LAST NAIL IN BUTLANGER'S COPFIN

In a London theater last night, Whistler, the famous artist, attacked Editor Moore with a cane. He was promptly knocked down. Other parties joined in the fracas, which has caused a sensation.

THY DUNLAP'S CABLE COMPANY.]

LONDON, September 6.-A most disgraceful and exciting fist fight between James McNeil Whistler, the celebrated artist; Augustus M. Moore, the proprietor and editor of the society newspaper, the Hawk, and William Horace Lingard, the well-known theatrical manager, occurred to-night in the fover of the Theater Royal, Drury Lane. The theater was crowded with people who, were all more or less acquainted, for it was the occasion of the opening of the autumn season, and the production of the new drama by Augustus Harris and Henry Pettit, entitled, "A Million of Money,"

It was during the interval between the third and fourth acts that the scene occurred. Mr. Augustus M. Moore was standing in s circle formed by a group of his friends, who were all talking in a most animated manner and discussing the brilliant triumph which had just been achieved by Charles Gleany A BLACK THORN STICK.

Suddenly Mr. James McNiel Whistler, with his large eye-glass in his right eye and his flat-brimmed stove-pipe hat on his head, entered the foyer talking with a friend named Butterfield. He carried in his hand a black-thorn stick which, with a peculiarity that belongs to the artist of the butterfly signature, is much longer than is generally Immediately on estehing sight of Moore Whistler raised the heavy stick he carried and rushed at the editor of the Hawk, whose hat was smashed with the first blow. Behe could recover from the surprise of the attack Whistler began to beat him most mercilessly about the head, still with the stick, and at the same time shouted at the top of his voice and in contemptuous tones, "Hawk! hawk! hawk!"

Moore's temper was at once aroused and he struck Whistier one blow below the eyes straight from the shoulder, which felled the artist to the floor. The noise of this occurrence had drawn several people to the scene, and some of Whistler's friends joined the fracas smid great uproar, which threatened to assume serious proportions.

A VERY LIVELY ROW.

Eventually Moore was pushed into the American bar, and kept there by force while the acting manager of the theater, Mr. Fletcher, who stands about six feet in his stockings, seized the illustrious artist, who was kicked out of the house without further

All was quiet for a moment. Then a fresh scene occurred. While the various groups in the lobby, in one of which was Augustus Moore, were discussing the late fraces and its summary termination, Will-iam Horace Lingard entered the fover and rushed straight at Moore and smashed him in the face. The attack was so sudden and unexpected that Moore did not even see him coming, nor did anyone else notice him till the blow was heard, and immediately the two men were locked in a fierce tussle before it was possible for any of their friends to interfere

The noise of the scuffle was heard inside the theater, and many people who were settling into their places in anticipation the rising of the curtain on the fourth act, went out again to discover the cause of the worst of the encounter. Augustus Harris is remarkably irate at the disturbance, as this is the first time since the theater been under his management that anything approaching so disgraceful a scene has oc Mr. Moore was seen after the performance by a reporter, to whom he said that he was quite at a loss to account for Mr. Whistler's conduct, for the Hawk had not published

Mr. Lingard, however, was on hand and was seen after the play, by which time he had arranged his dress, which had been pulled in the metee. He said he had heard n the the theater that Whistler had tried to thrush Moore in the lobby, and that fact had reminded him that he also had a grudge against the editor who had made many nasty remarks about him in the He added, however, that he was sorry he had allowed his temper to get the

THE FALL OF BOULANGER.

France New Realizes the Peril From Which She Escaped.

IBY DUNLAP'S CABLE COMPANY. PARIS, September 6. - General Boulanger will spend the coming winter in Italy. His seemingly voluntary ostracism, which may be induced by the recent disclosures, coupled with the disclosures themselves, is a source of very great disappointment to his most trusted adherents, who are now heard to declare most openly that they are going to expunge his name from the list of nists. There is no doubt, however, that Boulangism without Boulanger would ie as dire a failure as a wake without whisky or corpse.

It was the military tinsel of the quondam Minister of War that made the party. All the Boulangists are now looked upon as being guilty of having lived upon the funds which were supplied by the adherents of the Royalist party, and the recent revelations show the duplicity and corruption of the General's faction. The whole country knows the danger it so narrowly es caped of falling into hands of an unscrupuous and paitry dictator, with a band of hungry politicians at his heels.

CARMEN SILVA WITH THE WEISH. She is Initiated Into the Mysteries of the Bardic Circle.

[BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, September 6,-Carmen Silva, Queen of Roumania, had a great day at the Welsh eisteddfod, at Bangor, on Thursday. She was admitted into the Bardic Circle, initiated into the mysteries of Welsh Bardism and invested with the blue ribism and invested with the blue ribbon of the order by the venerable Archdruid. Later, when the victorious bard was crowned, she laid her hand with those of the other bards upon the gleaming sword held by the Archdruid, whereat the multitude assembled shouted and danced with joy. The Queen went through the whole of the proceedings with zent and listened with apparent interest to the rendering of many Welsh poems. She declared she had for years taken a great interest in Cymric history, and to prove it terest in Cymric history, and to prove it read a little thing of her own, dated from Llandudno, the same with the refrain, "Hail, Cymru, Old Cymru Forever."

In spite of the presence of the Queen of Roumania, however, the Welsh felt the absence of Stanley severely, and wondered if he was really as sick as Lady Burton's letter from Switzerland, where the dis-tinguished explorer was visiting Sir Richard Burton, indicated. As this morning's dispatches say that Stanley, though still very weak, climbed two or three mountain peaks yesterday, the eisteddfod would doubtless be reassured. It was a somewhat singular coincidence that Rev. John Rowlands, who presided over the Welsh National is a namesake of Stanley, John Rowlands being the explorer's name before he changed it to that of his adopted father and benefactor, and the one that he inscribed in the visitors' book in Dudley Castle when on a visit to his mother after his first trip to America.

LONDON, September 6 .- A week or two ago, the performance of Henry Arthur Jones' play, "Judah," which has a religious, or at least a moral motive, was presented before an audience of clergymen. Alluding to this incident, that liberal minded gentleman, the Rev. Mr. Spurgeon, pleasantly observed to his congregation at the Metropolitan Tabernacle Wednesday even-ing that the Christian church at the present day had "played the harlot beyond any church in any age. The Young Woman Who is Devoting Hersel

(BY DUNLAP'S CABLE COMPANY.) PARIS, September 6 .- Sister Rose Gertrude, the nun who volunteered to continue the good work began by the martyr priest, Father Damien, among the lepers at Molokai, in the Sandwich Islands, has written to a friend in this city stating that she is resolved to lay her case before His Holiness, the Pope, to beg him to interpose his authority with the people who are trying to hinder her work, which she is determined to persevere in bravely as an English woman and a good Catholic. She adds she has no fear, but that public opinion will be on her side.

Decision in Chancery. [BY DUNLAP'S CABLE COMPANY,] CHATHAM, September 6 .- A man named

White, formerly a private soldier and a disciple of the late Johanna Southcolt, who many years ago pretended to divine inspiration, organized here a sect which he called the "Jezeulites." He made many converts, and gathered money both from Eugland, America and elsewhere. He built a temple which, though still no finished, has already cost £30,000. The roof alone cost £2,000. Chancery experts now declare that the building is quite useless and the Jezeulites are consequently left out in the cold.

A. C. Jarrett, the Southside real estate agent, came home yesterday morning from St. Paul, in company with James Campbell, and, as was expected by his friends all along, will be in his place of business tomorrow. He was seen at his home on Carson street last night by a DISPATCH reporter, to whom he made a statement in regard to his trip West and the talk that has been indulged in about his personal affairs by uninterested people, during his absence. Mr. Jarrett said:

"I will be in my office attending to busi-ness as usual on Monday, and what is more I will be able to get out of my financial dif-ficulties all right. I cannot understand why people that have no interest in my af-fairs should have taken advantage of me during my absence and talk about me as they did. I expect to pay everybody I owe, and I also expect those who owe me to pay up. Some of those who talked the most while I was away are indebted to me. But that is natural; when a man gets embarrassed the very men who ought to be his friends turn against him.

consequence. ISPECIAL TELEPRAN TO THE DISPATCH. CRESSON SPRINGS, September 6, One of the first visitors and almost the only one to the President this morning was General Eakin. He remained with His Excellency about an hour, during which they chatted on entirely personal matters. The President is extremely tired, and all of to-day kept away from the hotel except when he came over to the dining room. Even then he avoided publicity by entering the dining room through the bay window which opens off the piazza. Only the few people seated near knew when the President and his family were in the hotel, and as they greeted him in passing he replied with a courteous bow but did not speak.

There has been no more enthusiasm to-day than there was yesterday over the presence of the Chief Executive of the nation; yet, at the same time, a distinctly friendly feeling is entertained by all. PLEASED WITH THE LADIES.

This is due in great part to the ladies of he Harrison household. Their demeanor has been pleasing in the extreme. There is no doubt that when they first came to Cresson they were narrowly watched, so that the slightest attempt at snobbishness might be noted. But an agreeable disappointment is now being felt, and those that were most coldly inclined toward the Presidental poster as your their warrant in their dental party are now the warmest in their praise. RECEPTION IN THE PARLOR. The much-stared-at pair made their way slowly to the parlor. A moment later a murmur of "Reception" passing from one to another caused all to forsake their companions and rush to the parlor. The President stood in the parlor about ten minutes. He looked a little less grim than the day before, but still he was in marked contras to the self-possessed woman, always with an agreeable look on her face, who stood beside him—his wife. Mr. Halford stood beside him—his wife. Mr. Hallord stood beside the President, and to him you pronounced your name, which he repeated to the Presi-dent. The President shook hands, and then if you were self-possessed enough to step aside and chat with Mrs. Harrison, well and good; if not, you passed on re-locing

The parlor was full of Pittsburg people and the chidren danced away regardless of the proximity of the President. When the reception was over the President and his wife went home, but for a good while after Mrs. Russell Harrison and Mrs. McKee, nodding to those they knew and looking taken very kindly to the ladies of the family and the latter are having a splendid time in pleasantly at all, walked about the hotel, while the guests separated into little knots of gossipers, or parties at a game of cards. NO BUSINESS WANTED.

Mr. Russell Harrison came this evening on the 11:15 train; he will only stay a few days at Cresson. Mrs. McKee expects to go to Indianapolis on Monday, to stay for a short time.

The President's mail has not reached abnormal proportions, but still it is big enough to satisfy an ordinary man. No official business of any kind has been transacted at far at Cresson, and if the President has his way about it, none will be transacted while remaining time between now and the second he stays upon the mountain top at Cresson. Tuesday of November will be devoted to

KILLED AT BRINTON.

An Unknown Man Meets flis Fate on the Pennsylvania Road - Another Thrown From a Horse and Has His Skull Cracked-A Laborer Badly Hurt.

An unknown man was struck by a freight train about 6 o'clock last night at Brinton station, and instantly killed. His body was brought to the morgue. The deceased was about 23 years of age, 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighed 160° pounds, red hair, smooth face, and was dressed in a black and white striped suit.

Charles Marron, an old man who lives near Sharpsburg, was thrown from a horse on Butler street, and had his skull fractured. He is expected to die.

William Searight, a laborer in Oliver Bros. & Phillips' mill, was hit in the side with a bar yesterday. Several ribs were broken, and he was hurt so badly that he body while Mrs. Harrison was in Washington, is universally commented on and praised. Last night after the Presidental party left the dining room, the ladies, with the exception of Mrs. Harrison, spent the evening with Mrs. B. F. Jones, who gave a reception and card party in their honor. Al the cottagers were present at this and eight or ten ladies from the hotel. It was a very pretty affair.

THE PRIZE WINNERS. After a short informal reception tables were pulled up for cards. Mrs. McKee and Mrs. Russell Harrison were at the second table and Mrs. McKee got the first prize, Mrs. Harrison the second and Miss Margaret H. Darlington the second and Miss Margaret H. Darlington the third. At the first table the prizes were taken by Mrs. James A.

As soon as it was known definitely that Mrs Harrison would arrive on Friday the invitations, about 30 or so in number, were issued for to-day.

MRS. DABLINGTON'S TEA.

It was a 5 o'clock tes, and as the Darling-ton residence is just beside the Park Cottage, the ladies were able to run in quite easily. The parlor was festooned in flowers and wreaths of twining green things sent on from Pittsburg for the occasion. The Stahl Orchestra, which has been at the Mountain House all summer, played. The ladies that received with Mrs. Darlington were: Mrs. Alex Laughlin, Mrs. James A. Chambers, Mrs. W. G. McCandless, Mrs. Park Painter and Miss Margaret Darlington. Mrs. Laughlin presided over the teatable, and Mrs. J. O. Horne saw to the dispersion of the checklet. pensing of the chocolate. PRECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.; PHILADELPHIA, September 6.-The campaign of 1890 for the election of a Governor, Lieutenant Governor and Secretary of Internal Affairs gives promise of being one of the most memorable ever fought in the history of Pennsylvania politics. For months past the preparation of the detail work has been going on in the headquarters of the two great political parties, and the

THE ISSUE OF THE HOUR.

Both the great political parties have set forth their principles in the platforms adopted by the respective State conventions, but all issues have been made subservient to the single question: "Shall Quay rule or paign, being devoted to the tariff as affect not?" No one more than the junior Senator from this State recognizes the true situation of affairs. He realizes fully that the fight in the State is being made to break his power in the political world. His prominence in national affairs, and his known mastery of the Republican organization in this State bas drawn upon him the fire of all that army of disappointed seekers for places, and that class of Republicans who are always ready to protest against the violent personal con-trol of the nominating conventions by any man or set of men.

In addition to those already mentioned in opposition there is an apparent effort on the part of certain stalwart Republicans particularly in Allegheny, Philadelphia and Schuylkill counties, who, in their enmity to Quay, have been hard at work stirring up the fires of discord in the respective counties in order to strike at Quay whom they hold responsible for the appoint-ment of leading Federal officials who are inimical to their political welfare and who protest against his political methods. THE INDEPENDENTS OF 1882.

The old Independent Republicans are divided this year. Under the lead of Philip C. Garrett, ex Chairman of the committee of one hundred of this city, many of them are supporting Senator Delamater for the Governorship, while others of them, under the leadership of Wharton Barker, Henry C. Lea and Geo. E. Mapes, Chairman of the Independent Republican State Committee, are at work preparing an organization for practical work during the campaign and a formidable organization of new In-dependents will soon take the field.

Senator Quay has never been accused of not knowing the condition of any political contest in which he engages, and his coat is now off in an effort to win what will prove one of his greatest political victories, or, it lost will serve to forever weaken his present poltical prestige. His friends realize the importance of the battle and they are wheeling into line to render any needed assistance. The first move for position was made by Senator Quay when he introduced the reso lution into the United States Senate, calling for action on the McKinley tariff bill and postponing consideration of the election measure known as the force bill. Penn sylvania is the greatest manufacturing State in the Union and her manufacturers more interested in securing increased tariff taxes than in caring how the votes of the Southern negro are counted. IMPORTANT ASSISTANCE. The State leaders have assured Senator Quay that the passing of the McKinley bill will help the campaign on the Republican side and supply the needed funds, and he can be depended upon to leave nothing un-done to have the bill become a law at the earliest day possible. Thomas Dolan, the well-known manufacturer, who is stalwart in his Republicanism, was one of the first from this city with a party of other business men to visit Washington and impress upon Senator Quay the importance of the move made by him to shelve the election bill and

Since the State nominations were made he has had a corps of experienced clerks at Work at headquarters under the direction of the sphinx-like Morrison, of Allegheny county, whose years of experience in practical work fits him well for the duties of the position assigned him.

EVERY COUNTY WATCHED.

Reports from all sections of the State are daily received by Chairman Andrews, and the most simple letter addressed to him is carefully and quickly answered. Every one of the Republican county chairmen is taught that upon his shoulders rests the responsibility of defeat, and frequent visits are paid by them to the State Chairman. As a worker Chairman Andrews is untiring. He can be found at the Republican headquarters at almost any hour of the day or night. In fact, he sleeps in Room 2 of the Continental Hotel, which is one of the suite of rooms which comprises the Repub-lican headquarters. Robert E. Pattison was nominated for Governor by the Democratic State Conven tion at Scranton because the leaders of that party regarded him as the strongest candidate to be pitted against Senator Delamater, and also because it was thought that with the record of his previous administration as Governor he would be strong enough to draw from the Republican ranks a sufficient number of votes to insure his election With a candidate in whom they have every confidence the Democratic leaders under th direction of Chairman Kerr, who has established headquarters in this city, are preparing to unmask their batteries and the lead ing gun of the campaign will be fired at Reading at the State Convention of the Democratic societies, which has been called to meet on September 15.

A POWERFUL RESERVE will be held Tuesday evening, in the Frank-Chairman Kerr will have behind him in his efforts to elect the Democratic State ticket the entire strength of the Independent Republican State Committee, and the support of all the Quay Republicans throughout the State. He is in communication with the disaffected elements of the Republican party throughout the State, and reports as to the number of the Republican voters who will support Pattison are furnished him from the respective counties.

One thing has been determined upon, and that is that the Democrat organization will not do any mud-slinging during the campaign. The contemplated attacks upon Senator Quay and Candidate Delamater will be made by the dissatisfied Republicans, and the line of campaign on the Democratic side will be the perfection of their organization and the helding of their party vote.

party vote. Chairman Mapes, of the Independent Republican State Committee, is well known on account of his record as a legislator, he during his term of service in the lower house at Harrisburg having frequently upset schemes which were intended to assist in emptying the State Treasury.

CHAIRMAN MAPES SATISFIED. Mr. Mapes has made a tour of the counties in the northwestern part of the State, and reports himself thoroughly satisfied with the outlook. His headquarters, which have been established at 931 Chestnut street, will be kept open from now until the closing of the campaign. Efforts will be made to have the disaffected Republicans organized and their votes go direct to the Democratic candidate for Governor. Literature will be abundantly distributed, and every possible fort made to overthrow Quay.

He referred to the influence of the McKinley bill on business; also to the silver bill, saying the United States circulating medium was the best in the world, and he called upon Major Mc-Kinley to deliver the speech of the evening This was the latter's first Portland speech ing business prosperity. Speaker Reed stated today that he anticipated a majority of 1,500 in his district.

BIG BATTLE IN BERKS

Between the Warring Factions for the Control of the Republican Organization.

ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. READING, September 6 .- The Republican rimaries were held in this city and county to-night, and were the most hotly contested in the history of the party in Berks. The only offices at stake were a County Commissioner, Prison Inspector and County Audi-tor. The entire fight was against August M. High, who has so far dispensed all the patronage in Berks county as the representative of Senator Quay.

Colonel Reid is a candidate for delegate to the National League, and will probably be elected. He will advocate a more equitable method of representation.
As it is now, the Americus Ciub, with its 700 members, has two delegates while the Quay Club of Allegheny, with 32 members, has also two delegates. Another feature he will advocate is the inauguration of a system by which the clubs will be put to more prac-

ON A LIMITED PLAN

Reciprocity Will be Placed in the Tariff Bill by the Senate.

And Even This Slight Concession May be

Refused by the House. A CHANGE IN THE TIN PLATE SECTION.

Kennedy New Yows That He Will Print That Speech

in the Record. If reciprocity gets into the tariff bill at all it will be on a very narrow scope. Reed is still opposed to the scheme in any form, and may yet defeat it in the House. The Senate has adopted Spooner's amendment to the tin plate paragraph.

ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.1 WASHINGTON, September 6.—The tariff bill was practically finished to-day, with the exception of the sugar schedule, and its reciprocity accessory which are left to the last moment. It had been decided that debate should close to-day, but the Senatorial statesmen felt so sorry that the end of their oratory was reached they concluded they must have just one more day, and therefore Monday will be devoted to sugar and reciprocity in half-hour speeches, meeting at 10 o'clock and adjourning at 6, and thus affording opportunity for just 16 more good-sized speeches.

It is quite certain that the Aldrich reciprocity amendment, which is the amendment of the Finance Committee, will be adopted and that free sugar will be made contingent on reciprocity. It is not probable that any broader reciprocity scheme than this will receive the sanction of Congress at this time, and it is thought that in view of the silence of Speaker Reed in his campaign speeches on this subject even this timid approach to reciprocity may be crushed out in the House.

A TIN PLATE CHANGE.

During the debate to-day, Mr. Spooner offered the amendment proposed by him on the 20th of August to the tin paragraph. It provides for the admission of tin plates free of duty after the 1st of October, 1896, in case the American production of the article shall not equal, in any of the intervening years, one third of the amount imported and entered for consumption.

Mr. Plumb moved to amend the amendment by providing for a duty of 1 cent a pound on tin plates and for a bounty of 1 cent a pound for the home product, and Mr. Carlisle said that Mr. Spooner's amendment was a confession that there was no expectation of the manufacture of tin plates in the United States. Mr. Spooner denied the correctness of that assumption and argued in support of his amendment. Plumb's amendment was defeated, and the Spooner proposition, having been ac-cepted by Senator Aldrich, was adopted without much opposition. Mr. Aldrich, for the Finance Committee, offered an amendment imposing a duty of 4 cents a pound on tin. Agreed to without the year

Mr. Evarts offered the amendment pro-posed by him yesterday imposing a duty of 10 per cent advalorem on all teas, the growth or produce of the countries east of the Cape of Good Hope, when imported from places west of the Cape of Good Hope. ment as being a retaliatory measure, the only effect of which would be to add to the cost of tea. He had no excuse to offer for the course of Canada in imposing additional duties in tea and coffee imported from the United States, which course he regarded as perfectly ridiculous.

Mr. Spooner moved to amend Mr. Evarts' amendment by adding to it the following: 'There shall be levied and collected upon all coffee, green, from the Dominion of Car ada 10 per cent ad valorem, and upon all coffee, roasted or ground, from the Domin-ion of Canada 3 cents per pound and 10 per cent ad valorem." The question was taken on Mr. Spooner's amendment and it was rejected. Mr. Evarts' amendment, as modified, was agreed to.

KENNEDY WILL PRINT IT. The Latest Rumor Concerning Bla Attack

Upon Senator Quay.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.] WASHINGTON, September 6 .- Gossip runs to-day that "Bob" Kennedy has decided to print his speech, and not only to print it, but to print it word for word as he read it from his manuscript. If he prints it he will be even more conspicuous for some time thereafter than he has been for the last two or three days. Dalzell is lying in wait with his resolution to expunge the speech from the Record, Boatner, the Louisiana Democrat, is ready to fire off his expulsion resolution, two or three other members have resolutions of censure, and the Senate awaits publication that it may express its feelings in the matter. Kennedy professes to believe that all of these resolutions are mere buncombe, proposed because their authors know they cannot be considered, and that if he gives all of his critics the "grand bluff" by publishing the speech in the Record without a word or letter changed, those same critics will hunt their holes, and never be heard of more. It would be quite in accord with the character of the man if he should take this course. It is even said that he has decided to let it go in the issue of to-morrow morning, that a day may pass after publication, curiosity and indignation wear themselves tired, and a calmer and lazier judgment take hold of the affair Monday morning. The rumor has aroused a deal of expectation, as it is generally believed that very lively proceedings would follow the publication in

IMPORTANT TRADEMARK DECISION.

The Use of a Geographical Name Allowed by the Latest Ruling. FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.1

WASHINGTON, September 6 .- One of the most important trademark decisions ever rendered was given out at the Interior Department to-day. It was the petition of Mr. Thomas C. Jenkins, the flour merchant of Pittsburg, for registration of the word 'Vienna" as a brand for flour. Under all former decisions trademarks for geographical names were not granted, and the application was three times rejected. Mr. Jenkins, however, appealed the case last month to the Commissioner of Patents, before whom the case was argued by Colonel Thomas S. Hopkins, of this city, Mr. Jenkins' attorney, and to-day a decision was given overruling the decision of the examner and allowing registration. The case is one of considerable magnitude because of the large amount of capital invested in the brand of flour bearing the name "Vienna." To Prepay Interest on Bonds. WASHINGTON. September 6 .- The Secre-
