The rear guard swung into line again yesterday and Hanlon's infantry was completely routed. Twitchell made a change of base and moved from right field into the diamond just before the action commenced. He gained a solid position, and though Haplon sent his hardest batters against him. he could not be dislodged and held his stronghold until the close of the game. This may be Twitchell's second or even third time on earth as a pitcher, but the result remains the same. He did his work cleverly and apparently had the batters imbued with the idea that they were all to get bases on balls, but they didn't, When he got them in the hole he shot the ball over the plate and they had to hit it or strike out. was one of the lucky ones. Five times did he face the pitcher and as many times did he walk to first on balls.

HOW IT WAS DONE.

Morris was in the box, and he sent the ball over the plate as big as life. The result was a great slugging match. Five earned runs in one inning was the call. The local team made very few errors that could be located in the score but their errors of judgment were legion. The but their errors of judgment were legion. Then the Buffalos had a great amount of lock in their hitting, always putting the ball where the fielder ought to be, but wasn't.

The feature of the game was a great catch of a low liner by Manager Hanion. It was a hot one and no mistake, and in winter time it would have saved natural gas for a week.
Kuchne made several very pretty assists, but he also succeeded in allowing several apparently easy ones to slide past him.

GOING INTO THE SOUP. One run was the size of the local men's first attempt. Beckley went around on a base on balls, a passed ball, Visner's out at home and Field's single. The Bisons held their strength until the second, when they opened shop. Rowe singled and White struck out, Faats drove Rowe home and stopped at third. He scored on Twitchell's single. Hoy and Mack followed with singles and filled the bases. Then Clark with singles and filled the bases. Then Clark drove them all home.

No more runs were made until the fifth, when a base on balls, a stolen base and Wise's fumble scored Robinson. In the sixth the Bisons pulled out four on three singles, a base on balls and an error by Robinson. Pittsburg took one in the seventh on Robinson's triple and Morris' single. Buffalo scored her last in the eighth on a two-baser and two sacrifices. Attendance, 1,084. Score: PITTERURG, R B P A R BUFFALO, R B P A INDEPENDENCE, IA., August 7 .- Phe enal work was done to-day at the Rush Park track. Manager, by Nutwood, broke the 2year-old pacing record, lowering it from 2:20% to 2:19 1-9. Barnhart, a full brother to Allerton, lowered his record from 2:29% to 2:22%. Four Nutwood colts were entered in the 2:39 list, all 5 years old and under. All records were obtained in races. WHY NOT COMPROMISE.

Glad to Have the Players and National League Teams United and That at Once. The time has come in the baseball war (in Pittaburg at least) when something in the nature of a compromise must be effected. The causes for the meager patronage extended to baseball games at the present time are too well understood. understood to need comment. It is the remedy, and not the cause, which must be looked after. It may be said by some that effective remedy cannot be secured unless the cause for the trouble is thoroughly understood. This is true. It shall be assumed that THE DISPATCH readers are familiar with the causes, and, as it is our aim to do what we can to secure a com-promise, we feel that to agitate the causes of the difficulty might produce a combative feel-ing among the contending parties.

The baseball public of Pittsburg are not interested in any way in the strife between the National League and Players' League. What is needed to restore patronage to the game is good ball playing and the unanimous support of the citizens of Pittaburg. As it stands to day, the fight between the factions has disgust ed many of the most earnest lovers of the game of baseball, and this same fight has so divided ed many of the most earnest lovers of the game of baseball, and this same fight has so divided the talent that good ball playing seems impossible in either club. The National League club is not able to win one game in five, and the Players' League of late have done very little better. There are enough skilled players in the two clubs, if they could be combined, to make a first-class club, one that Pittsburg could be proud of at home and away from home, a club that could hold its own against any club in the United States, and there seems to be no reason why these forces could not be united. There is no principle at stake, and so far as can be seen, no vital difference of opinion.

The owners of the National League club have a large sum of money invested in the business of baseball, and their object primarily must be to get some return for their investment. The same is true of the Players' League. The officers of the National League club make no secret of the fact that they are losing money, and while the Players' League club make no secret of the fact that they are losing money, and while the Players' League have not made such an admission, the best informed calculators on the business of baseball any positively that they must be losing also. The policy of Mr. O'Nell of transferring games has practically given the Players' League non-conflicting dates in Pittsburg. In very few instances have the two clubs played here on the same day, and still with the field practically left open to them, their attendance has not been commensurate with their expenses. In some of the other cities the lack of patronage and the demoralisation of the business might probably be attributed to conficing dates, but here the Players' League have had practically nothing to contend with. This must mean that the baseball-loving public of Pittsburg are tired of the wrangling between the Players' and the National Leagues, and disgusted with the miserable exhibition of ball they are asked to patronize. Is it not then time that the public deman

CALEDONIAN GAMES.

Arrangements Made for a Good Day's Sport at Recreation Park on September 1-Priddy, McClelland and Cannon to Com-

Kathel Kerr, the prominent young athlete who managed the sports at Schenley Park on the Fourth of July, has made arrangements with a number of the most prominent Scotch-men of Pittsburg and Allegheny to give a day of good old Scottish sports and Caledonian games. The events will be held on September 1, Labor Day, in Recreation Park. It will in-clude all kinds of athletic sports, running, wrestling, heavy weight throwing, jumping together with Scotch piping and dancing, and it will be one of the best affairs of the kind it will be one of the best affairs of the kind ever given in the country. The prizes given will amount to over $1,000. One of the features will be a root race for five miles with the Pittsburg favorites, Priddy and McClelland, and Tom Cannon, of England, entered. This alone would be a grand event.

There will also be affairs of all kinds for amateurs and open to Allegheny county. In all there will be 40 events. A parade of the Scotch dancers and pipers, in Highland costumes, and the athletes, will be given.

This will be a day of Caledonian sports such as was never seen in Pittsburg, and Mr. Kerr should receive the encouragement of all sportloving people to make the meeting a grand succuss.

Secretary Buch Says That None are Barred From the Altoons Tennis Tourney. Charles Buch, Secretary of the Altoona Charles Buch, Secretary of the Altoona Cricket Club, where a tennis tournament will be given beginning on the 19th, was in the city yesterday making purchases of tennis goods. He says they expect the tourney this year to be larger than any they have ever given.

Regarding the entry of the Philadelphia players, Mr. Buch said that they were considered eligible to play for the double champion-ship emblems. The club's idea in getting entries from the easiern part of the State, he says, is that as they are acknowledged to be the best players. It will be a benefit to the game in this section to have them meet the local players, as the latter will thus secure practice with good players and learn many points of the game.

The Altoona club have larger, though not better, grounds than those of the Pittsburg club. Their tournament premises to be much larger, as it is open to ladies as well as gentlemen, and is also open to the entire State. Arrangements are being made for a grand affair.

PEPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATOR I BUFFALO, August 7 .- Nothing sensational marked the performances of the trotters and pacers, this afternoon, and the card was disposed of in shorter order than has been the rule posed of in shorter order than has been the rule since the Grand Circuit began, three weeks ago. The patronage for the second day was quite up to the average, though the crowd waits for the appearance of Sunol, to-morrow, when she will make an effort to colipse her mile in 2:10% at 8 years. Between heats, this afternoon, the young mare was led down the quarter stretch by a groom, her peculiar formation with the alope from hips to withers being revelation to those who saw her for the first time. Marvin keeps his own counsel, but given a track as good as it is now favorable day, and a track as good as it is now Sunol is pretty sure to show that she is still the most wonderful trotter of the day. Mr. Hamlin will also let his mare Belle Hamlin start against her record as an additional attraction, but she will have to play a minor part during the appearance of the California star.

LOOKED LIKE A CROOK. Three races which might have all been ended Three races which might have all been ended in straights is the summary of to-day's proceedings. The palpable dropping of the first heat in the free-for-all pace being a black spot on the proceedings. There was not any great amount at stake, but it was evidently a preconcerted move for Geers to let Hal Pointer jump off his feet and then made no attempt to get him to the front.

off his feet and then made no attempt to get him to the front.

Dawson did not fail his friends to-day, and his record is now 2:19%, though he had nothing to spare at the end of the deciding heat. There was a prospect for a lively strug_ile for the 2:18 class, but Alfred S set all disputes at rest by beating a good field of eight right off the red. Lady Bullion was thought his most dangerous opponent, but Mocking Bird was the one to force Hickok's speedy gelding along in the last two heats, the Mambrino Kinp mare's first appearance showing that she is still good in her class. Hendryx, another of last year's successful campaigners, joined the circuit in this race, but was not at all prominent after the first heat. THE SUMMARIES.

A GREAT RACE.

Tenny Outrox by Firenzi at Monmout Yesterday Afternoon.

MONMOUTH PARK, August 7 .- Interest to day was centered in the fourth race, the Free-hold stakes, $50 each, with $1,000 added, 134 miles. Judge Morrow was scratched, and it was thus reduced to a match race between Tenny and Firenzi. There did not ap pear to be as much betting on the race as it was supposed there would be. Firenzi was the first to appear on the track and she was greeted by loud applause. Then came Tenny, and he was not forgotten. They got the flag at the first attempt and the mare started out to make the pace, leading Tenny a length and a half. She led to the half, where Garrison let out a link on Tenny and he went up to the mare. Then Murphy let out a link also, and on the upper turn Firenzi shot to the front and gained a clear lead of three lengths, an advantage she neld turning into the stretch. Then, however, Tenny commenced to run, and the interest became intense. Slowly but surely he gained ground, and at the last furlong he was lapped on the mare. Then Murphy equaled by that in the Salvator-Tenny match at Sheepshead Bay. A hundred yards from ome Tenny was at the mare's saddle girthe and gaining at every stride. Both jockeys were riding for their lives. In the grand stand hats, canes and handkeroniefs were thrown in the air, and cheer after cheer went up to encour-air, and cheer after cheer went up to encourage the struggling giants.

Slowly but surely Tenny gained, and 59 yards from the finish his head was at Firenzi's shoulder. Then, if such a thing were possible, Murphy went to work with increased vigor, and as they shot past the post Firenzi had a neck the best of it. The crowd seemed to go wild with excitement, and for fully a minute cheered again and again for the game little mare. The race was a fast one, within a quarter of a second of the record. The fractional time is as follows: Quarter. 28t half, 50%; three-quarters, 1:16; mile, 1:424; mile and a half, 2:33%.

SHIPPERS PROTEST LOUDLY.

Complaint That the New Bill of Lading Advances Rates. CHICAGO, August 7 .- This afternoon, at a meeting composed of the representatives of the principal commercial organizations of this country, with reference to the enforcement of the so-called uniform bill of lading, a preamble and resolutions were adopted, affirming that the practical effect of the action of the railroads has been to advance rates 20 to 50 per cent since August 1; that the document is not a bill of lading, but a contract to which the shippers do not con-sent, and concluding as follows:

Resolved. That our earnest protest against the unjust and unreasonable course pursued by the railroads embraced in the Central Traffic, Trunk Line, Southern Railroad and Steamship associations and the United Lake Lines be re-lved. That we recommend to all shippers Resolved, That we recommend to all shippers and receivers that they continue to make protest against the enforcement of this special contract, and that all charges which may be exacted as compensation for shipping under customary conditions and liability be submitted to proper legal tribunals for the purpose of testing their justness and reasonableness.

urements. The recent escape of Prisoner Moore and the unsuccessful attempt to escape of "Chicken" Walsh, a notorious convict, has served to keep matters unsettled, but for several days there has been no decided outbreak. This afternoon about 35 of the convicts in the shoeshop refused to obey the orders of their keepers and, as if by some pre-arranged signal, all at once, set up a terrific yell, and missiles of every description were sent flying in all directions, the windows on the north and west sides being entirely demolished. Then they made a dash for the yard. A large express wagon standing in the enclos-ure was pushed toward the wall by a mob of over 50 infuriated convicts, but in the exover so inturisted convicts, but in the ex-citement it was capsized. The crowd rushed for the various walls. Instantly the sen-tries began firing, at first to frighten the convicts, but later to kill. Other officers of the institution were soon at hand, and, with drawn revolvers, massed the gang in groups, after a fight, in which clubs were freely used and many of the convicts' heads were badly word was quickly sent to police head-quarters, and in a short time about 200 policemen, detailed from the various stations, reached the station in patrol wagons. Upon their entering the yard they were met with a cry of derision by the convicts, who were locked in their cells. It is not thought that any of the prisoners were seriously wounded by the guards. The guard on the walls has been trebled, and a large force of police are massed in the yards and corridors, while 50 officers guard the streets leading to the

FIGHTING FOR A BOY.

A Young Fellow With a Fartune Wanted by Marker and Tacle.

CHICAGO, August 7 .- Mrs. Isura La Hache Bell, at present a guest of the Palmer House, secured from Judge Baker to-day a writ of habeas corpus against Assistant City Attorney Charles S. Cameron, for the possession of her 12-year-old son, Charles E. Hopkins, Jr. The petitioner states that she was formerly the wife of Charles E. Hopkins, a well-to-do resident of New Orleans, who, five years ago, took the boy from her and concealed him. Lately she discovered he was at the residence of his uncle, Mr Cameron, in Chicago, and she demanded his custody, but was refused, Mr. Cameron claiming she was not a fit person to have control of the boy.

Mr. Cameron says that about a month ago the boy's father, a prominent Knight of Pythias, came to Chicago en route to the Milwaukee convention, and while here was taken sick and died, leaving the boy in his uncle's care. Young Hopkins has an estate of about $30,000 left by his father, and was followed by his mother, who, only about a week ago, was married to her present husband, Bell.

GOOD FOR BOTH SIDES.

If the Chinese will but make the effort now, when the opportunity is so favoroble Mr. Hitchcock says there will be an end to such extreme and unjust legislation against them as exemplified in the bill recently passed by Congress, and for which their course of reserve and exclusiveness is in great part responsible.

EVANSVILLE, August 7 .- At 3 o'clock this afternoon the switchmen of the Mackey yards at this point made a demand upon General Manager Saul for an increase of wages on the Chicago scale, and upon his peremptory refusal they proceeded to tie up the road by blocking the main track with uncoupled freight cars.

In consequence there have been no trains out since that time. At this writing there are five regular passenger and two excursion trains tied up in the depot with no prospects of getting out till to-night. Five hundred hungry and sleepy excursionists are lying around the depot in an unpleasant

BATON ROUGE, August 7 .- The Anti-Lottery League met in convention here this afternoon. There were between 400 and 500 delegates present, including the Farmers' Alliance, and about 200 who came in on a special train from New Orleans. The following was unanimously adopted:

Resolved. That this convention recognizes with gratitude the effect that the Farmers' Alliance, a body of men comprising a large portion of the bone and sinew of the State, men whose hearts are always for the right, and whose hands are ready to execute their sentiments, made their initial step in the war against the lottery, and was the first organized body of Louisiana's brave sons to denounce the scheme of the re-charter and requesting the co-operation of the State Farmers' Union in the campaign now on foot against the Morris lottery proposition.

PHILADELPHIA, August 7.- Max Stalla, Secretary of the Cloakmakers' Union, was to-day held in $2,000 bail to answer in court the charge of inciting to riot in making an incendiary speech at a meeting of the striking cloakmakers on Sunday last. One of the witnesses, who was at the meeting, testified that Stalia became greatly excited while making the speech, and said that if "we could not attain our ends by

The Last Act Attending the Execution of Kemmler Completed.

DOCTORS RADICALLY DISAGREE.

And Attack Each Other as Well as the Electric Arrangements.

PERCIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATORA AUBURN, August 7 .- Contrary to expecation the body of William Kemmler, the murderer, who was executed by electricity yesterday, was not buried in the prison semetery until to-night. Everybody supposed that what the doctors left of the body would be buried shortly after the autopsy, or as soon as night fell at the latest, but the burial did not take place until shortly after 12 o'clock to-night. The cause of the delay was said to be doubt in the mind of Warden Durston as to what the word "attached" in the law reguating the disposition of the body meant. It orders that the body, if unclaimed by relaives, shall be buried in the cemetery atached to the prison. The cemetery is about a mile away from the prison itself, and is a part of Fort Lee Cemetery, which is an arispart of Fort Lee Cemetery, which is an aris-tocratic God's Acre. As it was not directly connected with the prison the Warden be-lieved he could not bury the body there. He had about made up his mind to bury it under one of the flagstones in the prison yard, when it occurred to him that the law distinctly said cemetery, and so the Warden concluded to have legal advice on the sub-

This settled the vexed question, and the grave digger at the cemetery was ordered to dig a grave and be on hand to bury the body at 10 o'clock to-night, but the express wagon which rattled the murderer's bones over the stones did not reach the graveyard for more than two hours later. The grave was within a short distance of one of the main streets. The body was literally sprinkled with quick lime, and the earth was thrown upon it by the light of a lantern.

The only mourners were the grave-diggers and they mourned because they had to work so late. Thus ends the story of William Kemmler, and the people here are rapidly torgetting all about him.

There were some stories set affoat this morning to the effect that the execution was bungled purposely in the interests of an electric light company, but little attention was paid to them. Dr. Spitaka, who was present at the execution of William Kemmler at Auburn prison yesterday, makes

Kemmler at Auburn prison yesterday, makes the following statement:

The assertion attributed to a physician from Buffalo, that the undersigned ordered the currents stopped or in any way directed the steps rendered necessary at the Kemmler execution, is utterly unfounded. No one in the execution chamber knew or could know anything about the voltage, nor did anyone order the current turned off. It was turned off in accordance with a previous understanding.

Dr. Carlos McDonald and myself (between whom and myself complete harmony existed), on being asked by the Warden what the time should be, agreed to 15 seconds, and actually 17 seconds were allowed to elapse. When Kemmler's death appeared doubtful I suggested GOOD FOR BOTH SIDES.

The Effect of a Big Chinese Display at the World's Exposition.

CHICAGO, August 7.—Roman Hitchcock, who is about to visit China in the interest of the Columbian Exposition and the United States Government, in speaking to-day of his mission, said it was his intention to urge upon the Chinese the importance to themselves as a commercial people, of an attractive exhibition at this time. The most universal interest would center about a well designed exposition of the civilization, the daily life, the arta and industries of the Chinese themselves, and nothing would serve so well to dispel the many erroneous and unjust impressions which prevail in this country concerning the people of China.

Seconds were allowed to elapse. When Kemmeler's death appeared doubtful I suggested in a hurried way to the Warden to have it instantly turned on again, and it was the Warden who gave the order then and there. I went to Auburn solely to make the examination of the brain, and not as an assitant executions. The dynamo, as judged by the action of Kemmler's body, acted very irregularly. The source of this it will be interesting to ascertain, as well as the animus which dictated the gratuitous and untrue statement of the person allued to, if really made by him. As an avowed opponent, and as one known to be such, of the electrical method, I went to Auburn. Under these circumstances, it were scarcely consistent for me to volunteer as a performer of that method. Had either my associate, Dr. Carlos McDonald, or myself been able to anticipate such misstatements being made, we certainly should have declined to act in the medical capacity which we alone held. We solve the comment of the brain, and not as an assitant execution of Kemmler's body, acted very irregularly. E. C. SPITZKA.

COMING BACK AT HIM. Dr. Clayton M. Daniels was shown tonight by The DISPATCH correspondent the savage letter about him which Dr. Spitzka contributed to-day. Dr. Daniels said: "I am surprised at the lack of professional courtesy shown in the letter. I supposed until now that Dr. Spitzka was a gentleman. He made an appointment with me at the hotel in Auburn which he failed to keep." "Have you had any disagreement with the other doctors?' "No, indeed; we are, and have been, en tirely in accord."

"How do you account for the venom which Dr. Spitzka puts in his letter?" "I understand that the New York paper have given him a roasting for his action in the Kemmler autopsy, and he naturally teels mad about it. Though why he should try to get even by abusing me is more than I can understand."

"Then you deny Dr. Spitzka's allega-"I do; and you cannot put it too strong."
"It was simply horrible," said Electrician C. R. Huntley. "It was one of the most horrifying sights I ever witnessed or ever expect to witness. No money would tempt me to go through the experience again. The picture of it has been with me ever since, and I can still hear the groans of Kemmler when he was coming to after the first shock. The saliva bursting shrough his lips making a loud sound. I will see that bound figure and hear those sounds to my dying day." DESCRIBING THE SOUNDS.

"Will you describe those sounds?" Mr. Huntley breathed deeply, throwing out his chest to the fullest extent and making a sonorous sound like a deep groan. Then, as he expelled his breath, he blew through his lips, making such a sound as a person does in the sound of a convulsion. One can hear such sounds in the shambles when a bullock is dying at the hands of the butcher. "There," continued Mr. Huntley, "that "There," continued Mr. Huntley, "that is as near as I can describe the sounds. I could see very little of his face. The straps covered the upper part of it. His beard covered his chin and the only part of the face visible was the mouth. His respiration made the saliva fly all over him. Every man that looked at Kemmler at that moment and heard his respirations was noment and heard his respirations

Were the sounds very loud?" 'Quite loud. We were in a room about 25 feet long and 18 feet wide and the sounds were perfectly audible all over it." "Was Kemmler alive at the time?" "Certainly he was. Some of the doctors said the respirations were the result of con-traction of the diaphagm or something else.

'And in agony?" A DIFFICULT QUESTION. "That I could not tell. The doctors agree that he had no consciousness of pain, and I am quite willing to let the doctors settle it.

I don't believe anybody not there can thoroughly appreciate the horror that came over us. I can never shake it off. Kemmler was the coolest and most collected man in the room. He was the admiration of us all. He did not act like a martyr, either. His air was that of a man resigned to his fate. There was nothing particularly revolting in these preparations, nor was the result of the first shock revolting, while the current held the body of Kemmler in rigor. There was one strong convulsion at first, and that was all. The promoters of electric execution were elated. But the horror came later when Kemmler showed signs of life."

"How much voltage was he given in the first shock?"

MILITIA NOW GUARDING THE JUDGE

"I don't know, and I presume we will never know. I do know that in the next shock he was given the full strength of the machine. Two convicts were made to hold the belt on the machine. The current was so strong and at such short distance that it had a tendency to throw the belt off. An-other horrible thing came when Kemmler's flesh began to scoreh; the odor filled the

JUST A SUPPOSITION.

"Suppose Kemmler had been overpowered with terror of what was going to happen? Suppose he had resisted, fought, and had finally been crushed down into the chair? That would have added tenfold to the horror of the execution. I don't think such an electric execution will ever happen again." electric execution will ever happen again."

District Attorney Quimby, who did not see the execution, spoke with a shudder of horror of the preliminaries which he witnessed. "I was in the death chamber before the killing," said he this morning, "but I got out, and everything became dark to me. I suppose I fainted. It was horrible. I familiarized myself with all the paraphernalia of death, and had myself strapped in the chair and all that. It is my belief if this method of punishment is adhered to it will be necessary to change adhered to it will be necessary to change the method of applying the current at the apine. As I sat in the chair I felt that I could by muscular contraction draw my body away from the electrode at the base of the spine. If that is so, when Kemmler's body contracted it interfered with the per-lect trausmission of the current. Then, again, the chair is not secured to the floor. Every reliance is placed on the docility of the creature to be operated on. Suppose a big burly murderer was brought in and un-dertests to against being killed, he could play havor with the apparatus and in short order kick it all to pieces. If, on the other hand, he was overpowered by force of numbers and still struggling, was placed in the chair what a scene would be witnessed while they were buckling around him the complicated harness. I don't think it safe to trust too much to the patience of the victim. In hanging men if they seem likely to make a scene, they strap them in their cells and carry them to the drop. They could not bring the electrocution chair, with all its wires and attachments, into a condemned man's cell. I think there will be other deaths by electricity as a capital punish-ment unless the Governor intervenes. I think it likely the next Legislature will appoint a committee to inquire into the man-ner of Kemmler's death."

Sheriff Jenkins said to-day: "The smell of that man's burning flesh haunts me still. It was not a nice scene to assist at. I think the current should have been not strong enough to kill one man but ten, so as to make death absolutely beyond per-adventure. When the first current was applied a shudder ran over Kemmler's body and then he was still. There was absolute silence in the room. Then Dr. South-wick said: 'It's a grand success.' The current had been turned off and Dr. Spitzka had pronounced Kemmler dead. 'Don't be sure it's such a grand success,' said one of the wifnesses to Dr. Southwick, 'Look at that.' It was apparent to all that Kemmler was reviving and coming to life again. He gasped and his lungs began to breathe, and everybody waited in horrid expectancy of a cry or some vocal manifestation. The suspense was frightful, for while they were getting the current going again it seemed evident to all that Kemmier was more and more re-viving. Then they gave him a tremendous

SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. PINEVILLE, KY., August 7. - J. A. Martin has arrived from Hazard, Perry county, where Judge Lilly is holding the first court in session in two years, guarded by three companies of militia. Martin says 700 people, 490 of whom are armed outlaws.

are in and about the town. There is great uneasiness and no one need be surprised if a massacre occurs. Court is being held in a tent. There is great excitement over the Judge's charge to the grand jury. In his charge he said among other things: "Mr. Foreman of the grand jury, and gentlemen and the people of Perry county: As you here witness I am again here to hold court. I have missed several terms of my court in your county, and for reasons best known to myself I was satisfied that a court could not be held, and, having had my life threatened, had every reason to believe

I WOULD BE ASSASSINATED If I came to Perry. Now, it all lies with you, Do you want a court that you may bring of-fenders to justice? I know the reputation of

Perry too well, and when the people learn that a man's life is more valuable than that of a horse men will be punished more severely for murder than for horse stealing. People seemed to be amazed at the Judge's stern remarks, for he had never before talked so plainly. Several tough-looking characters walked hurriedly out of the tent as if anxious to inform some faction that as if anxious to inform some faction that Judge Lilly was getting too severe. Continuing, Judge Lilly said:

Why, gentlemen, this county is over 70 years old, and but one man in all that time has been convicted of murder, and he sentenced to a small term of years in the penitentiary, though 500 men have been murdered in the county. This is appalling and I again ask you, do you want justice? The records show you these things. I have called this extra term of court to give you

ONE MORE OPPORTUNITY to show that you want it. Now, do your duty, I will be trank to say that if this court amounts to nothing there will be no use of ever again trying to hold court in Perry. My life is in danger.

The sellers of rum and "moonshine" are hiding in the mountains almost within a stone's throw of where court is being held. Judge Lilly will order Captain Gaither to seize all whisky in Hazard and destroy it. A building used by a saloon keeper was taken charge of to-day by the troops to be used for storing away goods belonging to the com-missary department. A citizen walked into the door shortly after it had been broken open, and made some remarks about the brandy left there by the fleeing saloonist. Lieutenant Walcutt ordered him hustled out at the point of the bayonet, which was within the past few years not one has ever been punished. Few, if any, have ever been arrested. Social lines have been so drawn through political means and otherwise that outlawry reigns unmanageable. There is not a church in Perry county nor a school house. Rev. J. J. Dickey, of Jackson, was here when Joe Eversole was killed and offered a prayer at the grave when he was buried.

This action of Rev. Mr. Dickey incensed another faction and his life was threatened. He has never been in Perry since. Shots are fired into the town every night, and at any moment 400 men, about equally divided into factions, are liable to begin a battle, in which Judge Lilly is sure to be killed.
