any information as to the doings inside. No Time to Waste.

Like Chairman Andrews, Mr. Kerr has a corps of trusted assistants who are looked to to perform the necessary detail work. Visitors to the Democratic headquarters who have business with the Chairman have no difficulty in seeing him, but the caller who imagines that the entire responsibility for electing the State ticket rests upon his efforts has but little chance to enter the presence of the Democratic leaders.

The Chairmen of both State organizations are alike in one respect-each wears a most mysterious air when questioned for information-but in their methods of operation they are entirely different. Chairman Kerr, in all his movements, is quiet and cat-like, while Chairman Andrews, with his bluff mannerisms, seems to convey the impression that the fight is already over and that Delamater holds the certificate of election.

Several Hends Better Than One. The Democratic Chairman, who is having his first experience, evidently believes that numberless heads is better than one, and he seldom makes a move of any importance without its being first thoroughly discussed by a council of the leaders. Chairman Andrews, whose last year's experience has benefited him, directs the State contest, issues orders and bosses things generally, his only consultations being with National Chairman Quay and Candidate Delamater. Both Chairmen Andrews and Kerr have left town for a short respite from their arduous duties. Mr. Andrews has gone to Spring Lake to join his family, while Mr. Kern has taken a run to Washington to consult with his fellow Democratic Congressmen regarding the situation on national affairs, The plan of campaign to be adopted has not yet been outlined by either of the State Chairmen. Each is waiting for the other to make public some declaration of policy.

Looking for Ammunition.

Delamater's denial of the Emery charges, and Pattison's letter of acceptance, have served as morsels to begin the battle with, but ju a few weeks' time the fight will be bravely on, and, policy or no policy, the votes will be sought. Chairman Audrews will return here tomorrow. The declaration of the Democratic ward veterans against Candidate Pattison will be followed up by the Republican leader, who will make the most of the declaration. Chairman Kerr is not much disturbed by what has been done by the veterans referred to. He claims that at an early day a large meeting of Democratic ex-soldiers will be held in this city, when the action of ex-Governor Pettison in vetoing the bill which provided for the burial of veterans without means, will be indorsed. Another feature of the campaign which is just now receiving attention from the Chair-men is the preparation for "stumping." Nearly every orator of note in either party has been appealed to, and numerous meetings are already being arranged for.

Independents Making Ready.

The Independent Republicans who will fall an line with the Emery-Barker movement to prevent Delamater's election are getting things into shape. A call for a private meeting has been issued, and a plan of campaign will be outlined. Whether the Independents shall co-operate with or act independently of the Democratic State organization is one of the things which will be determined upon. Without making much fuss about it the Independents are quietly organizing. It is the intention of the leaders in the movement to have the sult of the campaign, but when asked how the conditions in Pennsylvania now compare with those of 1882 replied: "I should say they were more favorable now than then. You must remember that thore is than then. You must remember that there is no single reason that then existed to justify the independent revolt that is not now intensi-fied and more far-reaching. Not only is boss-ism now more dominant than it then was, but it is far more offensive, irresponsible and in every way vicious. Besides, there are now added elements of a personal nature that have aggravated the assault made within the ranks of the Republican party against its every-where omnipotent leadership.

"I dislike very much to use names, but prob abiy nothing will better illustrate the difference in spirit between the uprising of 1882 and that of 1890 than the names of the two persons of issu than the names of the two persons against whom independence was asserted— Cameron then and Quay now—then against the master, against the creature now. Cameron's power was largely of his own upbuilding. From small beginnings, and during years of party and personal service, he had attached to himself masses of men by fine individual traits, exem-plifying in a high degree the virtues of gratitude and many fideluty.

pilifying in a high degree the virtues of gratitude and manly fidelity. "Senator Quay's power is mostly derivative and is void of the element of personal attach-ment. He controls; he does notlead. He com-mands; he does not attract. Cameron con-served his forces by inspiring an affectionate, or at least a devoted, spirit of loyalty. He made friends and held them. He was beaten by the catural growth of the independent op-position, strengthened by the accretions result-ing from the rigid exercise of power through a generation. Quay vaulted into Camersh's seat and attempted at once to rule with an iron scepter. As a result he has created, within what in '82 was a compact an enthusiatio force, an angry, restless and discontended body, which, if not mutinous, is at least alienated or indifferent. A Republican Indictment.

"And among these are some men of long party seruice, proved competency, high and spotless character, and, until not long age, of equal power and prominence with Quay. They chafe at the humiliating servitude they are asked to undergo at the haughty behest of their some undergo at the haughty behest of their some-time co-lieutenant, but now suddenly exalted master. In saying all this I only repeat the common indiciment brought against stenator Quay by the members of his own party. This is not Democratic oriticism; it is not my criti-cism. It is the attack that may be daily read in almost, if not quite a majority of the Re-publican newspacers of the State" "What have you to say about the charges against your opponent, Quay's candidate, Del-amater?"

"Oh, you must excuse me from discussing that subject. The charges have been specific-ally made by an honorable and prominent Re-publican State Senator, and were as absolutely denied by my optiment, Senator Delamater, last week. His accuser now announces that he will soon bring forth proof of the accession. Thus the matter stands at present, and thus you must permit me to let it stand. I prefer to fight this contest along other lines. For Self-Government.

"As I have said in my letter of acceptan the people of Pennsylvania are now engaged in a struggle for self-government, home rule; for the supremacy of their laws and Constitution against the will of bosses and placemen. You must remember that in 1874 we adopted a new Constitution by about 150,000 majority against a formidable combination of the bosses and rascale of both parties, aided by the united corporate wealth and influence of the State. It is an instrument which, in many respects, is a model of organic law. It breathes the essential spirit of popular government through all its spirit of popular government through all its menters. "But the people have failed to reap the best re-sults expected from their organic law by reason of the ionz lease of absolute power by the Re-publican bosses and their supple dependents. Indeed, it has become popular to smeer at the Constitution and its defenders, and from the moment of its adoption crafty and able leasers in the Logislature have devoted their skill and subtlety to devising statutes intended to sub-vert and circumvent certain of the mest salu-tary constitutional restraints upon legislation. It would take too much time to illustrate spe-cifically these matters, but every intelligent voter in Pennsylvania could recall instances applying to his own particular locality." ## Why One New York District is Decreasing in Population.

TWROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT. ]

WASHINGTON, August 23 .- The count of the Seventh New York Supervisor's district was to-day completed, and shows a loss over the whole district. The counties comprised in it are all in the northern part of the State of New York, most of them being up among the Adirondacks, and the loss is accounted for by the reason that the young men up there, as soon as they get old enough, go to other and more attractive sec-tions of the country to enter business and build their homes. The total population of the district is 299,696. In 1880 it was 301,318, the decrease in the whole district being 1,622 or about one-half of one per cent.

Relief at Last. "At last, in 1853, we procored the passage of the repeaking bill, and it was among the first of the local reform measures to which I had the honder of attaching my approval as Gowrnor. So, too, we abolished the delinquest tax office, another boss-made place, with, it was said, $100, 000 a year in fees; and so also with the offices of Sealer of Weights and Measures, with their enormous and offensive fees pouring into the pockets of ring politicitans. Why, it would tax are dibility if a computation ware made of the appregrate amount of money in this way yearly plandered from the people of Philadelphia." "Governor," said the correspondent, "can I have your views on the McKinley tariff bill and other national topics?" "No, sir. I would simply be doing what 'our friends, the enemy, want me to do if I intro-duced matters of mational party controversy into this struggie."
