NOVEL NAIL MAKING.

An Invention Intended to Set in Motion Many Thousand Machines That Are Now Idle.

A SUCCESSFUL SOUTHSIDE TEST

Of an Attachment for Plate Nail Mills by Which Wire Nails Can be Essily Made.

CAN BE ADJUSTED IN THIETY MINUTES.

The Inventor Worked a Year and a Half en it, and Now Has it Perfect.

Some very interesting-and at the same time, in their result, very important-trials in connection with the manufacture of wire pails, were conducted at the American Iron Works, yesterday afternoon, These were nothing else than the making of wire nails on an ordinary plate nail machine, a thing that has hitherto been regarded as impossible. But nothing is impossible to the inventive genius of the American mechanic, and the trials, successfully conducted yesterday, were owing to the creative faculty of a mechanic, whose name for the present must remain unannounced.

Through the courtesy of General Manager C. Shively, a representative of THE DIS-PATCH was permitted to inspect the process. One of the long row of nail plate machines out of scores now standing idle had been fitted with the new arrangement. The selffeeder had been removed, and in its place was substituted an ordinary wire nail machine feed, operating from the left side. The bedplate, griping and heading dies remained as in the old machine, but from the clamp at the back had been attached an arrangement for cutting and pointing the wire, similar to the manner in which this process is done in regular wire nail machines. These were, in most, the extent of the alterations on the old machines.

AS GOOD AS ANY.

The power was put on, and the machine began to turn out perfectly formed wire nails, at the rate of 250 a minute. It was claimed for the device that the heading die performed its work better than that of the regular wire nail machine. The heading arrangement of the latter works firm above, and fashions the head with a quick blow. The heading die of the transformed nailplate machine works from the right-hand side, and works the head with a more gradual motion.

A handful of the nails examined seemed to be thoroughly well-made, well-pointed, and with head large, and without any indication of splitting. The nails were of the eight-penny size, but by changing the space block, 4, 6, and 10-penny sizes can be made.

The time necessary to transform a plate nail machine into a wire nail machine is short half an hour. The product of the improved plate nail machine is stated to be from 200 to 250 a minute, againt 160 nails to the minute turned out by the regular wire nail machine.

The trials referred to were made under the direction of Mr. H. R. Beam, of Chicago, who has been engaged for the last month in bringing the arrangements to perfection. NOT THE INVENTOR.

Mr. Beam, though not the original inventor of the device, holds the patents. He said yesterday that he was indebted to asked Jim. Mesars, Jones & Laughlins for the privilege of trying the new arrangements on one of their machines. It had taken him a month to bring his plans into successful operation, but he now felt assured that the device for making wire nails on plate nail machines was thoroughly successful. He had most difficulty, he said, in fashioning the head, not being a practical nailmaker, and he was indebted to Mr. Hunter, of the department, for helping them out.

"It has taken a year and a hal!," said Mr. Beam, "to bring this invention into practical operation, but I am now satisfied that I hold a very important invention. Any plate-nail machine can be converted into a wire-nail machine in a very short time and at a very small cost. It has been held impracticable to adopt the old machines to the manufacture of wire nails, but I am prepared to convince the skeptical that

The importance of this innovation in pail machines idle to-day throughout the country, owing to the inability of the manufacturers to make anything out of plate nails at present prices. The Wheeling manufac-turers, by refusing to sign a scale, have practically obtained control of the business, and makers here and elsewhere have gone out of the business because there was no money in it for them. The plants are idle, and the amount of capital invested in them lying

MUCH BRIGHTER PROSPECTS.

Under the patents controlled by Mr. can once more go into full operation and ob tain a share of the increasing demand for wire nails, nails which are gradually beating the cut nail out of the market.

Another effect which will likely result from an extended use of this arrangement is the destruction of the plans of the wire nail trust promoters. Readers of THE DIS-PATCH will remember the efforts made to combine interests in this product last year and the non-success that ensued through manufacturers failing to harmonize on the

The report that Messrs. Jones & Laugh lins were adding an extensive wire nail plant to their works was probably due to Mr. Beam's efforts to transform the plate nail machines. The firm does not know what it will do in the matter. The trials were made by Mr. Beam, altogether on his own account and independently of the firm. He has not made any arrangements with Jones & Laughlins to adopt his improve-

Sad Cases of Cruelty on the Southside-Millworker's Wife Suffers Ili-Trentment and is Attacked With Typhold-A Sick Mother and Her Child Turned Out

THE WORKINGMEN'S CAUSE.

At the meeting of the Humane Society yesterday afternoon a resolution was passed soliciting business men and manufacturers to establish wash and toilet rooms in their places of business. The time of meeting was changed from 4 o'clock to 3 on Tuesday

General Agent O'Brien reported that he had received a complaint of cruelty which he would investigate to-day. John Johns, a millworker, of South Thirtieth and Mary streets, is reported to have treated his young wife with great cruelty for some time past, resulting in her being attacked with typhoid fever. Dr. Kerr was called in to attend Mrs. Johns, and reported the case to the Bureau of Health, who ordered her removed to a hospital. Agent O'Brien was notified of the matter about the same time, and will look after the husband to-day. A 4-year-old child of the couple is said to have received no care since his mother was taken Agent Berryman reported that he had entered an information against Emil Seas, of the Southside, before Alderman Succop, charging him cruelty and neglect. Seas is alleged to have used great harshness toward his wife and six children. Mrs. Seas has now a baby of a few months which is very sick, owing, as alleged, to a beating given the mother. On last Sunday Seas is alleged to have driven his sick wife and baby out of the house. The poor woman walked up and down the street for four hours, until her husband had fallen asleep, before she ven-tured back to the house. On her return he awoke and beat her.

On Monday the baby was taken sick, but Seas is reported to have refused to call a physician. Finally, Dr. Gundlach was called to attend the child, but immediately after the doctor's departure Seas threw the medicine he had left out of the house. When Agent Berryman went to the house Seas said it was no one's business how he treated his child, but after a severe lecture, changed his mind. The child, Agent Berryman says, is critically ill, and will scarcely recover. Secretary Davidson reported con tributions amounting to $148.

TRAMPS AND A TORRENT. How a Pair Took the Line Tank Water for Creeks and Rivers. "Talking about tramps," said an old railroader last night as he raised his legs onto the rail in the Central Hotel smokeroom and recalled the time when he operated the "regulator." "I came upon a curious pair on a run out East over the Pennsy. I was then running the day express. They jumped the train just as we were pulling out through the yards and fixed themselves on the front platform of the baggage car. I was for putting them off, but the fireman, Jim Stockton it was, said he would soon dislodge them. Coming up to the Walls tank, Jim told me to look behind as we jerked up water. He dropped the scoop, and in a few seconds the tender tanks were filled and the surplus water shooting out over the rear in a regular torrent. When we had cleared the line tank we expected to hear the pair of travelers howl and beg to be put off. But they still hung on, though they must have been half drowned. Jim tried the same scheme at Millwood and again at Sang Hollow, but the boys still remained on the rivers every since we started. Me and my pard thinks that next time we want to go East we'll travel on a road that has bridges here and there, anyhow.' And the pair asked to be carried to the stables to dry up a fittle. It was their first trip East, and a fittle. It was their first trip East, and they didn't like it."

A HOME FOR THE BLIND.

Work Progressing Well on the New Institute for Unfortunates. The Executive Committee of the Western Pennsylvania Institution for the Blind, consisting of William A. Herron, George W. Dillworth, H. K. Porter, and Rev. Dr. John G. Brown, is inviting proposals for a building of 10 to 15 rooms, in which it is proposed to immediately open the school for the blind. The Board is in receipt of a making can hardly be over-estimated. It is stated that there are at least 7,000 plate nail and others for the position of teacher in the and others for the position of teacher in the literary and music departments. The Committee's first work will be to secure the building and after that the scholars. It is their desire that school teachers, physicians, the various charitable and benevolen institutions, and the Health Department of the city, furnish Secretary Percy Smith any information they may have in regard to blind children. When blind children have good homes they should not be entered in the school until they are about 8 years old, but when they are the children of poor parents, special arrangements will be made to take them at 6 years of age. If any number of the little unfortunates are found, a kindergarten department will be established, and any person knowing the residence of blind children in the two cities, the county, or Western Pennsylvania, are requested to communicate with the sec-

FIELDS FOR THE FAIR

Wages Paid to Many Women That Enable Them to be Independent.

GOOD DRAPERS PAID EVEN RETTER

Sewing Girls Who Receive from $6 to $18 a Week in Pittsburg.

A forewoman in a large Fifth avenue dressmaking establishment came tripping out of a cable car yesterday morning, with independence written on every feature of her pretty face. She has a right to be independent. For her services she receives $25 a week. Her business hours are from 8 A. M, to 6 P. M., with an hour for luncheon. Her duties are manifold. She is the engineer whose watchful eye and practical hand direct the vast array of human machinery that turns out the bewilderingly beautiful toilets that delight the wearers, dazzle the beholders and razzle-dazzle the pocket books of the unfortunate who foots the bill. It is her mission to distribute the milk of human kindness and encouragement to the poor little discouraged mortal whose haste has made waste, and whose work must be undone and done more neatly; to pour oil upon the troubled waters resulting from some especially perverse skirt that will not hang properly, by assisting the skirtmaker, with her experience, to conquer the provoking garment; to give a word of advice to the sleevemaker regarding a peculiar kink that will insure a more perfect fit of the often misfitting sleeves; to reprimand when such is necessary, whom and how it may seem best; to lay out the work for the rooms, and to see that each particular portion is properly executed and finished. No easy position, when the list of duties is her lot when a special person for that purpose is not employed. Yet she is cheerful. happy, independent and hopeful.

Consequently, I am not beholden to any employer for a position. I know I am worth all I am paid.

NOT ANXIOUS TO MARRY.

"Neither am I willing nor anxious to marry. I am not compelled to marry for a home, as so many girls are, thereby enduring a life of wretchedness with some man the whole nature revolts against; nor am I willing to marry a man who cannot support me in the same comfortable manner in whic I can support myself. Indeed, when a girl attains the proficiency in any trade or profession that enables her to command a salary of $110 a month or more, it is with conary of $110 a month or more, it is with considerable carefulness and much deliberation she decides upon merging her identity into that of another. And really, it is seldom she marries unless she takes pity upon some poor, incompetent man, and concludes she can afford to take care of him.

"My hopefulness consists in the fact that, sooner or later, I intend having an establishment of my own, and that is where the money is made.

"A garment or a piece of trimming is worth inst what you can get for it," is what energetic seamstress, and visions of endless wealth and annual trips to Europe for the purpose of purchasing rare and exquisite tabrics for exclusive customers frequently olind our eyes to the rocky pathway we are climbing, toward that pinnacle of our hopes The big money is made by the modistes, of course, and several of them here in the city are in a financial condition now that would enable them to retire from business, if they wished to. Some who work on salaries, however, are in anything but a destitute however, are in anything but a destitute condition. One lady with whom I am personally acquainted, in the city of Chicago, is receiving $5,000 a year as forewoman of an immense manufacturing business, beside six weeks in Europe every fall. Such is an exceptional case, though, and while there is one woman competent to command such a salary from having first established a paying trade of her own, there are thousands of poor, weary little seamstresses stitching their lives away at $1 a day, and others who have reached the height of their ambition and opened an establishment of their own find it difficult to discover a remainder Saturday night after the girls have been paid. WAGES OF SOME OTHERS "Sleeve-makers command from $6 to $8 a week, shirt-makers from $8 to $12, waist trimmers from $15 to $18, while a good draper may demand any sum, and is sure of receiving it. Drapers, like poets, are born, not made, and a person without a talent in that direction will never accomplish much in draping, though they may become experts in other branches of the work."

A prosperous little modiste, when interviewed, gave substantially the information previously given by the forewoman. Regarding the possibilities of attaining wealth in the business, she said: "It is just like any other business, we must take our chances. We have one advantage over other vocations, though. There is never a dull time in our trade, or an off year, rather. The months of August and January are quiet ones, but we need them in order to prepare for the rush that succeeds the lull."

"Is the business a hard one to conduct?"
"No, I do not consider it so. The most difficult part is not in satisfying the customers, but getting along amicably with the girls and women employed in the work rooms. There is no doubt it is a great field for women, but men are encroaching rapidly, however. We women should not complain for we are entering all their professions and trades, and in self-defense they may have to become dressmakers, and perhaps in time they will care for the house and bables.

The value of yesterday's rain cannot be stimated in filthy lucure. Those who get drinking water from a big river and can cool it with ice to suit the palate, and have airy houses or can go outing cannot adequately understand how the poor were su'fering on hillsides in the suburbs. The price of vegetables was so high that they were forced to purchase either withered, unripe or half rotten stuff, and the effect in health would soon have been seen.

In the country Indian corn looked the image of despair, with foliage folded as if in mute anguish. Tomatoes were either ripening at half size or withering. Springs were so nearly dried that the water was putrid, and stock only drank it when thirst became intolerable. High grass was in ten days turned into cured hay, but lacking nutrition, and the open fields had pecome too hot even for snakes, and n localities where the venomous copperhead inhabits care was necessary in approaching secluded springs, as the deadly squirmers had resorted there for moisture and the Allegheny county farmer was on the very verge of war and felt that a scourge of Kan-sas grasshoppers could not make matters

Yesterday's rain, however, refreshed vege-table and animal life with a vigor unsur-passed by the Indian monsoon. The corn will be short, but yesterday's soaking will give it strength to ear. Garden stuff will take on new life and the rain came in time to save the late planted potato crop.

The site for the garbage furnace to be located in the East End district has been selected, and an ordinance was introduced each particular girl or woman employed in in Councils Monday authorizing Chief Brown to purchase the necessary ground. The necessity for more garbage furnaces was forcibly illustrated last week. The Seward furnace had been stopped for sevand since that time has been worked to its utmost capacity night and day. While the furnace was idle the garbage kept coming in so fast that about the time the fires were lighted the big garbage tank contained over 160 tons and threatened to break down. Superintendent Bicker ordered the hauling of all garbage to the furnaces ceased then, and he expects by to-night to have the sur-plus reduced sufficiently to allow the wagons to begin unloading again.

"TO POINT WITH PRIDE"

CHOICE PROPERTIES.

Is no longer the exclusive privilege of political platforms. The town of

WILMERDING

Points with pride to the record she has already made; to her public improvements, surpassing those of many cities of 20,000 inhabitants; to her model homes, where true comfort rewards industrious effort: to the great plant of THE WESTING-HOUSE AIR BRAKE CO., that will make her name memorable.

BRINTON

Likewise challenges the attention of the home-seeker and the shrewd investor, as the companion of WIL-MERDING'S prosperity and the location of the new works of the
