After Suffering Defeat at the Henley Regatta America Gets the Worst of the Races.

PUGILISM IS ENJOYING A BOOM.

The Fighters Are Getting So Bold, However, That the Good Times Are Not Likely to Last Long.

BLAVIN'S CHANCES WITH M'AULIPPE,

Felly of the Continued Baseball War in America Progress Across the Sea.

PROM A STAFF COURSESPONDENT 1 LONDON, July 26 .- Last week with som amount of regret I had to notice the defeat of our amateur sculling champion Psotts by the Britishers, and this week I again must say a few words regarding the defeat of our amateur pedestrians at the amateur championship meeting at Birmingham. Before saying anything about the pedestrians I wish to say a few words to what I said last week regarding Mr. Psotta. My readers will remember the generous act of Mr. Protts in refusing to take advantage of Mr. Kennedy, who fell out of his boat almost at the start. Well, here is a fact which shows how the Britisher returned the compliment. A day before the race Mr. Psotta bet Mr. Kennedy $250 that he, Psotta, would defeat Kennedy, Atter their heat Mr. Kennedy, to the surprise of all the gentlemen rowers, actually took the $250. It really was worse than if Mr. Psotta had presented him with $500, the full amount of the bet, because had Mr. Paotta acted according to rowing rules. Mr. Kennedy would certainly have had to pay and would not have been in the final heat. As it was, Mr. Psotta refused to take advantage of the accident and really allowed him to get into the final heat. A meaner trick than that of the Kingston clubman I think couldn't well be imagined. But I am pleased to say that all the rowing talent condemn the conduct of Kennedy, and the general opinion is that his act was entirely of the wolfish kind and not of the centleman. Well, after all, the action of Mr. Psotta will almost add as much glory to him and to American sportsmen as if he had been victorious, and none of us can ever think of the Henley regatta of 1890 without thinking of the wolfish propensities of Mr.

But I set out here with the intention saying something about the amateur pedestrians, and I must say my few words before they are shut out or torgotten. The English amateur athletic championship contests are big affairs, although this year they were not so important as when Myers, George and Snook were contestants. This year the weather was not invorable, and the attendance was light. Of course, this fact some what dampened the enthusiasm of the affair at Birmingham; but throughout the country generally there was great interest in the various events. Many of the contests were international, and this caused great interest in them.

Some Speedy Runners.

The racing was very good, although nothing extraordinary was done except in the seven-mile walking contest, when H. Cartis, of one of the London clubs, broke the record. Before the contests started very many people thought that C. H. Sherrill, of New York, would win the 100-yard race. I of applications for seats at the club on the will take unkindly to a nearly lost position was somewhat inclined toward this opinion, | night of the fight. The Secretary, however, but our speculations were knocked completely out regarding the race, as Mr. Shervill did not start. The winner turned up in N. D. Morgan, who ran the distance in 10 2-5 seconds. It was stated that Sherrill was not in good condition, and, therefore, declined to start. Had he run, of course, providing he was at his best, I think he would have won, as the time of the winner was nothing great—in fact, it ranks among the slowest. The slowest time ever made during the 24 years the contests have taken place is 10 3-5 seconds, and best is 10 seconds, done in two successive years by A. Wharton, who subsequently became a pro-The track this year, however, was a trifle slow, but notwithstanding this I think that Sherrill, judging from what I've been told, can beat Morgan. They may meet this summer, and then we shall be able was represented was the quarter mile race. W. M. Christie, of the Manhattan Club, New York, was the representative and was a strong favorite. He ran well for 300 yards and then was out of it. Had the race been for the distance named Mr. Christic might have won but when that distance had been covered the Britishers were too strong for him, as four of them passed him and he finished fifth. The winner's time was 51 4-5 seconds. The time of Mr. Tindali, last year's winner, was 4814 seconds, which shows that the quality this year is not as good as last year. But it may be remarked that 481/2 is extraordinary time, and I ven-ture to say that it is good betting even money that none of our professionals this year can equal it. Although our representatives were beaten at the big contest I am inclined to think that they were not in their best form. The half mile race was a good one, as T. T. Pitman, of London, won in the excellent time of 1 minute 58 seconds. I mention this as it gives a pointer to American professionals as to what they may expect if they come here to run a half mile race. But I am inclined to think that the amatuers are better than the professionals here, because not many of the latter make it a business to continuously practice half-mile running. continuously practice half-mile running. At any rate I venture to say that very few indeed of the professionals here could have held their own against Mr. Pitman had the been in the race. Last year Mr. Tindall ran the distance in 1 minute 56 2-5 seconds. This was last going, no doubt, and certainly there is not a professional in England to-day who can cover the distance in that time, which goes to prove the truth of my contention that the amateurs are better than the professionals at the distance. G. B. Shaw represented New Zealand in the 120 hurdle race, but was beaten. This event was won by C. F. Daft for the third time. In 1886 he covered the distance in 16 seconds and this year he was four-fifths of a second slower. Altogether the running was very good and shows that the amateurs are still keeping up an excellent standard all have signed articles to box to a finish at the Armonde Club in October next for a purse of $4,000. The entire purse is $5,000, but $1,000 o: that is to be divided between the principals for training expenses. There has been any amount of bluff and banter over this match, and it seems sale to say that most of it has been caused by persons who try to wolf the Americans when they come here. There are certain newspaper people here who go in for the quack method of having themselves advertised, and they lay hold of every processional who comes from the United States who is fool enough to lend an ear to their conceited and egotistical boasts. It is really amusing to see the efforts of these people to have an American pugilist off the business track in hope that the move would somewhat handicap an opposition paper. This piece of humbug caused any amount of talk that otherwise might have been avoided, and it is to be hoped that not only Madden, but all other Americans who have business to do here, will listen as little as possible to the effusions of these alleged at authorities.

Well, as I have just stated, the articles of THE DISPATCH readers read this McAuliffe will be in active training. But one of the most singular things of the affair is that these men are to fight for the "championship of the world." This no doubt will surprise Americans who are interested in pugilistic matters. I venture to say that there is not a man in the whole of America who has at all paid any attention to pugi-lism who will not see the absurdity of any lism who will not see the absurdity of any such claim. But when I state that a certain New York gentleman, with his "diamond belt," or with Sullivan termed "a dog collar," appears on the scene here everything will be understood. "Bai Jove," as Jenny Hill would say, there ought not to be a great affair like a battle between Slavin and McAuliffe without our New York donater of diamond belts being squeezed into it. The belt donater is here and he must needsbe known. It would be a lasting disgrace. known. It would be a lasting disgrace to the British Empire if that belt and its donater was not brought before the public, and as a result we are informed that Slavin and McAuliffe, beside the purse, are to fight for the diamond belt representing the championship of the world.

This condition is really so ridiculous that This condition is really so ridiculous that I notice only one paper making mention of it here, and that paper is in its chief characteristics similar to the "diamond belt" publication. I would like to know how Slavin and McAuliffe can fight for the world's enampionship. Why Slavin is not even champion of Australia, his own country. Twice he was m tched to fight Peter Jackson and twice "something" prevented his meeting the colored man. McAuliffe, and beare man. But what is his meeting the colored man. McAuliffe, we all know, is a beaten man. But what is wrong about Sullivan's claim? Who has beaten John since he defeated Paddy Ryan? We all know that Sullivan and Kilrain fought for the world's championship and Sullivan won. It must then follow that the mas who desires to capture the big title must knock the big tellow out or make him fairly take water. However, as I have stated this belt business is merely a quack scheme to gain notoriety. Such like tricks are ruining bona fiide titles and as a result almost everybody who can put on a pair of gloves is a "champion."

The Probable Result. It seems early now to talk about the result of the proposed battle. Slavin is not much over weight now and he has engagements which will keep him busy until the first week in August. He will fight at about 185 bounds and will train at the sea- If the weather that has obtained here during side. McAuliffe has already commenced training under the guidance of Billy Madden and will fight at 210 pounds or thereabout. He is nearly 30 pounds over weight now, so that he must do lots of hard work before next October. Madden is confident that McAuliffe will win; indeed Billy does not hesitate to say that the big American is as good as anybody in the world. He claims that his man is just as clever as Slavin at least, and is much more powerful, and that barring accidents, Slavin is sure to be de-feated. I share his opinion and I may add that the referees have power, in case the battle is stopped, to say which party is responsible for the interruption and to decide accordingly. This is a great power and it is possible for it to be a troublesome matter with two referees. I cannot help thinking that two referees increases the probability of a draw, and that is a result that everybody is trying to avoid. Mark, I don't mean to intimate that either Mr. Angle or Mr. Vize is inclined to act unfairly, but I contend that it is often difficult for two men to be of the same opinion. It is much easier for two men out of three to be of the same only two acting. But I trust that nothing will happen to cause a hitch and that the battle will be decisive enough to settle all disputes.

Of course there are already any number states that only the members of the club who contribute towards the purse can witness the battle. This means that there will be numerous applications for membership between October and now. This is what the club wants. The battle is sure to caus considerable interest in England. Already it is the general theme in leading sporting papers and sporting resorts. But before it takes place I will not be surprised if Mitchell and McAuliffe have a "go" somewhere, I had a conversation the other day with Mitchell's brother-in-law, G. W. Moore, Jr., and he informed me that "Cholly" strict training for somebody. He ventured the opinion that it was a "go" with Mchave an inning amid all this boom. It may be, however, that it is intended for Mitchell and McAuliffe to have more than one "go" for the receipts. This seems very likely, as Billy Madden is in the "party" here that Mitchell is identified with. "Cholly" of course is confident that he can knock Slavin out, and thinks that McAuliffe is a better man than the Australian.

There is another probability, however, and There is another probability, however, and that is that Mitchell may be getting ready to have a "go" with Burke. Not long ago Mitchell told me that he would be extremely glad to meet Burke, and I am informed that Burke is willing to meet him. I think the Pelican Club would give a good purse for a battle between the pair. They have fought before with bare knuckles, and they made a draw of it. Each has learned considerable draw of it. Each has learned considerable since then, and many people think that Burke is as good as Mitchell. Of course Slavin settled the "Irish Lad" in two rounds, and that does not seem well if Mitchell has any show with Slavin. However, I always held the opinion that Mitchell. ever, I always held the opinion that Mitchell was a better man with either gloves or fists than Burke ever was. I will hold this opinion, I mean, until results teach me different. Burke is a useful boxer, and first class at his weight, but he is legitimately a middle-weight.

Some General Pentures. Efforts are being made to arrange a match between "Toff" Wall and Jack Burke, and it is likely that these two clever boxers will face each other before many weeks elapse. On Monday last they met to try and make a match but failed. The failure, however, was more owing to financial consideration than to a lack of desire of either to fight. Each man had money behind him, but it was agreed that nothing definite be done until it was seen whether or not any of the leading clubs would offer a suitable purse. I may add that everybody in the business is on the "purse plan." Well, Wall and Burke want a purse, and I think they'll get one. They would make a good contest, but I am inclined to think that Burke will be a little too much for Wall if they ever meet. Burke is quite a handy man, and certainly a better stayer than Wall. Besides, the "Irish Lad" has had considerable experi-An Absurd Claim.

Finally, Messrs. Slavin and McAuliffe much more at home in front of a man of Wall's build. Certainly Wall is a very accomplished and artistic boxer, but he is not as strong as Burke, and I doubt whether he is a whit better than Burke in avoiding a blow. Both men however, baye good follows. a blow. Both men, however, have good fol-lowing, and a contest between them will be very popular.

While Wall and Burke were trying to make a match I noticed Jem Smith making himself prominent. He wanted to have an engagement with Burke either to a finish, or a limited number of rounds. Jack Harper was present with the money for Smith, but Burke declined. The latter very wisely remarked that he did not feel inclined to give weight away when he could United States who is fool enough to lend an ear to their conceited and egotistical boasts. It is really amusing to see the efforts of these people to have an American pugilist of repute someway or other connected with the paper they publish. Talk of "Yankee blow," why, we're not in it. Well, one of these individuals got hold of Billy Madden when he arrived, and led Billy completely

He is a good-hearted fellow, and he strongly denies that he had anything to do with the breaking up of his fight with Slavin. He emphatically claims that he had the better of Slavin when the affair was broken up. He has no idea of visiting America. Whatever may be said of Smith, one thing is certain, and that is, he is a very clever and tricky boxer.

A Harvest Time. The harvest time is here now, as far as the boxing and pugilistic fraternity are concerned. It is all clover with the "scrappers" now, and certainly they have no anticipation of any other condition of things. There are dozens of places throughout London, independent of the clubs, where boxing contests take place regularly. These contests are not only of a limited number of rounds, but many of them are to a finish, and pretty lively they are. The purses offered are good, and very often the quality of boxing is very bad. Well, all this is just as it was in America a few years ago. During that period, the boxing period, I mean, we had hundreds of alleged pugilists stepping to the iront who were never heard of previously, and who have already been foresten. The public have already been forgotten. The public was gulled out of thousands of dollars by imposters, and as a result a reaction very soon set in, and the entire business was killed. I predict a similar result here. Now what I claim is this; that all this arbitrary interference of the law officers is caused by the boxers and promoters of boxing themselves. To speak in plain terms, there is not a more wolfish class of people in the entire sporting world than the pugilistic fraternity. This is chiefly be-cause there is not a more ignorant class. I don't say this in any unkindly spirit, but I simply mention it as a fact to show that they have no thought of to-morrow, and in every instance where latitude is given they overdo the thing. I frankly make this admission, that so many questionable things are being introduced into these public boxing contests that it would be better if they were stopped entirely, and they will soon be stopped here. I mention this for the benefit of boxers in America and their friends who contemplate visiting England. They must do so as soon as possible because the present craze cannot last. Even if the law does not interfere the clubs will find reasons to make them tired of the affair.

Euglish Baseball.

It may be interesting to many to read a few words about baseball here. I only intend to say a few words this week, as I find little change in the situation since last week. During the week uncertain weather has had its effect on the games. Of the eight scheduled only six have been played, and they have been very poorly attended. the last three or four weeks is a sample of English summer weather, baseball will have no chance at all in this country. However, if the weather had been good I don't think that the ball games would have been much better attended than what they have been. As I remarked last week, the teams are too unequally matched. Of course, Derby and Birmingham are making a fine fight of it, but Stoke still has only one vic-tory to its credit, and that was obtained from Preston. The Birmingham team, under Mr. Barr's management, continues to improve, and should the season be played out I will not be surprised it the Pittsburger's lot come out victorious. He has some excellent material in his team and if the public that they deserve they would no doubt blossom into a really good aggregation. They played a fine game against the Derbys the other day and won by 6 to 2. The score shows that there was at least some earnest ness in the game.

At present writing the record of games won and lost is Derby 10 games won and 2 lost; Birmingham, 8 won and 3 lost; Preston, 4 won and 8 lost; Stoke, 1 won and 10 lost. opinion than two to be alike when there are | This record shows that the contest is already a very uneven one, and this fact is sure to go a long way toward pulling any enthusiasm there might be in the game at Preston and Stoke. The former place has been used to the football championship, and its citizens in baseball. It seems to me that efforts should be used to get better players for both

The Consolidation Rumors.

Copies of THE DISPATCH received here give me to understand that the question of a consolidation of the Players' and National Leagues has come prominently to the front. Readers of this paper will know that I have dealt with this matter on several occasions, and judging from information I have received regarding the question, I am ready to believe that a system of consolidation would be welcomed by the majority of the National Anliffe at the Pelican Club. This is not improbable, because Mitchell is anxious to it would be the best thing for both organizations and for the public. I hardly that any supporter of the National League will for a moment contend that the new league is not just as important a factor in baseball now as is the old league. The new organization has, in my way of thinking, won its spurs and displayed a fighting ability that must give to it as much importance as can be given to any other baseball organization. One thing is certain, viz., that no new arrangement in baseball affairs can be made with any chance of success if the new league is not a party to that arrangement. This is a fact that baseball magnates ought by all means to keep in view.

Well, now, what is there to prevent a free and frank consideration of the situation by all concerned? Would it not be a proof of good sense and of wise business notions were all parties to meet and try to rebuild from the numerous ruins a baseball organization that will be a credit to the country? At present matters are nothing short of dis-graceful. Surely the miserable straits that the Pittsburg National League club and other clubs have gotten into, and the wretched work that is going on all round, ought to prompt men not to continue their childish pranks any longer. Only children and fools persist in folly, and certainly it is folly to keep up a conflict that already has disgusted thousands of generous patrons of the na-tional game. As I look at the situation im-partially I cannot avoid the conviction that the National League has played a very dis-appointing part in this conflict so far, and to-day it is almost as helpless as any base-ball organization in the country. Had the Pittsburg National League Club at the com-mencement of the season boldly demanded a change of dates in Pittsburg matters with it might have been quite different; but leaders might have been quite different; but leaders with no business brains and an oversupply of false notions of dignity, shouted for gore. And gore apparently has been had, but not from the source expected.

By all means let the two parties come together, and between them form an organization that will be worthy of respect. At any rate I think it would be safe to bet that next season will find only one club in Pittsburg. Aircady the signals of distress are conspicuous, and only show how empty all the talk of "plenty of money" was. From time to time I contended that it was all very well to sit in an office or in a store all very well to sit in an office or in a store and make boasts as to putting up one's "last dollar" for the club; but this kind of ephemeral patriotism soon vanishes when the drain on the pocketbook begins to be frequent. The truth of this contention, I think, has been proven. At last I seem to see proof of it in the affairs of the Pittsburg N. L. club. It is unfortunate that a club that has cost so much should be thus circumstanced. It looks as if thousands of dollars and years of labor were going to be absolutely wasted. It ever man deserved success Manager Haulon does, and nothing would please me better than to see his team finish the season up near first place. At any rate, the team is worthy of patronage, not only because of its good playing, but because everything possible has been done by its management to make it a popular organization. It has catered to the masses, and the masses should not, therefore, lorget to support it. PRINGLE. AT $1 25 a yard, 46-inch wide black silk warp Henrietta; an exceptional bargain; usual price $1 75. HUGUS & HACKE.

of the rate to Boston. Many comrades are quite bitter both on account of its height and on account of the disallowing of stopover privileges; more especially the latter. While nothing but a continuous passage will be allowed, according to the instructions, on the ex-cursion tickets, a quiet little story has been cursion tickets, a quiet little story has been going the rounds, and is believed by many, that all the stopoff privileges one could reasonably desire will be granted by one particular road, though the official instructions are otherwise. It is understood that quite a number have contracted to go over this road and are quite positive that they will be allowed to stop over at the desired points without any questions being asked. They say that there is, of course, a risk attached to it, but they are willing to take that risk, and, though it seems odd, they do not appear to be at all afraid of that risk. Some claim that they have been assured that it will be all right, and they have implicit faith in that assurance.

Certain it is that if one go over one road and have stopning-off privileges, and cannot have those privileges on any other road, the people-Grand Army men and their families and friends—are going by that one road.

Department Commander Denniston received a reply from the Boston committee in answer to his letter on the subject, but it says only that the matter will be presented to the Traffic Association. When this will be done or when Pittsburg veterans may hear from it does not yet appear. Many inquiries have been addressed to those who are likely to know something about the rates. The question has been the chief topic of conversation in Grand Army circles during the week. In these conversations the feeling of the comrades is brought out in all its force. And it is shewn what affect the rates and conditions will have on the attendance. Many who intended to go will not do so under the present condition of things. Of ten members of a small post who put themselves down as candidates for the reas and off. This is an put themselves down as candidates for the trip eight have been soared off. The railroads are going to lose lots of money that they might as well have."

railroads in that one post. The railroads are going to lose lots of money that they might as well have."

"It is the same thing every year," said a prominent comrade. "The railroads never do treat the Grana Army as they should. When any other organization, the Masons, the Turners, the Jr. O. U. A. M., or any one that will turn out about 10,000 or 15,000, has a gathering of any sort, they can get anything they ask. The Boston encampment will take 450,000 visitors to that city, yet the rate is put up much higher than other organizations are given. It is an injustice which should be resented by the Grand Army people. I would not favor the sending a delegate from our own post ander the conditions laid down by one of the companies. The idea of allowing no stop-off privileges is preposterous, and the corporations will lose a large number of dollars by it. I would not go to Boston at a 16-cent rate if I had to deposit my ticket with an agent until I came home. This useless condition will cause another loss to the railroad. Doubtless the railroad companies reason that the Grand Army comrades and their friends will go to the National Encampment regardless of the expense, and feel that they can dictate with safety. It would bring them to their senses if some time the usually large annual traffic should dwindse down and be confined to the delegates, which, to my thinking, is not improbable." Similar expressions were heard in post meetings and soldier circles generally all last week. While the feeling is not so high as it was just before the encampment at Milwaukee, last year, it is quite strong and threatens to keep many at home who would otherwise go.

The Grand Army Day Committee met in Council Chambers yesterday afternoon, with Chairman Edward Fisher in charge. The atendance of delegates was only fair. Much interest was of course taken in the report of the Entertainment Committee on how the day man Burchfield, of that sub-committee was unavoidably absent, but his report was read by Secretary Bengough. The committee rec-ommended, first, that the Grand Army Band and two string bands be secured for the occa-sion, the string bands to be used for the delight of the dancers. This recommendation was adopted. The second recommendation sion, the string bands to be used for the delight of the dancers. This recommendation was adopted. The second recommendation was that there be a sham battle or daylight fireworks. This the committee rejected unanimously. Recommendation thind was that there be a dress parade. This was adopted, as was the fourth, which was that there be a campfire. Quite a discussion took place in connection with this report on where the money was to come from to pay for getting up this programme, and this was the reason the sham battle or fireworks recommendation was snowed under so unanimously. As it stands now the expense will be reduced to the minimum. The Subsistance Committee was carnestly requested at the last meeting to be on hand with its report at yesterday's meeting. This report was of the greatest importance in connection with the arrangements, but no report was made, as none of the committee were present but one, and he said the committee were present but one, and he said the committee. Chairman Thomas G. Sample, of the Transportation Committee.

Chairman Thomas G. Sample, of the Transportation Committee, reported that all arrangements in regard to transportation had been completed. An excursion rate of 50 cents for the round trip over the Pennsylvania railroad had been secured, as had also corresponding flow rates from smaller towns. All the accommodations that would be desired had been arranged for. All the cars required both going and returning will be furnished. Quite a discussion was indulged in over a report that had gained circulation in regard to the eatables. Some had the impression that the Woman's Relief Corps and the ladies of the G. A. R. would have complete charge over all refreshments. This is a great mistake. As stated in this column last Sunday all who desire can, of course, take their lunch with them. It is to be a basket picnic and a reunion of the commades, their families and friends, of Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia. There were more of the old company present than have met since the close of their service, and many of them were accompanied by their wives and children. They formed a merry party, numbering 40 or more. The weather was all that could be desired, and the ride over and through the charming hill country most and through the charming hill country most enjoyable. As they neared the grounds they were greeted with the martial strains of fife and drum and many evidences of their hearty welcome. The first hours of the morning were spent in quiet interchange of social courtesies and renewing of old friendships formed "mid the stern alarums of war." At noon the whole company sat down to a bountiful repast spread under the cool shade of a magnifecent grape arbor. Mrs. Jarrick and her fair assistants had provided a handsome entertainment well worthy of the hearty vote of thanks returned with "three times three" added for good will. The other hap py hours were enlivened by songs, stories and skirmishing; in the latter accomplishment Company D always excelled, judging by their lively performances. At the business meeting the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, John Harvey; Secretary, R. D. McKee; Treasurer, Robert McAdams. It was decided to field meetings on the first Saturday in October, January, April and July, as the office of Mr. McAdams, and absent members will please take notice. At a late hour in the evening they broke camp, for once regretting that marching orders for home had arrived, and all parted with hearly expressions of good will and hopes to meet another year.

On to Boston.

Many of the Pittsburg comrades will leave for Boston next Friday and Saturday. Just about how many will go from this vicinity it about how many will go from this vicinity it would be hard to estimate, but the number will be unusually large, taking into consideration the distance. Some will be accompanied by their wives and members of their families. THE Committee on Decorations for the National Encampment have issued an appeal to residents on the route of the procession of Tuesday, August 12, to decorate their houses in honor of the occasion.

SEVENTY-FIVE members of Post 128, under command of A. R. Dawson, will go to Boston. The post will take 25 pieces of the Grand Army Band. During the encampment they will be quartered in the Palfrey Building at Crescent beach on the ocean. A PARTY of three old soldiers, Coroner Wat son, James McGreehan and James Lowry, of Beaver Falls, started last week in a two-horse wagon on a visit to Southern battlefields. They will camp out as they go. They expect to make 25 miles a day and will be gone six weeks. ADJUTANT W. HARRY LAMBERT, of Post & is no longer at the Prothonotary's office be having tendered his resignation there a couple of weeks ago to devote his time to the Fidelity Title and Casualty Company. In the com-pany's office in the Hamilton building with Comrade Charles H. Miller, of Post 2 Philadelphia, he may now be found. COLONEL BENJAMIN S. LOVELL, of Weymouth; Captain John G. B. Adams, of Lynn; Past Department Commander Richard F. Tobin, of Boston, and the present Department Commander George H. Innis, all of Massachu-setts, are all named as candidates for the posi-tion of Senior Vice Commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Bepublic.

Post 3 will hold its only meeting in August to-morrow evening. Important business will come up and every comrade is urged to be present. Among other things to come before the meeting will be the Entertainment Com-mittee's report on the proposed steamboat ex-cursion. It is thought by some of the members that the decision of the Grand Army Day Com-mittee in regard to the celebrating of the day this year will have some influence on the ex-cursion project.

OWING to the serious illness of Department commander Denniston's wife, and also the illess of his little boy, the Major did not go to cottdale yesterday to attend the annual gathering of veterans as was expected. His message ing of veterans as was expected. His message of regrets to the committee carried disappointment to many. The comrades at Scottdale commenced their encampment on Thursday. New arrivals have been pouring in for the last three days. The adjacent land is dotted all over with the tents of the campers. Yesterday was a big day. The encampment will continue for about ten days.

"The popular idea that all that is needed open a theater is to advertise when the doc will be opened for the season and let the people come in, is not quite correct," said Mr. Dawson, of the Bijou management, yesterday. "For instance, it will have cost Messrs. Gulick & Co. close upon $5,000 to put things in order for the opening which takes place on Thurs-day. August 14. The improvements in the Bijou are not of a showy sort, being mainly confined to the equipment of the stage, and such things as new carpets, curtains, paint and so on for the front of the house. The footlights have been changed from gas to incandescent electric lamps, thus making the entire illumi-nation of the house electric. The dressing rooms have been painted and refurnished and the lobby has been touched up. A new drop curtain of great beauty has been painted and the stock of scenery and properties has been added considerably. Taking it all and all the Bijou will be very gay and comfortable when the season opens."

The attractions at the Bijou Theater are to be above the standard of former years. The subjoined list of plays and companies represents the contracts which have been signed and are now in the Bijou safe.

The minstrels, who are undoubtedly the best on the road, will appear for three nights and the Saturday matinee. The sale of seats will commence on Saturday, August 2. The night before the Bijou is publicly opened, on Wednesday, August 13, that is, the representatives of the Pittsburg press will be invited to inspect the improvements, the new drop curtain, and certain incidental refreshments.

For the first time in over two years the doors of Harris' Theater are to be closed. as the leading comedian of the McCaull Opera Company, is in appearance very much like his predecessor, but is two inches taller. His debut in comic opera was in England in one of debut in comic operas was in Legisland in one of Gilbert and Sullivan's operas in the provinces. His part in "The Seven Suabians" is that of an astrologer, and his makeup will resemble Prof. Herrmann. Madame Mathilde Cotrelly spends two hours every day rehearsing the seven bomedians who are to interpret "The Seven Suabians."

Over 90 persons will be employed in its scenes. Wilson says he would not be content to occupy even a middle ground in the contic opera field, and he has made this hig plungs with the confident belief that in so far as the artistic accessories are concerned he will outstrio all competitors.

The Grand Opera House will open on Augus 25, with "The Banker." Manager Wilt said, yesterday, that he had made no great changes in the theater, beyond altering the seats in the parquet so they no longer assault the setter in the back every time he or she, particularly she, the back every time he or she, particularly she, leans forward. He intends to have the lobbles nearest the street repainted, the first one in a warm tone of red, the second blue. At present the lobbles are rather too yellow. The stage has been changed somewhat. Since "Pinafore" was produced on a grand scale by the Duff Opera. Company when the grooves were taken out the flats have been braced up as best they might. Mr. Wilt has not reserved the grooves, but has converted all his stock scenery into cloths which can be raised and lowered from shove.

The Duquesne Theaten is apparently proressing all right. Of the Jackwan livery stagressing all right. Of the Jackman livery stable only the front wall on Penn avenue is now standing. The old building, except the facade has disappeared. The site wall be soon ready for the erection of the theater.

In the absence of Manager Renderson and his representatives it is difficult to obtain a full list of the attractions at the Duqwesne. It is known, however, that some of the best plays and players on the road have been engaged,
and that the season has been booked
up to its close, with some dontracts signed for the season of 1891-2. According to Manager Henderson's plans, as gleaned from him when he was last here, the Emma Juch Opera Company will open the house in the second week of October. Of course, as the season at the new theater commences late, Manager Henderson is not so concerned as the other managers are about letting the public know his plans.

pioneers of artistic crayon work. No less than 6,000 portraits executed in the prepared carbon have left his studio in Paris, and some 2,000 more testify to his immense capacity for work during a trip to England.

joweler's art was designed by a French adven-turer named Austin de Bordeaux, who also drew the plans for the Taj-Mahal, a building which ranks among the most magnificent archi-tectural creations of the world.

THE sculptor's art enjoyed more recognition in a financial sense, in antiquity than it does in modern times. Zenodorus was paid $1,750,000 for the statue of Mercury, executed for the city of Averni, in Gaul. The bronze figure of Apollo, which Lucuilus erected in the Capitol at Rome, cost $625,000, and Policletus received $125,000 for a single bronze statue of Diadumenos, the size of life.

MR. GEORGE P. BREWSTER is the author of model for the apex of the Indianapolis soldiers' monument in which he represents Liberty with an eagle perched upon her head. Though the extensive use of plumage for feminine headgear seems popular, the sight of such a fewl measuring six feet from tip to tip, roosting on the noble brow of a statue 5½ to 6 feet high, would be by no means asthetic. Ir happened to a former artist of this city, who has since then abandoned the brush; Farmer (at the artist's studio)-Wall, how much will it be wuth fer you to learn my boy the artist business?

The Artist—I really can't tell; it all depends upon the extent of the instruction.

Farmer—Hold on. I don't want you to make any great shakes out'n him (indicating the sketches on the wall); just learn him enough to paint sech daubs as these yer.

A RIPPLE of merriment has been raised in art circles of this city by an exhibition of ignorance on the part of a self-styled art critic in connection with remarks made upon some of Dore's paintings, owned in this city. Not dar-ing to assail Dore's art, he questioned the au-thenticity of the paintings on the ground that Dore only painted about a dozen pictures. As a matter of fact, the Dore gallery in London alone con ains nearly 40 works from the brush of the masteriv illustrator, who is known to alone con aims hearly at works of the masterly illustrator, who is known to have painted over 100 oil paintings.

A MOST interesting instance illustrating the fluctuations in the market value of painting is being presented by a law suit recently instituted in Paris against an art critic. The plaintiff formerly owned a Rembrandt, which he sold for $700 after it had been valued at $70 by the defendant. Hearing that the canvas fetched $7,000 at a recent auction at the Hotel Drouot he now wants the courts to compel the brouch he now wants the courts to compet the critic to reimburse him for the loss caused by the too low valuation. The critic may have given his opinion fairly and conscientiously based upon the actual merits of the painting irrespective of the antiquarian and quasi-autographic value thereof, which do not lie within his domain. The price obtained by the plaintiff, on the other hand, may have been the actual representative of the value of the property. representative of the value of the picture at the time of its sale, and yet the vagaries of trade in this particular branch are so great that a sudden jump from $700 to $7,000 will not surprise those familiar with the sale of pictures. In a letter to The Disparch Mr. DeWolf canlan, the well known Pittsburg artist, now in Paris, has the following to say: "Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Leisser are at present in Venice. Mr. Leisser is reducing to canvas a great many bits of this picturesque city. They intend to stay there another month, after which they visit some of the other Italian cities, returning to Pittsburg late in the fall. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke intend to stay in Paris for a few more months, after which they depart for Italy to spend the winter there. J. Elmer Salisbury returned to Paris a few days ago after a two months sketching tour to the Tyrol and a flying trip to Venice. He brings back with him quite a number of studies of Tyrolean mountain scenery, a head of a huge St. Bernard dog and a church interior with a priest and quaintly costumed altar boy serving at mass. While in the Tyrol he purchased a collection of quaint pipes at fabulously low prices, the stems of some being long enough to act as walking sticks. He intends to depart for Normandy in a few days to spend the remainder of the summer and fall there, sketching. Among the Pittsburgers who have been in Paris recently are Thomas H. McDowell and Mr. C. Spang, at the Hotel Continental, and Miss Howard and F. A. Parke, at the Covent Garden Hotel." he looked the picture of a proud and happy

It is to be hoped the sentence of Lambert and Hartman to one year's penal servitude for manufacturing imitations of Meissonier, Detaille, De Neuville, De Nittis, Verhage, etc., and selling them for genuine, will have the salutary effect of decreasing the large number of people engaged in the same nefarions business.

Mr. Rowser is a shearman at the La Belle Steel Works, and talks thus f Dr. Byers' treatment of his case. 'I had been troubled with catarrhal symptoms for five years, but paid little attestion to it, as my general health wasn't much affected until lately, when my right ear began to trouble me. It became so painful and discharged so I couldn't get any rest day or night, nd'l was all run down when I called on Dr. Byers. After a careful examination he said my ear trouble was the result of catarrh and gave me a treatment at once, I experienced an immediate relief and that night had the first rest for quite awhile and continued to improve right along until now, after three months' treatment, I have no pain in my ear, am free from the annoying catarrhal symptoms and am my old reif again in general health. I feel that I cannot recommend Dr. Byers too highly to any of my friends who may be troubled as I was."
