ONE MARKET FOR YANKEE WHEAT NOW CUT OFF

A wealthy resident of Algiers, suspecting his wife, who was renowned for her beauty, pretended to visit Marseilles. Returning, he found her in company with a Colonel of the French army. He seized a Turkish scimetar, and, after a terrible struggle, killed them both. He is now in jail.

[BT DUNLAP'S CABLE COMPANT.] PARIS, August 30 .- A frightful story of deception, fall and the most brutal and savage vengeance comes to-day from Algiers, and embroils in its terrific details the names of two of the most prominent men and one of the most lovely women in that province. Editor Omessa, who is closely connected with the French Government, is one of the wealthrest men in that region.

He has a charming villa on the outskirt of Algiers, a perfect tropical home, ric Oriental taste, and furnished in such a luxuriant and elaborate tashlon that his house became a pilgrimage for all sightseeing visitors and a favorite rendezvous for the ultra fashionables of the city. A Pearl of the Orient.

Mme. Omessa was an exceptional beauty for that climate, being a blonde of the purest type and of a form that gave no room for criticism, petite, but divinely shaped, graceful, a complete mistress of several languages, an amateur actress of marked liant and versatile. She was admired and respected by the entire city, and her husband was envied quite as much for the possession of such a wife as for his fortune.

Among the frequent visitors at the Omessa home was a prominent officer in the French detachment stationed at Algiers. Colonel Sanglier was a type of the French gallant. He wore the national pointed beard, soft, silky and glossy black, and was a finished musician and a skilled lover. Love at First Sight.

He had a record for bravery and dash and a plentiful supply of that audacity said to be so popular and successful as a lovemaking adjunct with French women. When he met Mme. Omessa they evidently fell in love with each other forthwith, for, while rumor had never touched her with such a suspicion before, it now be came busy with the confidences between the Colonel and the madam. It spake of their ules will be required for the purpose, and meetings, their jaunts, and finally of their 40,000 coumerators will be employed. The Omessa himself was the last man to sus pect this condition of affairs, but when he did learn sufficient to arouse his senses from their normal condition of confidence and repose he at once laid plans to secure such evidence as would either condemn or acquit them of the terrible charge. To this end he maintained an equable and serene demeanor and made no change in his regular daily comings and goings.

A Well-Worn Rose Used Again.

Finally, when his scheme was fully formulated, he announced to his wife that he was suddenly called to Marseilles, on a matter of business and should be absent some weeks. He made all preparations as if for a journey, and left the house, waving adieus to his wife, and bearing in his mind her parting injunction to hasten back.

Then he simply did as many husbands have done before-returned to his house under cover of the dusk, concealed himself in a room adjoining that occupied by his wife, between which there was a window, and patiently awaited events. He had not been long in this position ere his wife entered her spartment accompanied by her trusted maid.

Getting Ready for a Guest.

They a freed a little onyx table, a wedding gift from her husband, laid upon it fruit, sweet wines and liquors and adorned it with delicate flowers set in chaste moorish vases Presently Colonel Sanglier came and was greeted at the door by the wife with a kiss. Then, seating themselves at the table, they partook of the delicacies there displayed, he meanwhile fondling her dainty tresses and murmuring soft expressions that the hus band, glowering through the balf oper window, had no difficulty in hearing.

For some time this continued, the wines rapidly growing less, the liquors, leaving no other trace behind them than flushed checks. disheveled hair, and a greater fluency o burning words, every one of them waited with cruel distinctness to the shamed ears of the maddened husband. Freuzied and crazed by the sight the husband yet possessed his senses sufficiently to conceal his presence by the most quiet action.

full of women under the reign of tome ancient despot. With this weapon in his hands Omessa crept up stairs again and with a bound dashed aside the slender fastenings to the door of his wife's room and sprang into the presence of the appalled and guilty couple.

The colonel sprang to his feet, and, grasping his own sword from a chair, assailed Omessa. A fearful contest ensued. Both men were hacked and bleeding, the furniture was demolished and the hangings and laces destroyed. The noise of the turmenl brought all the servants shivering and trembling to the door.

The Wrathful Husband Victori But the superior strength of Omesse finally overcame the Colonel, and he fell pierced' to the heart with the dripping scimetar. Then Omessa turned upon his wife, and despite her cries for mercy and her awful shricks, he plunged the scimetar into her body again and again. Her cries became weaker and weaker, and so she died.

Not satisfied with this revenge, and apparently brutalized by the sight of blood, in which the apartment was literally floating, Omessa litted the body of the Colonel and laid it across the body of his wife, and by an effort drove the scimetar through both, pinning them to the floor. Throwing open the door he shouted for all to enter, dashed through the crowd that had gathered, and fell insensible in the outer air. He has been arrested, and is now in jail.

LONDON Angust 30 .- Never in the hisory of transatlantic travel has there been such a rush to secure berths for a voyage to New York as at the present time. The tide of travel has just turned, and from all parts of Europe the Americans are flocking toward London for the voyage home. Those who neglected to secure return passange early in the summer are in a sorry plight, and there are at least 1,000 Americans in London to-day, who would be on the way home if they were able to secure passage for

One gentleman informed me that leaving Dresden on Thesday evening there were 47 American applicants for sleeping car privileges over the available number of berths on that single train, and the Paris hojels are at present overcrowded with returning Americans, insomuch that beds are being put into the parlors and amoking fooms. This is the biggest year on recording to the agents of the steamship lines, exceeding even last year, when the Paris exceeding even last year, when the Paris Exposition was supposed to have brought over the greatest number. It is really a over the greatest number. The Hamburg-American line, whose steamers sail from Southampton is full, officers' quarters and all, up to October 3. The North German L'oyd, from the same port, has everything booked, with the exception of one two officers' rooms and a few ordinary rooms, until September 27. Everything is taken on the Juman White State lines up to October 1 and 8 respectively. The Cunard line has a few berths on steamers for Boston toward the end of September and none at all on vessels for New York, and the Guion and Anchor lines have only a lew berths left from the middle of Septemper onward. There has always hereto ore been opportunity to take berths that have been given up at the last moment on vessels at the moment of sailing, but even this recourse is overcrowded at present, since some hundreds of Americans are at present wait-ing in Liverpool to seize this chance, and but few can be accommodated, and the same state of affairs exists at Glasgow, where all the berths on the transatlantic steamers are taken.

A SPLIT IN THE RANKS. SERIOUS DISPUTE OF THE PARNELLITES

[BT DUNLAP'S CABLE COMPANT] LONDON, August 30 .- It is impossible to ranks caused by the fierce fight between Mr. John Dillon, Member of Parliament for County Mayo, and the most reverend, Edward T. Dwyer, Bishop of Limerick. The issue between the Parnellites and the Vatican in refusing to recog-nize the Pope's right to interfere in Irish politics has now received a startling illustration, and Mr. Dillon's challenge, which is almost brutally thrown down, cannot be ignored. Thus the great and growing trouble of the Paruellites who have openly and publicly announced their contempt for the papal decrees, has been brought to a

The feeling is exceedingly bitter on both sides. The Parnelites, on their part, are resolute in their determination that the riests shall keep out of political affairs, and colare that if it comes to an alternative they will sacrifice their church rather than country. Mr. Parnell, himself, naturally keeps out of the rows, since it is his policy not to be identified with any cliques. There is no doubt but that the "uncrowned king" is in anything but robust health, and has been ailing for some time, so that his attendance in Parliament during the past session has not been as regular as usual. His physicians have been urging him to take a complete rest and a long sea voyage, and now they are anxious that he should go to Australia. He has refused up to now, but as soon as the O'Shea divorce case is over, in which he has been made a co-respondent, it is very possible that he will reconsider his determination.

There is another fierce controversy agitating the Irish ranks with regard to Mr. Timothy Harrington, who has been attacked they will sacrifice their church rather than

A Postoffice Fight Has Sundered the Republican Ranks, and DELAMATER MAY LOSE HEAVILY.

One Applicant Says That Another Offered Him $1,000 a Year to Retire.

> LETTERS FROM BLACK AND BARCLAY. The Latest Political Information From Every Corner of

The Berks county Republican organiza tion is divided, and two committees claim control. The trouble is caused by the contest for the Reading postoffice. The leading applicant exhibits a letter offering him $1,000 a year to retire in the interest of auother candidate.

SEPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. READING, August 30 .- The meeting of what is known as the High Republican County Committee here this afternoon de veloped a political sensation. A. M. High, it will be remembered, was the Berks dele gate to the Chicago Convention which nominsted President Harrison. When he came back he announced himself a candidate for the postoffice in Reading. His candidacy has provoked such a storm of indignation in the party, that last fall there were two Republican county convenions, known as High and anti-High, and two county committees were appointed to do this year's campaign work. Mr. High is supposed to have the support of Senator Quay for postmaster, but the appointment hangs fire, and the Democratic postmaster has been in office four months over his term.

Both wings of the party claim that they will support the State ticket, but the probabilities are that Delamater will lose 1,500 Republican votes in Berks county. The High County Committee this afternoon de sided to hold the primaries on September 6 and the County Convention on September 13. Delamater and the whole State ticket were indorsed.

Mr. High then came in. He had long been smarting under the criticisms which his leadership of the party provoked to settle the postoffice fight. He said that he was willing to sign an agreement with all the other applicants to ask President Harrison and Senators Quay and Cameron to have the postmuster appointed at once, or he was willing to have the choice for postmaster

Mr. High said that he had been maligned and denied that he was a boss. Then he stepped forward and read a letter signed by Dr. P. F. Markley, one of the other candidates for Postmaster, in which he offers High $1,000 a year for the four years' term if he will have him appointed Postmaster.

CREATED A SENSATION. This created a big sensation, as Dr. Markley is considered a pillar of the church here. Mr. High showed that another man had offered him $1,500, while another had come to him with a small forture in bank stock. To the Record he said:

Governor Pattison will receive, practically, the unanimous support of the miners in the bitunitious coal region of Pennsylvania, and he will likewise be enthusiastically supported in the anthractic section as well. During the last two months I have traveled all through the mining districts of Allegheny, Westmoreland, Clearheld, Fayette, Cambria, Centre, Hair, Bedford and Huntington, and I can positively affirm that all the miners in the anthractic regions will vote for Governor Pattison, and a large majority of the miners in the anthractic regions will do the same. Early in the year, before the State Conventions, the men were divided; but the nomination of Senator Delamater settled the question. Hastings would have been a popular candidate among the miners, but now at least four or five of the counties I have named will go for Pattison. This feeling can be relied upon, as it had been well considered. As far as I am personally concerned I lean toward the Rejublican party. I have mixed a good deal among the farmers, and find the feeling among them just as strong as among the miners in favor of the Democratic candidate for Governor. The only time I voted for Pattison, and I shall vote for him again. I can tell you that the feeling through the State is much stronger with him now than it was then.

The miners generally consider that there are measures that must be passed to improve their condition and to insure a greater safety for life. These measures would cost the corporations some money, and make them more re-sponsible for any fatality. Gentlemen—I am in receipt of your letter of the 19th inst, notifying me of my nomination for Secretary of Internal Affairs. In accepting the same I desire to convey through you to the Denocracy of the State my high appreciation of the great honor thus conferred upon me. Should the result of the election be such as to call me to the office I will discharge the duties to the best of my ability and with fidelity to the public interests. I am, very respectfully yours, W. H. BARCLAY.

Don M. Dickinson Trying to Carry Michigan for the Democrats.

SPECIAL TRLEGRAM TO THE DISPATUR. IONIA, MICH., August 30 .- Don M. Dickinson has a scheme for carrying Michigan by the Democrats that, to say the least, looks plausible, and if it works as it looks it might the Republicans will have to hustle in the livliest kind of a way to win. Some time ago the Democrats called Judge Morse, the one-armed Democratic soldier and Judge of the Supreme Court, and asked him to run for the Governorship. He refused on the ground that he could not afford it, but intimated that he might feel obliged to accept if the call came unnaimously on the first ballot from the convention and he had any assurance of success.

Don M. Dickinson, who saw a chance to carry the State by reason of the supposed and generally credited dislike in certain quarters to Turner has, it is said, guaranteed Morse an annual income of $15,000 a year.

"No, I will not," was the reply. "I will talk to the Independent Republicans, and it they feel that the best and quickest way to bring about the desired result is to vote for Pattison, it is their privilege to do so."

"How about yourself?"
"I will vote for Pattison, and I make no secret of it, though I have never before voted for a Democrat. I can be qualified to that." On the question as to who will probabl be the Republican nominee for Congress in this district, he had nothing to say further than that he hoped it would be Lee.

Suddenly, as they reached the timekeeper's shed just within the grounds, the tall stranger jumped from the weeds. He wore a black mask. Leveling a revolver in each hand at Laycock he shouted "drop that bag," at the same time beginning to fire with both revolvers.

"You get out of here," replied Laycock as he shifted the bag to his left hand and as he shifted the bag to his left hand and drew his revolver with his right. Koch and Byrnes, who were both armed, also drew and opened fire. The robber had continued to advance on Laycock as if to seize the bag, when the other began to fire he slowly backed in the direction of where his horse was tied. He reached the horse and tried to mount, but the girth broke. Reaching down in the weeds he picked up a rifle he had concealed. He then turned, threw off his duster and filed up hill toward the city, every now and then turning and firing with every now and then turning and firing with his repeating rifle. He was followed a quarter of a mile at a distance, but disap-

Along with the headquarters party were Past Department Commanders John Taylor, J. M. Vanderslice, Austin Curtin, Frank J. Magee and Thomas J. Stewart, with Massra, William Elmsey, Elif C. Sellers and PURSUING THE OUTLAW The shooting attracted a large crowd, and 500 men were soon in pursuit. The robber abandoned his horse, a beautiful thorough-bred bay, fitted with a new bridle and saddle. He also dropped one of his re-volvers. The pockets of the duster were filled with 44-caliber cartridges. Some of the foundry men followed the robber to Fernbank, where they were told he had taken refuge in a shanty boat. They went after him, but the fellow jumped into a skiff and rowed out into the river, where he flourished his rifle and revolvers.

A canvas bag was attached to the pomme of his saddle, presumably to receive the money. When last seen he was making for the Kentucky shore. Joseph Laycock, the police was shot twice, both times in the neighborhood of the groin. A RUNAWAY ENGINE. One of the company's engines was passing just as the firing commenced, and the en-gineer thinking he was being fired at aban-doned his engine and ran. The engine left without a guide, ran through the foundry yard into a lot of dumps and made a total wreck of itself and the cars, The robber was about 6 feet high, weighed about 160 or 170 pounds, and were a black mustache. Laycock's injuries are very serious, and it is thought the robber was also wounded. The money bag was literally shot to pieces with bulleta. The police authorities of Cincinnati were notified, and a large party of officers have gone out in pursuit. The foundrymen are greatly excited, and these tent to lynch the robber if they can and threaten to Ivneh the robber if they can catch him. Nobody seems to have ever seen the thief before.

AN AERONAUT'S ESCAPE. The Thrilling Scene Witnessed From th Fair Grounds at Detroit.

PERCHAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATOR.] DETROIT, August 30 .- The visitors to the Exposition grounds to-day were treated to a thrilling sight that caused the women to shriek and the strongest men to shudder, while the skillful aeronaut, Professor Bar-tholomew, shut his eyes to keep out the sight he feared. The day was un-propitious for balloon ascensions, as the wind was high and the clouds looked angry. Jerry Waite, who was to make the ascent, decided to go up, and as soon as the balloon was filled he ordered the ropes cut. The air machine shot upward to the height of 2,000 feet like an arrow, and then, of a sudden, stopped and slowly turned bottom up, and the crowd saw that turned bottom up, and the crowd saw that Waite could not release his parachute. Like a stone dropped the balloon, with the women shricking and the strong men turning away from the horrible spectacle, while Prof. Bartholomew cried that the man was killed, and shut his eyes.

Those who looked, however, saw that Waite had not lest his nerve and that he was still struggling to free the parachute. Suddenly he accomplished the task and began to float downward after the balloon had gan to float downward after the balloon had carried him 1,000 feet. Twice the parachute collapsed and twice Waite righted it before the ground was reached, and Waite dashed into the trees on the Canadian shore of the river. He was badly bruised by the fail, and nothing but his presence of mind in handling the parachute saved him from an instant and horrible death.

HIS FIRST MESSAGE.

The New Governor of Oxiahoma Urges the Leaning of Seed to Farmers.

GUTHRIE August 30 .- The two Houses convened in joint session at 3 o'clock to hear Governor Steale's first message. Reference is made to the deplorable condition of the settlers, many of whom, he says, exhausted their means while waiting to enter the Ter-ritory, while others were ruined by the late

The Governor urges that some means be devised by which seed wheat may be loaned to destitute farmers. He recommends the issuance of bonds by the Territory to purchase the seed and loan it to the most destitute. The Governor recommends that the first work of the Legislature be devoted to the provision for the construction of the necessary terri-torial and county building so that work may be furnished speedily to idle labor.

cities, and which is now building a railway in Washington City.

In his nearly 18 months in office Mr. Clarkson has appointed 26,675 fourth class postmasters and established 5,660 new postoffices, making his record 32,335 in all. All the appointments in the postoffice department are made up in the First Assistant's office, and in Presidental offices 2,217 appointments have been made during Mr. Clarkson's official time, leaving only 400 of this class of offices unchanged.

ALL RECORDS BROKEN. This is the largest record in changes and This is the largest record in changes and in the establishment of postoffices ever made in the same length of time. A striking feature is the number of new offices established. A department official speaking of this said: "In these offices has been illustrated Mr. Clarkson's broad policy as an official. Of the new offices created, 157 are in the New England States, 571 in the Middle States, 1,438 in what is called the North-west extending from Ohio to the Dances. west, extending from Obio to the Danotas, 487 in the mountain and Pacific coast States and 3,009, or over half of all, in the Southern States."

The men most prominently named as Mr. Clarkson's successor are L. T. Michener, of Indians; H. C. Payne, of Wisconsin; Chauncey I. Filley, of Missouri; John N. Connecticut; W. W. Morrow, of California, and F. C. Fowler, now chief clerk of the office. As Mr. Clarkson was the only representative of the Mississippi Valley and the West in the department, it is thought that his successor is most likely to come from

SENATOR EDMUNDS ILL-NATURED.

The Prospect for His Recess Resolution is

Not Very Bright. IYROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.I WASHINGTON, August 30 .- The tariff proceedings in the Senate, of which a refusal to accept any modification of the tariff on wool was the only interesting feature and a debate in the House of the bill providing for the adjustment of the wages Government employes under the eight-hour law, made up the tame work of the statesmen on "the hill" to-day, and the only really newsy discussion was in regard to the Edmunds resolution providing for a morning, left the track at Copeland, Tehama county, and were ditched. The passengers were severely shaken up and some of them fecess from September 19 to November 10. The resolution gained nothing in support from an exchange of opinion among Congressmen. It was not even as popular to-day as it was at first jump, and the majority of opinious seemed to be in favor of the theory that it will not be called up and pushed to the point of a formal discussion. Senator Edmunds was very ill-natured today, and showed his feeling especially in objecting to consideration of the bill giving 15 days' leave of absence per annum to certain employes in the postal service. It was in erred from his lack of good humor that he tearing thousands of carloads of sand from the beach. Object to Bill Refunding the Debt of the Contents of the Issue Classified for the Pacific Railroads.

WASHINGTON, August 30 .- Representative Daizell, as Chairman of the House Committee on Pacific Railroads, to-day submitted to the House, on behalf of a minority of the committe, a report in opposition to the bill for the refunding of the debt of the Central and the Union Pacific Railroads. The report is signed by Representatives Daizell, Flick, Cooper (Lpd.), O'Neil. (Mass.) and Reilly. While the minerity agree in their opposition to the proposed measure, their agreement, the report says, s based upon different reasons, and it has been deemed advisable therefore, upon deliberation, to refrain for the present from setting out at length their individual views and the arguments to sustain them, and to join in with a report which shall simply express the common dissent of all to the ma-
