NEW RULES NEEDED

If the Minority is to be Kept From Blocking Legislation.

SOUTHERNERS NOW IN THE SADDLE

They Have Found the Way to Defeat Even Reed's Regulations.

THE RECORD SHOULD BE AN EXACT ONE

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, September 20.—The conviction seems to be inbred in the Southern mind that the Southern Democrat must rule wherever he may be. He has never for a moment believed in the rule of the majority unless he was of the majority. This has never been more clearly evident than during the recent session of Congress. On every question involving political principle the Democrats, led by the Southern wing, have attempted to obstruct. They have defied the officers of the House, kicked down doors, shown an utter contempt for dignity and discipline, and offered personal insults to the Speaker almost every day. If the Republicans have been coarse and vulgar, the Democrats have been riotous and brutal.

They have this as their excuse—that their offenses have been based on political antagonism. They have been guilty of neither offense nor brutality on account of a mere love of bandying epithets, as some of the Republicans have sometimes seemed to be. For political advantage alone they resort to riotous and revolutionary proceedings, even to the smashing of doors to prevent the presence of a quorum necessary for the transaction of business. This defiance of majority rule is a vital peculiarity. It is impossible to make a Southern Democrat understand that the country is full of intelligent people who read the daily newspapers and who will hold the majority responsible for their conduct. The Southern Democrat believes in nothing so much as that he, though in the minority, will be made to bear the burden of responsibility for every law that is enacted by Congress, and so, not content with uttering this protest as eloquently as he may, he feels that he must resist, even to the point of fighting and destroying the buildings and furniture of the Government, to prevent the passage of bills which are, according to his omniscience, not politically right. This would be amusing if it were not so serious.

Read Must Revise His Rules.

It is plain that the rules must be further revised before a sensible and dignified management of the House of Representatives is possible. It must be put out of the power of the minority to destroy a quorum. In short it must be made imperative that every member shall be present and vote on every question unless he is formally excused. laxity in the conduct of members in this respect has been growing year after year until it has reached the condition of an abuse that constantly delays legislation, and when to this is added the obstructive tactics of an unruly minority, of either party, to call the House of Representatives a parliamentary body is an unpardonable violation of the meaning of the word. Until this is done the scenes of this session will be repeated year after year with ever increasing disorder.
