NOISY LITTLE BELLS.

There are other peculiarities also about railway traveling on the continent of Europe, some queer, some pleasant, some not so pleasant. They have a funny way of setting a little bell to ringing in the stations of Austria and Italy when the train comes in, and keeping it going till the train goes out. Jingle, jingle, tinkle, tinkle, chimes "he bell, set in a little zine rat-trap by the station door. It is rather agreeable for a minute or two, but when the train, stops 25 minutes for a table d'hote dinger, as it does wometimes, and the bell makes no pause you want to break it. At Ala, just at the boundary between Austria and Italy, the bell rang for two hours.

But the continental railways are well managed for all that. Especially in Belgium and Germany, where they are un-der Government control. There is a neat-ness, and orderliness, and dispaten about the conduct of things which is admirable. The guard appears at your window in gor-geous uniform, with red and blue and gold decidedly pronounced in it, and takes made a desperate attempt to steal $10,300 from a paymaster near Cincinnati....G. A. R. men your ticket before the train starts. You cannot well get into the wrong train. At every camp at Gettysburg....A Detroit aeronaut had a narrow escape....Republicans are di-vided over a postoffice fight in Berks county cross-road an official stands beside the bar, and, with head erect and heels well to-gether, presents arms. The station master is clad in colors which would make a major general in the United States army look in-significant in comparison, and his manners have a stateliness about them which would become the President himself. The stations are well arranged and are o'ten handsome buildings. They are always clean. When the train stops there is a porter at your door who will take your bug and baggage and carry them for you to the ends of the earth for a tew plennigs or a few centimes. And when you reflect that it takes 100 pfennigs to make 25 cents of our money, and 100 centimes to make 20 cents, you are conscious of a combination of ease with economy which is not unpleasing.

PITTSBURG BRAKES USED.

The slow trains here are the slowest which drag their weary length over the surface of this planet. But the fast trains pat a mile into two minutes with quite a little time to spare. The Oriental express, which runs from the Mediterranesn Sea to the English Channel, making few stops, needs only Pullman cars to make it quite a comfortable train. It tears along till the telegraph poles fly past like the pickets of a fence! One good Pittsburg invention they have here in the airbrake. It gives one a bit of a home feeling to watch the cars away out in the middle of Germany marked "Westinghouse-Bre ise Leitungswagen." You can feel sale in a car labeled with that inscription.

sale in a car labeled with that inscription. Of course the scenery helps the journey out. The quaint towns, with their narrow streets and queer roofs, are always interest-ing. The little houses standing in the fields, beside the brooks, along the hillsides, are always a piensant sight. There are rivers whose names we learned a good many years ago in the geography; there are great crucifixes set beside the track where some conjury road crosses it, and monwhere some county road crosses it, and monasteries and rained castles crowning the heights, and miles and miles of terraced vineyards; there are the people at the sta-tions, in their unfamiliar dresses. There are priests and soldiers. These sights keep the priets and solutors. These agains actively pilgrim from weariness. So we go out of Munich—a city of broad streats and handsome buildings and one of the finest picture galleries in the world—up to Innsbruck in the Tyrol, among the Eastern Alps, where the snow-topped mountains shut you in on every side. You can see the snow, but that helps little. The san beats down till the white streets teel like the boroing feryturnace. The only cool places in Innsbruck in July are the great stone churches. You sit down in the Hofkirche.

An Indian Outbreak Possible. The buying of Fall Suits SILVER CITY, Aug. 21 .- It has been two this season is going to be a months since the commencement of the pleasure to you. The designs rainy season, and the mountains are full of prospectors. There is water everywhere, are peculiarly pleasing. They and the conditions are all favorable for prospection, except the possibility of an outbreak of Indians. There has been a small band of renegades out since the caphave an unusual encourageture of Geronim nearly four years ago, but they have confined their depredations to Mexico and Arizona until within the past few days, when they made their appearance in the vicinity of the Hatchet mountains, ment to spend your dollars for them in our store.

This has put prospectors on their guard, and some of the elderones fay that there is every reason to fear a big outbreak. The Indians on the San Carlos reservation have been restless for several months and have been getting cart-ridges in every possible way. The extreme-ly dry weather and the shortness of the grass last spring made an outbreak almost impossible but now the feed is better than it has been for years and a band of hostile In-dians could hardly find a place in the two territories where they could not get plenty of grass and water for their ponies. An Indian outbreak now would practically put a stop to prospecting for the rest of the year, and would result in the cessation of opera-tions in some of the smaller camps in Southous to plain.
