SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. PHILADELPHIA, September 16. - The PHILADELPHIA. September 16.—The Pittsburg cricketers played the strong team of Belmont to-day at Elmwood, and pulled off a most meritorious victory. Going first to the bat the side scored 156, mainly due to a long stand by Scott and Valentine. Before Belmont could take the bat play was suspended for nearly an hour by heavy rain, and when play was resumed Burrows bowled most effectively. Pacey and Arthur made a determined stand, and had Muir, who batted in fine form, found any one to stay with him, the Pittsburg total might have been passed, but Pittsburg total might have been passed, but the tail failed to score, and all were out for 127.

The Defeated Man Makes a Plucky Effort,

NEW ORLEANS, September 16 .- The long looked for battle between Jimmy Carroll and Andy Bowen took place here to-night before the Olympic Club for a purse of $3,000, of which $500 went to the loser. The contest was with five ounce gloves, to a finish, and was governed by Marquis of Queensberry rules. The records of both men are well known, Carroll's principal encounter being with Jack McAuliffe, who de-feated him. During last May Bowen defeated Myers, the Streater Cyclone, for a purse of $5,000. Both contestants were well trained for to-night's encounter.

to-night's encounter.

About 8,000 people paid $5 and $3 to witness the mill. Mr. John Duffy was chosen referee, and the timers were C. J. Cousins, Billy Crittenden and M. F. Fitzfadden. Bowen was attended by Arthur Upham and Jimmy Sweeny. Carroll was seconded by Robert Fitzsimmons and Doc O'Connell. Bowen weighed 130½ pounds and Carroll 125½. The ring was pitched on river sand with a 30-foot square inclosure, within which was marked off as neat a 24-footring as was ever seen. Mr. Alf Kennedy, with Billy Myer, were in attendance. THE BATTLE BEGINS.

A St. Andrew's icross was formed at 9 o'clock and a good handshaking marked the evening's performance at fisticuffs. Bowen crossed over to Carroll to bet $500, which was promptly accepted, but the club refused to allow the bet, and the matter ended. Captain Barrett, of the police, insisted on five-ounce gloves. Hands were shaken at 9:27, and time called at 9:29, Carroll was crowding Bowen and then drew him out. Carroll feinted and Bowen backed; Bowen landed a light left on Carroll's shoulder and followed it with a right on the jaw. Car-

Bowen landed a light left on Carroll's shoulder and followed it with a right on the jaw. Carroll tried with his right and failed. Bowen was cool and seemed to be at least even with the Londoner and Franciscan.

Round 2-Sparring for wind seemed to occupy the men's time. A quick exchange followed, and a fight of right and left-handers iollowed and honors seemed even. Carroll hit Bowen and nearly knocked him down. Bowen hit Carroll and repeated the performance with his left hand on Carroll's jaw. Time, and it was Bowen's round without a doubt.

Round 3-Carroll forced Bowen and hit him in the neck. Bowen came back and rapped Carroll with right and left, and Bowen seemed to be getting on top. Carroll hit Bowen a right smash in the eye and got away. The men now boxed each other, and Carroll led and landed another hit on Bowen's face. Bowen led and hit Carroll on the chin with his right hand. This was Carroll's round.

Round 4-Carroll fainted and hit Bowen some roll's round.

Round 4—Carroll fainted and hit Bowen some hard cracks on the neck. Carroll landed an awnul blow on Bowen's law and got the same a moment later himself. Bowen smashed Carroll's quare on the nose and missed another beauty at Carroll's neck. This was Carroll's round, though by a small majority.

A TERRIBLE UPPER CUT.
Round 5-Bowen nearly fell over Carroll in trying to land right swing; Carroll landed a terrible upper cut on Bowen's neck and sent him recting across the ring. Carroll got a smash on the stomach, and Bowen had Carroll nearly dazed with stomach punches, but both men were groggy when time was called. Carroll had all the best of this round.

Battle Near Buffalo. BUFFALO, N. Y., September 16 .- The glove fight between Tommy Warren, of Cleveland, and John Van Heest, of Bradford, for $506 a side, came off early this morning in the vicinity of the State line, just over on the New York side. It resulted in a draw, after 11 rounds had been fought, though the fight was won by Van Heest. Charges were made that the affair was "fixed" for Warren to lose, in order that money could be placed against him by his riends. The betting was not as lively as was expected and to save the stake money it is claimed, the affair was called a draw. Both claimed, the affair was called a draw. Both statements are discredited by many.

The fight was a game and a hot one up to the time it was called. Warren weighed about 119 pounds and Van Heest 122.

In the eleventh round the men clinched and fell. Warren hung to Van's neck, the latter trying to get away, but was unable to rise, When time for the next round was called, Warren with his seconds claimed a foul. A discremental than the seconds claimed a foul.

The latter is a poor widow, and said that she paid all her little savings into the coffers of Shanley.

When Shanley began operations he worked under the name of the Highland Manufacturing Company. However, when he delivered the "warranty deed bond" to the purchaser upon the first payment being made the name of "The Fiel De Grandmont Manufacturing Company" was used. This bond guaranteed that a clear deed would be given upon the last payment being made. Mr. Schneider said that upon Shanley's last visit to Pittsburg he made an offer to give him 20 per cent or all money collected in Pittsburg and vicinity if he would act as agent for the company here. This munificent offer was refused.

One of Shauley's booming schemes was that there were glass houses being built in Lancaster, and in a letter last January he stated that two were in course of construction and would soon be finished. people's constitution, the over riding law of the land, be treated with greater judicual tolerance?

But, fortunately, for this discussion, the debates in the Constitutional Convention leave us in no doubt as to what was the intention of the clear-headed and high-minded men who framed this provision of that fundamental law. Their own expressions confirm the unmistakable language of this section. The provision forbidding members of the Legislature from having in their control, and for their use and profit, the moneys of the State Treasury, was not inserted without deliberation and discussion. It was not the unconsidered repetition of an existing form. It was a new provision, and in the original draft its language was materially different from that which was finally adopted. As originally reported, it read: "The General Assembly shall constitute the offenses of making profit out of the public moneys or using the same for political purposes by any officer of the State, or member or officer of the General Assembly, or any candidate for election or appointment, a misdemeanor," etc. But, as though unwilling to commit this protection of the Legislature, the section was subsequently changed. Instead of leaving it to the General Assembly to "constitute" the offense a misdemeanor, by the unanimous declaration of the Convention it proceeded to directly declare in the Constitution "It shall be a misdemeanor," beyond the power of the Legislature to make it otherwise by neglect of its duty, by slighting or by transcending it.

The Intention of the Clause.

Furthermore, in the discussion which ensued over this clause, it was plainly avowed that its tention was to prohibit and prevent member of the Legislature from getting control and custody of the State moneys. No less eminent and sagacious a lawyer than Mr. MacVeagh, and sagacious a lawyer than Mr. Macveagh, late Attorney General of the United States, pointed out, by way of objection to the sweeping provisions of the proposed law, that even stockholders in a national bank competing for the custody of State funds would be prohibited from becoming candidates for the State Legislature from becoming candidates for the State Legislature.

Nevertheless, without a division, by a body made up in large part of many of the most eminent members of the legal profession, this provision was agreed to as now written in the supreme law, and the construction that is now put upon it was virtually approved. If it means anything it means that no Senator nor member of the House shall have control, custody or use of the State moneys; if he does he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and is to be disqualized from holding office for five years. That is the offense prescribed and the punishment. The proofs are to be found on the public records of the State open to all its citizens. The Treasurer's book shows that Delamater's bank had the use and profit of this money. He got it while he was a member of the General Assembly. I pause for his explanation or denial. I challenge his reply. If Senator Delamater is not the "bead" of the banking house of Delamater & Co., as his authorized biography declares, if he did not solicit, get and have this denosit of from Co., as his authorized biography declares, if he did not solicit, get and have this deposit of from $30,000 to $75,000 while he was State Senator, or, if getting it, he buried it in a napkin and did not use and make profit out of it, let him speak out.

BLACK'S SOCIETIES HAVE A LIVELY AND ENTHUSIASTIC CON-VENTION.

County Statesman-Officers Elected for the Ensuing Year-The Next Meeting to be Held in Pittaburg. | FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT. 1 READING, September 16 .- The convention of the societies itself was of the vociferous Democratic type. At times the Chairman could not make his voice heard demanding order and the division of representation resolution created a furor, the like of which was probably never before seen in a public meeting in this city. The Democratic idea of popular representation in a body of this kind is good in one sense. but a convention of such great size is a very hard thing to handle. An organization was effected at 1 o'clock and commtitees appointed. President

Chauncey F. Black, of the Pennsylvania societies, stirred the delegates with warm colored Democratic doctrine, and his refer-ence to the political conditions in the State was of the most eloquent, as follows:

If the Democratic societies have increased more rapidly here than elsewhere since 1888 it is because they are more needed, because our wrongs are greater and our shame more bitter. They are—this enrollment of the freemen holding to the faith of Jefferson, in every neighborhood—the natural

It is simply combination on the other side, combination of the people for self-preservation. But if the people of the country at large have urgent occasion to combine for detense against the usurpation of government, and the rapacity of the few in the enjoinment of monopolies, those of Pennsylvania have greater.

of monopolies, those of Pennsylvania have greater.

Our State Government has been quite as cruelly perverted as the other. It has been manared with little or no regard to the Constitution, and still less to the public rights and interests. With long-continued and universal complaint none are redressed. While farm lands depreciate at an appailing rate, and agriculture is less able than ever to bear excessive burdens, the gross inequalities of taxation remain the same, and are made worse by unfriendly administration. While the fundamental law guarantees equal rights upon all the highways of the State, the explicit provision remains a dead letter, though its enforcement was solemnly promised by the monopoly party in the campaign of 1886, just as other vital reforms are promised to-day. The appeals of honest labor for common justice have been treated with equal contempt, and all reforms lie buried together in the files of a boss-ridden Legislature.

While waiting for the reports of committees, Pattison was loudly called for, and responded with a short address, in which he indicated the issues of the campaign and referred to the hopeful revolt against boss rule. The Committee on Permanent Organization of the convention reported the fol-lowing names: President, Charles P. Don-nelly, of Philadelphia; Vice Presidents, John F. Swartz, Lehigh; W. F. Shephard, Schuylkill; Silas Kline, Westmoreland; B. McKenna, Allegheny; D. O. Barr, Allegheny; Herman Handel, Allegheny; Colonel J. B. Streeter, Washington, and others. Marshall Wright, of Allentown, Chairman, Other members of the committee were John D. Larkin, of Pittsburg, and Hon. S. D. Wherry, of Cumberland. The report adopt-

Cassidy; recommended that the indus-tries of the State should admit to apprenticeship our young men regardless of race or color, and declared that the societies, being only auxiliary to the State Central Commit tee, it was not in their jurisdiction to pro-vide for division of representation. At this point George Herbert, of Phila-delphia, moved to amend by inserting in place of this last resolution one reaffirming the resolution of last year which recom-mended the division of representation. Then the fun began. The whole convention was on its feet and in an uproar. Mr. Foley seconded the motion, and Tim O'Leary added a neat speech to the effect that Pittsburg would make them welcome. Some resolutions of the place of the pla tions of thanks followed. Hon. Morrison Foster, of Allegheny, moved a vote of thanks for the elegant portrait of Pattison presented to the conven-tion, and then W. J. Brennan, of Pittsburg, moved the convention to adjourn sine die. The original intention had been to continue intil to-morrow, when the picnic comes off, but the tumultuous character of the unwieldly assemblage probably hurried the adjournment.

Showers fell at intervals yesterday in the Middle Atlantic and New England States and Leading Jobbers in Tobacco, in the lake regions, and heavy showers in the early morning in Minnesota and Wisconsin. Elsewhere over the country the weather was fair. The storm center was over the lower lakes, moving northeast into Canada. It is the last of a succession of depressions that have traversed the same course the past week, causing the unusually long spell of wet weather. Following this storm is an area of high pressure, with cooler, clear weather that is traveling southward from the Dakotas and should envelop this section with a day or two of bright sunshine and a bracing air. The temperature in Minnesota and the Dakotas just touched the freezing point to-day, light frosts occurring in the Upper Mississippi and Missouri Valleys. A dense fog hung over the coast, with light winds gen erally blowing on shore.
