THE FARMERS' WOES.

Many and Grievous Burdens Borne by the Long-Suffering Agriculturist,

IN THE OPINION OF SENATOR VEST.

The Old Argument That Protection Benefits Only the Manufacturer Rehearsed at Length.

THE MANY FAULTS IN THE TARIFF BILL

As Seen Through Democratic Spectacles Also Pointed Out by Senator Turpie.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The consideration of the House bill for the transfer of the Revenue Marine Service to the Navy Department, with Mr. Cockrell's arguments against the measure, chiefly occupied the attention of the Senate during the early part of the session to-day. Mr. Cockrell had not concluded his speech when, at 2 o'clock, the presiding officer laid before the Senate the tariff bill as the "unfinished business." Mr. Gray moved to continue the consideration of the revenue marine bill.

Mr. Frye said that the friends of the revenue bill had occupied but an hour and a half upon it, its enemies (a small minority), all the rest of the time. It was as evident to the Senate as if the purpose had been announced that the time had been occupied for the purpose of preventing a vote on the measure.

A WAY TO STOP DEBATE WANTED.

That only indicated (what he really believed in), the necessity of a previous question in the Senate—of some way to stop debate, of some way to prevent a Senator from jumping up every morning for three or four mornings in succession and reading from the report of a clerk in the Treasury Department. Why should not a vote be taken on the bill? If there is a majority of the Senate in favor of it, why should it not be permitted to say so?

The Senator from Ohio, (Mr. Sherman), had made four speeches upon the bill, and in the course of them, had read the same identical articles which the Senator from Missouri has occupied the last three mornings in reading. The time had not been taken up by the friends of the measure, but had been taken up deliberately and purposely in filibustering against it. Mr. Cockrell pronounced Mr. Frye's statement in reference to himself as without one particle of foundation. When that Senator said or intimated, that he (Mr. Cockrell) had consumed time in filibustering, he intimated that which he knew nothing about, for it was not true.

THE TARIFF DEBATE BEGUN.

The question was taken on Mr. Gray's motion and it was rejected—yeas, 14; nays, 34. The tariff bill was then taken up, and Mr. Vest addressed the Senate in opposition to it.

The advocates of high tariff taxation, he said, were confronted by a great peril. For years the farmers had been told that the home market was all they needed, and that the foreign market was a bagatelle almost worthless. Now a great change has come. They depressed the agricultural interests and the emphatic demand of the farmers for something besides lying statistics and frothy declamation had caused President Harrison and Mr. Blaine to urge upon Congress legislation for subsidies to steamships and for reciprocity treaties with the South American States in order to obtain a foreign market for American products.

It was very hard on the home market. The high priests of protection were now burning incense on the altars of free trade, and were yelling for reciprocity treaties, subsidies to steam and sailing vessels, Pan-American conventions—anything to bring about free trade with the South American States, so as to enlarge the foreign market for American products.

VEST ON FARMERS' WANTS.

Mr. Vest went on to criticise the provisions of the pending bill that are supposed to be for the benefit of the farmers, and said that what the farmers wanted was the opening and enlargement of foreign markets for their surplus wheat, corn, cattle and pork, and the decrease of tariff duty on clothing, hardware, tin and other necessary articles of daily and incessant use by the farmer and his family. The time for soothing syrups and emollient applications was past, and the full grown men who had been for years pandered under the pretext of a home market would be no longer satisfied with garbled statistics or with the purring official assurance that the farmer would be relieved by higher taxation.

Mr. Vest spoke on proposed increase of duties on wheat, oats, barley, rye, and other farm products, and asked how it was possible to protect American farmers against a competition which did not exist. The whole thing, he said, was nothing but a pyramid of fraud and humbug.

PAYING POLITICAL DEBTS.

The provision of the bill reducing the duty on rice and rice flour, he declared, was to repay the mill owners their contributions to the campaign fund of the Republican party during the last Presidental canvass, and as the planters of the South were Democrats and the negroes were regarded by the Republican managers as mere political chattels, who could contribute nothing, the duties on Northern manufacturers were increased, while the duty on rice was diminished. The proposed increase of the duty on cattle, while no cattle were imported except for breeding purposes, Mr. Vest characterized as the baldest and most disgusting piece of humbug ever exhibited even in politics. The same pretense, he said, was seen in the increased duties on hogs, sheep, horses and mules.

Referring to the proposed increase of duty on tin plate—of which $21,000,000 worth was imported from England last year—Mr. Vest said that it was for the purpose of forcing the people of the United States to the use of Pittsburg galvanized iron. And we then, (said he) ask Great Britain to remove her quarantine restrictions on American cattle. We stand, with sword in hand, to prevent the importation of British goods, while we expect her people to take our products without a word of objection.

AGRICULTURAL DEPRESSION.

The farmer who could not see that he was the victim under the high tariff system was a hopeless partisan. The farmer furnished nearly four-fifths of the exports of the country; and if the foreign market was unfriendly or was absolutely closed against him, he would have to keep his surplus products at home and help to lower prices by glutting the market. It was claimed, he said, that the tax on wool was for the farmer's protection; but all that he asked was that every farmer would put, face to face, all that he received for his wool and all that he paid for woolen clothing by reason of increased taxation, and then turn to the faces of wife and children for an answer.

VEST ON FARMERS' WANTS.

He asserted that the consumers of the United States were being systematically plundered under the pretense of protection to home industries. No further concealment was possible. The truth was at last revealed. The manufacturers who were persistently asking higher duties to exclude foreign competition were availing themselves of the monopoly given by the exclusive tariff to charge the people of this country from 20 to 70 per cent higher for their goods than they could sell the same articles for in the unprotected markets of the Old World. It was no longer protection, but pure, simple, naked plunder.

TURPIE DOESN'T LIKE IT.

Mr. Turpie addressed the Senate on Mr. McPherson's resolution to recommit the bill, with instructions to report a bill to reduce revenue and to equalize duties on imports, in which the average ad valorem rate of duty on all dutiable articles shall not exceed the average ad valorem war tariff rate of 1864. He declared himself in favor of a recommittal of the bill and said that he would vote for it. He would even vote for its indefinite postponement. He would support any line of policy calculated to defeat or to delay its enactment. Believing as he did that the pending bill was one of the worst, the most unjust, the most oppressive, that had ever characterized the legislative overtures of a free government, if there was a choice to be made between it and the Morrill tariff of 1864, (an imperative choice) he would choose the Morrill tariff. He thought it infinitely preferable.

The question was taken on the motion to recommit and it was defeated by a strict party vote—yeas, 19; nays, 29. The reading of the bill by paragraphs for amendment was begun—the first schedule being that as to chemicals, oils and paints.

Mr. McPherson moved to reduce the duty on acetic or pyroligneous acid not exceeding the specific gravity of 147.001 from 1½ cents to 1 cent per pound, and of acid exceeding that specific gravity from 4 to 3 cents per pound. The vote was—yeas, 15; nays, 23—no quorum.

But little more business was transacted and the Senate adjourned.

WILL GIVE THE MILLS A REST.

One or Two Weeks of Idleness in August to Relieve the Overproduction.

FALL RIVER, MASS., July 28.—At a meeting of the Manufacturers' Board of Trade to-day, the agreement of New England mill men to shut down factories in order to relieve the overstocked market was read. No one opposed the scheme, but after a long debate it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of the Executive Committee, which will see the local manufacturers individually and secure their signatures to an agreement to shut down one week in August and two if necessary.

There are 700,000 pieces on the market at present, and an amount equal to two weeks' production by the New England mills.

HELD THE PHYSICIAN.

The Annie Goodwin Investigation Results in Finding Dr. McGonigal Guilty.

NEW YORK, July 28.—The coroner's jury in the Annie Goodwin case returned a verdict this afternoon finding that she came to her death on July 12, 1890, at the house of Mrs. Shaw, 117 East One Hundred and Fifth street, from an operation performed by Dr. McGonigal.

They also find that Augustus Harrison was an accessory before the act, and that Mrs. Fannie Shaw was also an accessory before the act, and Davis, the coachman, an accessory after the act.

COULDN'T PUT UP THE MARGINS

And a Chicago Grain Speculator Goes Up for $150,000.

CHICAGO, July 28.—E. H. Hess, a member of the Board of Trade since its formation, failed to-day. He was short about 2,000,000 bushels of oats, and the recent rapid rise in that cereal forced him to the wall. His liabilities are about $150,000, and he had about $80,000 up in margins.

To-day the market reached a point where Mr. Hess could put up no margins, and his property was bought in under the rules.

STRIKERS PARADING THE STREETS.

All the Cigar Workmen Ordered Out at Binghamton.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 28.—The hand workmen in the cigar factories in this city in which bunch makers and rollers who are now on a strike, were formerly employed, were called out this morning. The number is about 40.

A parade was made by the strikers to-day about noon. There were nearly 1,000 men in line. The situation remains unchanged.

Sensible Hints for Summer.

To the many hundreds of families who do not find it convenient to leave the city for the summer months the following hints will be found valuable. Avoid exposure to the sun as far as possible; do as little cooking as you can, thereby keeping your house and yourself cool, and the best summer drink by all odds is buttermilk. Cover your floors with cool and clean matting, hang lace curtains to your windows, thereby letting in the air and keeping out the flies, and where curtains are not used hang window shades that will exclude the light and heat. During the day wear a neat gingham dress and for evening put on a cool satine wrapper, bathe every day and get your hosiery, underwear, fans, etc., from Arthur Schondelmyer & Co., who have mattings at 8c and 10c per yard, lace curtains at $1 a pair and upward, window shades at 25c apiece and upward, ginghams, percales and satines from 10c to 25c per yard. By observing the above hints you will have no trouble getting through the summer. Come to 68 and 70 Ohio st. for cheapest carpets, wall paper and dry-goods in Allegheny. TTS

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE—

Mrs. Rusk, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, and a leading lady in Washington, is a thorough housekeeper. The following extract from a letter to a friend shows that, like a good thrifty housewife, none of the details of the kitchen escape her. "Light, sweet biscuit and cake is made with 'Thepure' Baking Powder. It is free from the usual objectional qualities of baking powders, inasmuch as it neither tastes nor smells of its component parts."

PRICES DIVE DEEPER.

If clothing that's worth much does that, its a wonder.

The generosity (?) of the prices ought to rejoice you.

First, they go down to "unheard-of" prices. Then, a new crop makes a deeper plunge. It looks as if the clothing business had taken to "auctioneer" shop methods.

The prices mayn't be any lower now than they ought to be. That depends on what kind of clothing it is. It must, at any rate, have been monstrously high before.

We couldn't pursue such tactics with our make. It's a mere matter of a small profit with us on the cloth, plus the work put on it. That's the true basis of a low price. All clothing that has real value fixes prices so. We can't hack and hack at our prices.

If it's for clearing up broken lots, our prices are lower.

STILL ANOTHER.

The Long Series of Local Test Cases Remains Unbroken.

SOME VERY PLAIN FACTS.

For many reasons it was a notable interview that the writer had with Mr. Joseph Marsh, residing at 303 Renfrew street. In the first place Mr. Marsh is well known and very popular among the citizens of the East End, and his story will be of great interest to them, as well as to the general public. The interview is notable in the second place for the remarkable experience it describes. During a recent interview with the writer, Mr. Marsh said:

"Eight years ago I contracted the whooping cough. Although to all appearances I got rid of it, the bad effects were still left in my system, and for many years I have not known what it was to enjoy a really well day. That may sound strange, but it is the case.

"At first it was not very bad. Cold followed cold, however, and soon I found the slight trouble had grown to a serious matter. My head and nose were constantly stopped up. I had a dull, heavy pain in my forehead directly over my eye. There were roaring and buzzing noises in my ears.

Mr. Joseph Marsh, 303 Renfrew Street.

"There was a feeling of tightness across the bridge of my nose. My eyes were weak and watery. I was continually hawking and raising large quantities of mucus, which would drop back into my throat. Often this phlegm was

STREAKED WITH BLOOD.

"The mucus would collect in my throat and nearly smother me. Night after night I have sat up in bed and coughed continuously. When I did get a little sleep it did me no good. I would arise in the morning tired and unrefreshed. In the morning matters were equally as bad. It would take two or three hours' coughing and raising to raise the phlegm that had gathered in my throat. Sharp pains would shoot through my chest. My heart would beat rapidly at the slightest exertion. I had given up all hopes of ever getting well, and really felt that death would be a relief, when I read of the wonderful success DRS. COPELAND and BLAIR were having in treating catarrhal troubles and determined to see them. I found their charges very reasonable, so placed myself under their care.

"The result has been truly miraculous. My head and heart no longer trouble me. The cough has disappeared. I eat and sleep well. My eyes are strong. I am refreshed in the morning and can do a good day's work. In fact all the symptons I complained of have left me, and I am a different person from the one I was when I first went under the doctors' treatment."

Mr. Marsh lives as stated at 303 Renfrew street, and this interview can be readily verified.

DRS. COPELAND & BLAIR treat with success all curable cases at 66 Sixth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa. Office hours 9 to 11 A. M., 2 to 5 P. M. and 7 to 9 P. M. (Sundays included). ANOTHER TRIUMPH
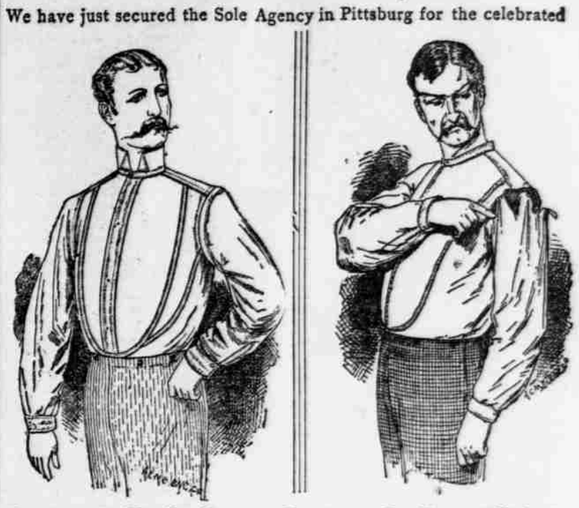
FOR THE ENTERPRISING KAUFMANNS.

We have just secured the Sole Agency in Pittsburg for the celebrated



Patent Reinforced Armhole Shirts!

(Patented Dec. 7, 1886, by the Wachusett Shirt Co.)

This improvement consists of a separate and distinct piece of goods, sewed on the inner side, which reinforces the seams at the armholes, and extending on the sleeve, thereby relieving the strain from the thin portion of the fabric, and effectually prevents the sleeve from breaking away at the place where it joins the yoke.

In order to introduce these excellent Shirts thoroughly and quickly we will offer them

AT 50c
DURING THE NEXT FIVE DAYS

They are unlaundried, which fact all the better enables you to examine the bosom (which we guarantee extra fine linen), the material (which we guarantee genuine Langdon Muslin) and the make (which we guarantee faultless.) They further are perfect fitting, have welt seams and reinforced back and front.

Remember, 50c will be the price for these celebrated Shirts during the next five days.

Make hay while the sun shines.

ANOTHER EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD OFFER!
Our entire stock of regular 50c fine SILK NECKWEAR
AT 25c.
See samples in show windows. Take any tie in the lot for 25c.
