THE MISSING TEACHERS. FACES THAT WILL NOT BE SEEN AT THE SCHOOLS TO-MORROW.

Creditable Showing of the Pupils in the Exhibit for the Exposition-Superintendent Luckey's Vain Chase for the Gold Medal Won at Paris-Educational Gossip. At the Central Board of Education vesterday two neatly bound volumes attracted much attention. It constituted the educational exhibit prepared by the pupils of the lowest primary grades of the Pittsburg schools for the Exposition. In all it will consist of 120 volumes, which are to be ready in ample time for the Wednesday opening.

Yesterday someone admiringly stated that the Pittsburg exhibit could not be excelled by any city in the State, but Superintendent Luckey proudly asserted it could not be beaten in the United States. In the lower grades language and arithmetic are the only subjects. The display is made up of every topic in school life. There are short stories topic in school life. There are short stories built upon the drawings that the pupils made, and some of those who helped to prepare the exhibit have photographs of themselves on the papers, and then cutely give a good deal of information about themselves. Six-year-olds furnish remarkable manuscript work and drawings. The Parisians could not be made to believe that children 6 years old furnished a portion of the Pittsburg exhibit at the Paris Exposition. This brings up the question as to what has become of the rold medal Exposition. This brings up the question as to what has become of the gold medal awarded for the Pittsburg school exhibit at Paris. Superintendent Luckey, during his recent European tour, made every effort to find out, but was unsuccessful. Neither could he discover anyone who knew anything about it. Perhaps Mr. Luckey's lack of "parlez-vous" had much to do with his failure.

BEGINS WITH A HOLIDAY. Though the school bells will ring to-mor-Though the school bells will ring to-morrow it will be merely a preliminary opening, for, as it is Labor Day, the school roll will simply be called and the schools dismissed for the day. On Tuesday the reality of school life comes into play. Both the Allegheny City and county schools open up for the first time on Tuesday.

Many faces that last year were ready to greet the pupils will to-morrow be absent.

Marriage, death, and the free use of the Marriage, death, and the free use of the political ax is responsible for this. Miss Belle Wilson has resigned on the Southside, also Mrs. T. N. Miller, of the North School, who has taught in the city for 24 years. In the Forbes, Pro. Eaton has retired and Aggie McCance has been married. Blanche A. Jones will attend Wesley College. Miss Kate McClure, of the Franklin, was married. At the Ralston Martha O'Donnel was married, Principal A. G. Burgogne. Miss Dickson and Mrs. Clarke retire.
