CHATS WITH SOME OF THE VISITORS

Everyone beamed at the Exposition last evening when the dragon on the Japanese tea pagoda assumed a bright appearancewhen the electric lights were turned on. And everyone was there-prominent politicians, manufacturers, merchants and business men in general, in most instances accompanied by their wives and little ones, in some instances by their sweethearts, and sometimes only by a boon companion, as was the case with Mr. W. P. Dilworth, who, nevertheless, was quite contented with life, and expressed himself rather emphatically regarding the affair. Said he: "This is one of the finest Expositions I have ever seen. It is equal in style and uniqueness to the Centennial at Philadelphia. and exceeds in many points one I saw at Berlin and one in the city of Brussels. The glass exhibit, in my estimation, is one of the most novel features, and one that attracts considerable attention."

And sure enough, it was attracting considerable attention just at that moment, for the skillful glass blowers were busy in manufacturing all sorts of glassware for the benefit of the throng of spectators that sur- RESULT OF THE THIRD DAY'S TOPICAL rounded the furnaces. Superintending the work was a rather patriarchial, dignified old gentleman, who proved to be none other than Mr. Michael Ward, the oldest flint glass worker in business in the city. THE OLDEST OF THEM ALL.

"Call me old Mike Ward," said he, in an exceedingly pleasant manner, "for I have the oldest flint glassworker in the business in Pittsburg, I think. There are several gentlemen older than I in the city, who went into the business before I did, but they are superannuated now. Yes, I made chimneys 35 years ago, and have seen lots of changes in the glass business, and I am still in active service, though I was 70 years old last Tuesday, To-day I made two beer mags and one Jacob's ladder. I commenced business in the fall of 1836, with the firm of O'Leary & Mullvaney, and in time became a proprietor myself, but my partner sold enough wheat to break the firm and land himself in the penitentiary. Consequently, at my age, I am still in the field. I am what they call an all-around flint glassworker, and I am not afraid of having that statement contradicted, either. I am assistant manager with this firm, but when it is necessary I can put myself in any position made vacant, and I may have to prove that to-morrow." "Prove it? How?"

secret, but reporters never can keep anything unless it's their own love secret. No," concluded the interesting speaker. with a warning shake of the finger, "if you misquote me, or give me too much prominence, I'll never dance at your wedding. By the way, I never had but one girl in my life, and every morning I pass the house where I courted her for three years before she'd have me. I wasn't as good looking in the latter. He voted "yes," and opposite those days as I am now," said Mr. Ward, his name wrote: "I believe that by so as he laughed a joyous adieu.

In front of one of the furnaces, pressing the fiery molten mass into match box covers, was a youngish-looking, pleasant-appearing man, who was not adverse to talk, though not particularly communicative.

"The people are very much interested in the process of glass blowing," he said, "and we are simply playing at work. The bosses don't want us to work rapidly, but to give the spectators a good idea of how such work

"Why?" Well, I belong to the union, and the rules forbid work after 12 o'clock Saturday noon, so that unless the Arbritation Committee effects a compromise, we will not be here to-morrow. I think that an exception will be made in this case, but can't say for sure. We won't know until to-morrow morning what the decision is."

"What will the managers do, in case the union commands you to stop?" "Get non-union men I suppose."

"Will it result in trouble?"
"I can't say, but I think it will be compromised and we will go right on making broke into a pleasant smile, as he was asked what opinion he had to express to THE DISPATCH on the Exposition 'It's truly magnificent. I am very much delighted with the whole affair, and have eaten free pickles, drank free tea, munched free crackers, and imbibed free beef tea until, with the odor of popcorn, I am almost intoxicated. The exhibits are wonderful, I hink, and a vast improvement over those of Hon. William Ford, when buttonholed, remarked: "This is a wonderfully fine ex-hibition of the industries and resources of Pittsburg, and is a splendid thing for the city. Strangers passing through embrace the opportunity to visit the Exposition and in a better idea of our city in a half a day than they would in a week of ordinary ghtseeing and investigation. It is something to encourage, and I am glad to see so many people here."

One exhibit not premeditated or intended for the public was witnessed in the gallery during the evening, when a young couple availed themselves of the opportunity to get a breath o fresh air by stepping out on the alcony that fronts Penn avenue. They were enjoying a little promenade, and remarking upon the fact that such a treasure of a balcony had remained undiscovered too ng, and should be fully appreciated and exalted to its proper state of importance by them in the future, when a man with a tender throat, who is in charge of a carpet stand near by, stepped to the door to close it and prevent a case of inflammation, but instead he invoked one instantly by his untimely appearance, which resulted in any number of maledictions being heaped upon his defenseless head. Promenading couples are safe from his intrusion henceforth, so he chinery hall, and I am delighted with the chinery hall, and I am delighted with the evidences of progression to be seen in that department, and the business men in there tell me that it is wonderful what an interest farmers and out-oi-town people take in the machinery exhibit. It's a good place to be, and a good place for school children. I suppose they will be out in full force, tomorrow. I think the entire exhibit a vast improvement over that of last year. There is more solidity about it—not as much pop-is more solidity about it-not as much popcorn and lemonade."

Manager Johnston, when seen late in the evening, said: "I am very well satisfied with the day and the attendance. Everything is coming along nicely. The exhibits are all about finished, the electrical light display is burning up nicely and we will have the illuminated fountain in working order by Monday evening, I think. It will be a very unique feature. The central spray will be about 40 teet high, and the others about 20. It will be illumined with 10,000 candle power, that will result in the ex-quisite shading and tints making the fount-ain dazzling to look upon. We tried quisite shading and tints making the fount-ain dazzling to look upon. We tried it this atternoon, and there is but a small amount of work to be done before we can invite the public to look upon it. It will be a fac-simile of the Parisian fountain. To-day will be dress parade day, and we expect an immense crowd. Every one comes Saturday afternoon and evening to see every one else, and there will be an elaborate and very fine musical programme

PARKS ARE POPULAR. BALLOTING.

Chief Bigelow's Views as to Beautifying the Wharf Are Indorsed-An Overwhelming Majority in Favor of Turning It Into a

Park. It is not often that a newspaper attempts to interview over 500 people on one question of public interest, but that is just what THE a young Mike, you know. Yes, I am DISPATCH did at the Exposition, yesterday. The question is one that is of interest to many, and is sure to come up for decision, sooner or later. It is: "Should the the Allegheny wharf be transformed into a park and promenade?"

All newspaper readers know of Chief Bigelow's plans about the Allegheny wharf, between the Sixth street bridge and the Exposition. The question now is, do the people take the same view of the matter as Chief Bigelow? THE DISPATCH yesterday tested the pulse of the people by putting the question squarely at them, without any partisanship The answer can be relied on as the sentiments of the majority of those visiting the Exposition, and by the same course of reasoning, of the citizens of Pitts-burg, Allegheny and all out-of-town people who cast their vote from an unbiased view of what was best for the city.

Out of the 550 people who voted on the question at THE DISPATCH headquarters, only 9 voted against the park. These 550 vote, and an earnest endeavor was made to secure, in all instances, the unbiased opin-ion of those voting. Nor was It necessary to ask people to vote—the question is a pertinent one, and as soon as it was announced, people took up their pen to register their names in the poll book.

SOME OF THE REASONS.

Some voters added comments under their names, giving their reasons for voting. D. of Waynesburg, was one of people, but to the sauitary condition, as

L. F. B. Barker, of Youngstown, wrote: "My opinion is that the more places of in-nocent amusement provided in a city the better it is for the morals of the place. The park, as indicated in the question, I think, would supply such a place.

Now for the opposite view of the question One man who voted "no gave as his reason that the park would be a loafing place for rough characters. No other reason was given for a "no" vote—those so voting walking away without making any comment. SOME WHO VOTED,

Querr Folks.

"What kind of people are they who erect a costly pagoda like that, and yet do not let their names appear on any part of the exhibit?" was the query a gentleman ad-dressed to his friend yesterday, while they stood critically examining the unique Tea pavilion in the Exposition.

"Perhaps, but the visitors don't seem to let that act interfere with their enjoyment of the free tea," said the first speaker. And judging from the approving countenances of the tea drinkers such really was the case.

GUESTS STILL COMING.

At Cresson Springs the season is at its height in August. The first and second weeks in September find the guests of the hotel gone and the cottagers going. But the plans of the President and his family have charged things, this year, and it is have changed things this year, and it is evident that the fashionable people here evident that the fashionable people here will make the movements of the head of the country the motive power of their actions. Usually this is the time to go home, and yet there are some still coming. It is always strange to real lovers of mountain scenery. Not here, that look on the country as a sort of a hospital, that Cresson should be deserted in September and October—the two most delightful months of the year to spend in the wood. Mrs. Harrison evidently knows this, for Mrs. McKee says ner mother will more than likely remain all f this month and part of next.

A sewing machine came in the Harrison luggage and the White House chef de ouisine is to follow in a short time. It is not possible that the hotel will keep open longer than this month, and probably it will close about the 20th, but, with a cook and the extremely commodious kitchen in the Park Cottage, there is no fear of the President's family going hungry.

Mrs. Harrison's departure was a sort of wet blanket. The ladies that led society had put their heads together to arrange a brilliant social programme for the latter part of the week. But the plans were disarranged quite unceremoniously by Mrs. Harrison's sudden, unexpected trip to Washington. The little circle of cottagers grows smaller every day.

SOME VACANT COTTAGES,

Starting in the first row there is the Stewart cottage. It was closed for the season last Monday when young Douglas Stewart lett for Conneaut Lake to join his family. Next is the Schoonmaker, or the Chambers cottage, as it has been known all summer. The Chambers family are still at Cresson, and no rumor of their approaching depar-ture has been heard. Mrs. Chambers and her children have been here all summer, and Mr. Chambers joins them every Friday or Saturday evening, remain ing over Sunday. The Park Painter cottage will likely be vacant next week for there is some talk to the effect that Mrs. Painter leaves Monday or Tuesday. As Mrs. Mark W. Watson did not get to Cresson very early, her family will probably be one of the last to leave. Mrs. Watson's cottage is next to Mrs. Park Painter's.

Above and across the Watson lot is the Chalfant cottage, but the family spent the summer, some of them in the east, and some in Europe and did not come to Cresson. Louis W. Dalzell's family occupied their house, and they, the Dalzells go Monday. The Darlington cottage is next to Dalzell's.

Mrs. Darlington says nothing of her immediate departure, but willy-nilly, President or no President, she goes back to Al-legheny, September 20, to put her small daughter to school. Miss Darlington is home from Naragansett, where, despite the fact that Newport is weeping over her lost pier, she had a brilliant time.

Evidently Miss Darlington will stay at Cresson until the winter season begins, Skipping the Park Cottage and its distin-guished guests, the next is Mrs. Byron H. Painter. Mrs. Painter has formed no plans that have been given out regarding her doings or goings. The Edward's cottage, which is next Mrs. Painter's, and the Thaw cottage have been unoccupied all summer. They look bleak with their windows closed and vine-hidden porches, and what the entrance is the second way. and make the entrance to the second row of cottages have a deserted and chilly appear ance. Cottage E, which belongs to the hotel, is the first cottage of the third row. No one has lived in it all summer. Next this cottage is the handsome structure erected within a few years by B. F. Jones. It is the largest and for that reason was selected as the proper one in which to give Mrs. Harrison a reception when she came back tolCresson.

people included workingmen, merchants, manufacturers, politicians, prominent visitors and all. No children were allowed to O. Horne, Mrs. William Walter Willock and B. F. Jones, Jr. The next cottage is Mrs. A. G. W. Painter's. In her cottage the first tea was given to the President's wife and other ladies of his household by the society women of Pittsburg at Cresson If Mrs. Painter is leaving Cresson nothing has been heard about it so far. The last o the row is

THE CARNEGIE COTTAGE.

The Carnegies, Mrs. Thomas Carnegie's family, expect to go to Pittsburg about the middle of this month. There is another cot tage almost forgotten, it is so much hidden doing, it would not only be conducive to in the trees—the Jewett cottage. Mrs. David the beauty and pleasure of the city and its E. Park had it all summer, but it is now vacant. In the hotel are a half dozen or so families who move in W. Day Wilson, of Clarion, said: "I the cottage circle. Among them are m a frequent visitor to Pittsburg, and Mrs. John H. Ricketson, Mrs. George Shiras, Miss Dutilh, Mrs. McClintock, Mrs Grugan, Mrs. Perin, of Baltimore, Mrs. Tiflany and Mrs. James B. Oliver. make the most considerable people at Cresson, and sifting things, putting rumo on one side and fact on another, there will still be a nice little circle for Mrs. Harrison to drink tea with for a fortnight or so to

The cottagers on the west side of the Mountain House, in cottages A, B, C, D and S, are, by their situation, almost excluded from the other cottages. These villas all belong with one exception to the Mountain House. The nearest cottage on the up-per row is the property of the late Mrs. Judge Jones. It is a handsome cottage, surrounded by grounds as level as a chess board placed for a game, and very admir-ably arranged within.

ALBANY, September 5 .- The State Board Arbitration continued their investigation of the Central strike to-day, and heard both sides of the controversy. Commissioner Purcell presided. Mr. Powderly did not arrive. Messrs. Wright and Roger A. Pryor appeared for the Knights and Hamilton Harrison for the road. Commissioner Purcell asked for the production of the agreement between the road and the men as published and it was put in evidence. Both sides declared the through, and the hearing was declared Mr. Purcell, in closing, said that the public, he thought, and the newspapers, were under the impression that the board could give a decision in favor of one side or the other. The impression was false. He wished it understood that the law allowed the board to give an opinion or decision only when both parties consented to arbi-trate. In this case the board would consider the testimony and would make certain nendations for the amicable settlement of the difficulty.

The board cannot make this announcement, however, but through the Legislature, and so January 1 will probably be the date when their views will become public. The only advantage thus far gained is in the bringing out of the case in its true light before the public.

Two women, one American and one French, were arrested at Paris yesterday as they were about to fight a duel. Both are said to move in high society. There was a row in the trade union congress, but Burns and the radicals came out ahead.

IBY DUNLAP'S CABLE COMPANY.] LONDON, September 5.-A Paris co respondent sends a sensational story to-day. The story is that two ladies resident in Paris, one a Parisian by birth and the other an American, and whose names he claims are very well known and very carefully suppressed, went to-day to the woods of Mendon with the intention of fighting a duel. The quarrel that gave rise to this hostile meeting began on the Boulevard Des Italiens the evening before, and its subject was a certain well-known man about town and frequenter of the fashionable clubs. The two women met in front of the Cafe Americain, and after a few moments' exchange of words, they assailed each other, mutually tore their bonnets, bustles and back hair in vigorous fashion. Swords were the weapons selected for the ontest, and the two combatants were preparing for the fight, when three gens d'armes appeared on the ground and ordered all the parties present to secompany them to the police station. There the Superintendent gave the two women a severe lecture, advised their reconciliation, retained their weapons and dismissed them. The account concludes with the information that both parties are "real ladies."

A JUST DECISION.

in Army Scandal Which is New Attracting Considerable Attention. [BY DUNLAP'S CABLE COMPANY.]

CORK, September 5 .- The severe measures that have just been adopted by the War Office in a case that has for some time attracted general attention, have now created a genuine sensation. The officers concerned in this action of the War Office are attached to a Welsh regiment stationed here. Among the members of the regiment in question is a Lieutenant Jervois, who has always enjoyed a wide popularity among the privates, but has been ignored, scorned, boycotted and persecuted by his fellow officers, and subjected by them to petty annoyances of all kinds. This persecution culminated about two months ago, when the lieutenant's room was broken into at night, he was dragged from his bed, taken outside to a secluded spot and tarred and feathered. A few days later Jervois refused to salute his superior officer when on parade, as he knew that officer was one of those guilty of the indignity heaped upon him previously, and he had no other means of showing his resentment. Following this, he absented himself from his regiment, and proceeded to England. there to visit relatives. It was made, and the decision, announced Wednesday last, was to the effect that two officers are deprived of their commissions and four others placed at the bottom of the promotion list, with the option of resignation. It is this decision that is causing the sensation here, and is universally accepted as just.

No full decision has yet been rendered, but from what the Holy Tribunal has already decided, without going into the scientific spiritualistic principles invoked, the tribunal will give as its opinion that the Church should condemn hypnotism as practiced upon human beings, upon the ground that it disturbs human liberty and s dangerous in its effects upon the mental and physical condition of the hypnotised

There is a glittering galaxy of composers represented on the programme of the seven teenth free organ recital to be given at Car. negie Hall this afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock by City Organist Wales. Since the attendance has grown to such flattering dimensions all the chairs reserved for extra occasions are ready for use, and Superintendent Waddington will give his personal attention to the proper disposition of audience and seats. Senator Delamater conferred with Mayor nounced that the latter will give his hearty support to the ticket. Wharton Barker is in Philadelphia. The kickers are also

pie. It discusses, determines and puts in operation practical things, benefiting the people not only of this Commonwealth, but of the nation. I stand here as the representative of protection. In this campaign my opponent appears with the mask torn off, and he stands as the avowed representative of free trade. We are engaged in a great struggle now, but we are on the eve of a greater one in 1892, in which this issue will be even more clearly defined. On this account the State must do its part not in amild way, but in a most emphatic way. The Republican party has taken a stand in its platform on the question of State taxation. The party has taken a stand in its platform on the question of State taxation. The party has taken the view that the land of the farm, your homes and mine, have been excessively taxed and bear more than their burden of public expenses as against the corporations. That view is mine. I have come to the same conclusion. The party says to the farmer that it will give him relief, that it will put on the corporation and on personal property their share, and that it will put on enough tax that the counties can be paid back sufficient to afford a relief that will be felt at once by the farmer and the land owner. That is the kind of talk I like. If I am elected Governor I propose to see this carried out. We will be able to raise enough money to give the needed relief and give it promptly. To-day Pennsylvania stands practically free from debt, owing to our wise and economic administration, and I figure it out that enough can be secured from the corporations to increase the school fund in each county two-fold. I am a Republican, and stand on a Republican platform. I believe in all that which has inspired the Republican, and stand on a Republican will be able to raise enough the conditions to increase the school fund in each county two-fold. I am a Republican, and stand on a Republican will be able to raise enough that an interest the school fund in each count two-fold. I am a Republican, and stand on late Delamater, Mayor Fitler and David Martin held a conference to-day in the Mayor's office. Mayor Fitler was in the sulks for some amater for Governor, but when he found the local leaders ready to consult with him in the making of a fall ticket he announced

Republican candidate for Governor, did not relax any of his official or personal dignity. He spoke in measured terms of his individual importance, but made his callers feel easy when he graciously announced his willingness to use every effort to roll up a large Republican majority in Philadelphia. Senator Delamater, after leaving the Mayor's office, visited Postmaster Field. The latter has been busy for some time past with new schemes for the improvement of the postal service of this city, and has paid but little attention to the political situation. Mr. Frield was feeling in excellent spirits, and informed Senator Delamater of his faith in the outcome of the State fight, which he believes will result in the Senator's election by a handsome majority. The hustling candidate for the Gubernatorial honors, with an eye to the value of prac-tical services next visited the headquarters of the Republican State Committee at the Continental Hotel and had a long talk with booked for a speech.

Wharton Barker, one of the prime factors in the Independent Republican movement against Delamater, when seen to-day, stated that he had concluded to not divulge the names of those who constituted the City Committee until Monday. He claims that Delamater will not have 10,000 majority in this city and thinks that a number of Rethis city, and thinks that a number of Re-publican strongholds in the State will be in

NEITHER GORMAN NOR DUDLEY

Are Interfering in the Election in Speake PRPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.1 PORTLAND. September 5 .- Here everything is quiet. The silly stories about Senator Gorman, who was alleged to have started on a tour to Maine to debauch the morals of the voters, was answered by his The abolition of national banks, prohibiplain denial, but that did not prevent the starting of an equally silly story to the effect that Colonel W. W. Dudley, of Indiana, was on his way here to help Mr. Reed. What that gentleman wants is to be let alone. The assistance of outsiders does not help him. The great aggregation of talent at Old Orchard this afternoon, when Reed and Lodge and McKinley and Henderson spoke, made no votes. The fact is, apathy reigns and seems invincible. Another month like the last and Mr. Reed would be a beaten man. The Democrat or revenue only and the Republicans who have been waiting to hear gold dollars dropping on the floor are discouraged. So far nobody has seen any sign of the promised Democratic barrel.

The sessions of the Board of Aldermen are a pretty good test and certainly the Demo-crats have been making no additions to the check list there. Two years ago 650 names had been added, where only 150 have been this year. The work of naturalizing the Biddeford Frenchmen goes on rather slowly before Judge Bonney of the Superior Court. from the State. There was a strong sentiment expressed in favor of supporting Governor Hoard on account of the school law he represents, and the minority was for a straight ticket, which was nominated as follows: Governor, R. May, of Viroqua; Lieutenant Governor, N. L. Allen, Beaver Dam; Secretary of State, W. N. Lockwood, Ripon; Treasurer, Alfred Mannheimer, Manitowoc; Attorney General, K. Shawvan, Milwaukee; State Superintendent, J. W. Stewart, Broadhead; Railroad Commissioner, B. S. Bishon. Local interest continues to center on the legislative ticket. There seems to be no good reason for expecting anything else than success of the whole Republican ticket.

WALLER WILL NOT RUN.

He Refuses the Democratic Nomination for Governor of Connecticut.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. NEW HAVEN, Cr., September 5 .- Ex Consul Thomas M. Wailer, in a letter recently written to Hon. Clinton B. Davis, Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, has this to say with reference to his being a candidate for Governor on the Democratic ticket in the coming election. The frequent mention of my name as a possible candidate for Governor this fall leads me to advise you officially that if such a nomination were tendered I should be compelled rejuctantly to decline it. The co-partnership engagemen into which I entered in the city of New York precludes me from accepting any political position at present.

No acknowledgment of the receipt of the names of the Alaskan delegates to the meeting of the World's Fair Commissioners was made by the State Department, and, in consequence, the Sitka representatives were not on hand at the convention.

CHICAGO, September 5 .- Director N. H. Kohlsaat returned to the city from Alaska last night and was at the World's Fair headquarters to-day. Mr. Kohlsaat's trip to the United States' largest possessions developed quite a sensation in connection with the World's Columbian Commission. In conversation with Governor Knapp at Sitks he learned that when the President of the United States invited the Governors of all the States and Territories to appoint two citizens, one a Democrat and the other a Republican, for the office of National Commissioner of the World's Columbian Expo-Alaska was included. In response to this invitation Governor Knapp forwarded to Washington, D. C., the names of Edward De Goff, of Sitka, and Judge Williams, of Juneau, Alaska, as candidates for

DELEGATES WERE NOT NOTICED. Up to the date of August 20, the day on which Governor Knapp, met Director Kohl-sant, no acknowledgment was received from the State Department at Washington of the receipt of the names submitted. The names of the commissioners from the States and other Territories were promulgated, the Commissioners' Convention was held here in June and no apparent notice was taken of the absence of the delegation from Alaska. The two gentlemen named by Governor Knapp have been prepared to start for Chicago for many weeks, and are only awaiting the arrival of their formal commissions from the State Department. The fact that Alaska had no representation at Washing-ton, and the poor and costly telegraphic service, the nearest telegraph station being hundreds of miles distant from Sitka, be-tween the nation's capital and the nearest military post, account in a measure for the lack of prompt communication on the subject between the Secretary of State and the Governor of Alaska.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

The communication from Governor Knapp may have been overlooked or pigeon-holed on its arrival in Washington, and to this cause may be attributable the absence from the National Commission at this time of the

Mr. Kohlsaat called on Secretary Dickin-It is very generally admitted that a change of 1,500 voters from Delamater to Pattison would give the latter a majority, and that 1,300 would leave a very narrow son in the Pullman building this morning, and related his conversation with Governor Knapp. Mr. Dickinson at once wired the State Department at Washington for the particulars of the case.
