic than any words could be. It was like one of the handsome illus-

A horse came tearing down Bingham street. It ran into the Southside Diamond, turned up South Twelfth street, with hisharness flapping and cracking about his legs. Up Twelfth street he went at a terrific gait, and as he reached the corner of Washington street a Southside Short Line carwas cross ing Twelfth street coming down. The presence of the car directly in his path did not check the frightened animal in the least. He kept on and one of his bounds landed him squarely on the platform of the car.

The driver of the car jumped as he saw the horse take the flying leap and escaped to the sidewalk. The car horses kept on at their usual pace, and after traversing about half of the square the runaway vacated the platform and once more took to his heels, permitting the driver to resume charge. The spectacle of the horse on the platform attracted about 200 people in one minute. trated books whose plates from their raison d'etre, the text being explanatory and con-tributory. erayon sketching filled out and gave life to the bright fancies uttered by his tongue.

Mr. Nevin was amazingly successful in the all-but impossible task of portraying with the pianoforte the inner soul of the music that Wagner has embodied in his wondrous web of interlaced motifs in gorgeous orchestral colors. The most admirably contrasted tone colors were produced, throwing the themes into bold relief and giving a taithful "impressionist" reproduction of the score. Mr. Nevin showed a phenomenal familiarity with the whole of his subject matter, down to the minutest details of orchestration.

It was cause for regret that these "Nibelungen" talks were so inaccessible to the lungen" talks were so inaccessible to the music lovers dwelling in the heart of the city and in other suburbs, and many will no doubt rejoice at the information that Mr. Nevin is being urged, with some like-lihood of success, to repeat the series (which he has already given in Beston and Chi-cago) at some central point which all can Crotchets and Ounvers.

An operatte by Pauline Viardot-Gard titled "The Last Magician" (text by Tur-genieff), has made a happy hit in Paris. BEENHARD STAVENHAGEN, the planist, is engaged to marry a well-known vocalist, Miss Agues Dennis, whose change of name will sure-ly be for the better.

An admirably chosen popular programme will be given by the Gernert Orchestra at the third concert at Park Place Hotel, Sewickley, next Thursday evening. It is again seasonable to warn the vacating musician of piscatorial propensities that the tonic, too often on the lips, is apt to become dominant in the knee-joints. AND now Materna is going into the "farewell" business. They say she intends to go once more through her principal roles at Vierna next season and then quit. For how OR. HUGO RIEMANN wil, it is said, resign his position in the conservatory at Bonder-shausen in October, as he has accepted an im-portant post at Freudenberg's Conservatory at Wiesbaden.

TITO MATTEL the Italian song writer, residing in London, has falled and gone into insolvency. He had of late been speculating in shares and stocks, hence the collapse. Admirers of his songs would fain exclaim: "None' ter."

THE title of professor has been officially conferred upon Oscar Raif, the famous piano teacher of Berlin. Pittsburg's many musical "professors" have conferred the title upon themselves. This is truly a distinction with a difference.

THE Musikalische Rundschau announces the impending arrival of Remenyi, the violinist, at London, after a ten years tour around the world. Thence he will visit Paris, and subse-quently return to his native Hungary, not to get lost any more.

FACCIO, Conductor at La Scala, Milan, and the greatest orchestral leader Italy has produced, has been stricken down in his prime. His schoolfellow and friend Bolto, who has hardly left his side since his seizure, now writes that "all hope of cure is at an end, and the malasty slowly follows its fatal course"

SIR CHARLES and Lady Halle have been concertizing with great success in Australia. It would be kind of Sir Charles to stop off in Pittsburg on the way home and tell us how he les managed to create a highly musical atmos-phere around him during his long and useful career in a manufacturing community like our own—that of Manchester, Eng.

SAYS the Musical Courier: "Marquis Queux de Saint-Hilaire, son of old Saint-Hilaire, his father, recently presented to the Paris Con-servatory a valuable Stradivarius violin, one of the best preserved instruments of its kind of the year 1098." If the authenticity of the vio-lin is as doubly certain as the paternity of its donor, the Conservatory is to be congratulated on its acquisition.

A NOTHER instance of the amazing credulity of the European papers as to matters Ameri-can is afforded by the Frankfurter Zeitung, which is quoted as stating seriously that a New York singer "not only has silver and gold filling in her teeth, but diamonds also, and that the effect on the audience, particularly in pas-rages which require a full exposure of the front teeth, is danting?"

THE intensely national policy of the German Government is about to be extended into musical matters. The Prussian Minister of War intends to suppress all foreign terms in the music supplied to the army, such expressions as "crescende," "plane," etc., being replaced by their German equivalents. The casiest way to accomplish this reform will be to confine the bands to playing Schumann.

XAVER SCHARWENKA, the distinguished composer, pianist and teacher, of Berlin, sailed on the 19th inst. for New York on a pleasure on the 19th inst. for New York on a pleasure trip. In all three branches of his musical activity Scharwenka has attained first rank among his cotemporaries. He possesses, moreover, a most penial and interesting personality. America is giast to welcome him as a guest, and will be yet more pleased, should opportunity offer, to greet him in his professional capacity upon the concert stace. Mr. Eugene C. Heffiey, of this city, was a favored pupil of Scharwenka's, by the way.

"THE present difference between Gilbert and

"THE present difference between Gilbert and Sullivan is not the first," says the London Sullivan is not the first," says the London Figure, "for after the production of Thespis; or, The Gods Grown Older,' Gilbert wrote Princess Toto' to music by Frederic Clay, and Sallivan composed the music of the Zoo' to a libretto by R. C. Stephensen. This, however, did not prevent Sullivan and Gilbert from coming together again in the same year with Trial by Jury' and afterward with The Success,' the first two in the series of comic operas which have delighted audiences through 12 years.

LOOK at this item: "Under the direction of LOOK at this item: "Under the direction of Servals, Wagner's Stegfried' is to be produced for the first time in the French language at the Theater de la Monnaie, Brussels," Then at this: "Stegfried' and 'Gotterdammerung' are to follow Rheingold' and the 'Walkure' at the National Opera House in Boda-Pesth, the operas being sung in the Hungarian language." And then reflect that the dominant Anglo-Saxon has never heard one of Wagner's later operas the his mother tongue. Are the Franks and Huns again to conquer the leaders of cavilization.

It is announced that Emil Sauer has received the appointment as chief piano instructor at the Reyal Conservatory of Music, Dresden. Go It seems only yesterday that the writer witnessed the debut in Berlin of a long, lank lad, who flung his hands at the defenseless key-board with an exuberance of technique that was positively provoking, and that caused Lessman, Ehrlich and the other critics to philosophize at great length the next day upon the anusical conditions that could suddenly bring out a derziling virtuoso, armed cap-a-pie, in the person of a mere boy whose name they had never heard before. That was Emil Sauer; he can't be more than 25 years old now. From total obscurity to his present position is a pretty good jump for such a youngster to make in five years.

NECESSITY FOR THE ELECTION BILL

THE FAIR A FAILURE,

If the Site is Divided, Says Colonel

Clarkson, of lowa.

PEPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATOR ! CHICAGO, July 26 .- James S. Clarkson, First Assistant Postmaster General, passed through Chicago to-day, leaving for the East on the 3 o'clock train. In a brief conversation with a representative of THE DISPATCH this morning he expressed the opinion that the Columbian Exposition would be a flat failure if the site should be would be a flat failure if the site should be divided as is proposed and part of it located on the Lake Front and part at Jackson Park. "I say this as a friend of Chicago," he continued. "My reasons for making this prediction are based on conversations with representative men of the eleven western States through which I have passed in my 9,000 miles journey in the West and Northwest. We should remember that more than one-half of the productiveness of this country is due to the farmers, iveness of this country is due to the farmers, and an American fair without most ample and conspicuous place being given to the agricultural interests would be disastrous. One of the greatest attributes to a successful fair is the integrity of its whole. By the

the impressiveness so inseparable from great size is alone obtainable. The West is laying great store in the fair. It is interested in its success, recognizing that from such success the greatest advantage to itself will accrue. The surplus millions of the world can find profitable investment in the great West, and through the fair the West expects to offer to the East an invitation so flattering as to be irresistible. The proposition to divide the site has given rise to a feeling that the agricultural interests are to be made a side-show, and has aroused antagonism in the minds of many. The veteran showman, Barnum, illustrates the value of the plea of unity; imagine the effect were he to divide his show, placing one tent in one part of the city, another a mile off and so on. I speak disinterestedly, and in saying what I have I believe I express the opinion of the great, but unappreciated West."

Speaking of polities Mr. Clarkson said he ADHERENCE TO SUCH A PRINCIPLE

ciated West."

Speaking of polities Mr. Clarkson said he had no doubt that Congress during its present session would pass the tariff and election bills. Whether either would be materially altered from its present shape he could not say.

Of Blaine's reciprocity recommendations he said: "I think Mr. Blaine made a mistake in holding his LIGHT UNDER A BUSHEL too long. He says he recommended reciprocity to the committee before the tariff bill was passed. He should have given his valuable ideas to the country in order that public opinion might be found to support them. By not doing so the public supported the McKinley bill, and it passed the House. Should any material alterations be made in it, I doubt its passing this session. As for the threatened boycott of the South, I think that the threat itself is proof that an election bill is needed, so that everybody can have a vote, and when that is done the whites will be perfectly satisfied. They don't think so now—but they didn't think they would be satisfied with abolition."

Referring to his own position, Mr. Clarktoo long. He says he recommended recithey would be satisfied with abolition."

Referring to his own position, Mr. Clarkson said: "I shall hand in my resignation upon my return to Washington to take effect about August 20, by which time I hope to have completed certain business intrusted to my care. Of my subsequent movements I am not prepared to taik." WANTED A SHORTER ROUTE.

A UNION OF THEIR OWN.

How Expressmen See That Their Rivals Do Not Cut Rates. The latest in a union is that effected by the expressmen at the foot of Fifth avenue.

A lady who had occasion to have some trunks and baggage moved from one residence to another on Penn avenue the other dence to another on Penn avenue the other day and employed one of the expressmen found at their acknowledged stand to do the work, was afterward, much to her surprise, made referee as to the price paid. The trunks were unpacked and stowed away in the garret, when the maid ascended the stairs and informed milady that the man who moved her trunk wished to see her. Wondering much what had given her the honor of a visit, as the man had received his money for the work ere he left the house, the lady made her appearance as the front door and beheld two expressmen, one on either side of the vestibule, ance at the front door and beheld two ex-pressmen, one on either side of the vestibule, and half a dozen youngsters, ranging in years from 6 up to 9, occupying various po-sions on the steps, while out in the street were the respective vehicles belonging to the two men.

"Lady, we wish to know what this man offered to haul your trunks for?" said the strange expressman, at the same time doffing his hat. "What difference does it make to you what he charged me?"
"Well, it makes considerable difference.
What was his price?"
"Shall I tell him?" asked the lady thus mained woefully silent.

"Yes, madame, if you please."
"One dollar." "One dollar."

"On!" was the ejaculation of the questioner, who donned his hat and made a rapid exit to his wagon, while the supposed culprit remained long enough to say that the other expressmen had accused him of cutting prices, and he took that means of vindicating himself, before he and the small company of youthful witnesses took their de-

Housekeepers well know that "a penny saved is a penny earned," and the more pennies you save naturally the more you earn. And you ask the question, How can we save? Well, let us suggest that, by dealing with a firm who have a reputation for honesty and fair dealing, to say nothing of "low prices," you save many a hard-earned dollar. We can proudly say we have earned such a reputation by perseverance and hard work, and come what may, we are bound to

YOU CAN SEE AT A GLANCE

That for the fall we are going to offer some of the greatest inducements yet placed before the housekeepers of Pittsburg in

CARPETS AND DRAPERIES.

Our Carpet trade in the spring was something we are proud of, but this fall we propose making it excell any season we have ever run. New goods coming in every day. New patterns, and all the qualities known to the trade. In LACE CURTAINS we have just received a very large consignment of patterns never yet seen in Pittsburg, and they are beauties, at the price. We still have a number of single and half pairs left, which are bargains, at ONE-THIBD THEIR VALUE. PORTIERES at prices simply astonishing. Double Dado, Double Fringed, and warranted all Chenille, as low as $10 per pair.

Your Bed Room, Your Parlor, or

Your Dining Room May need refitting this fall; if it does, do not fail to call on us before making your selection. If we cannot suit you, there is no one in the city who can. Look over 3-PIECE, ANTIQUE OAK FINISH BEDROOM SUITES.

$18, $20, AND $25 AND UP TO $200. These goods are marvels for the money, and need only be seen to be appreciated. A complete line of Solid Walnut Suites from $40 to $300. We can completely furnish any room in your house, or cheerfully furnish you an estimate on one room or twenty, at the same time giving you terms of payment, that no other house in the city could or would dare offer you.
