LEXINGTON'S BIG TROTTING RACE.

Foley's Boston Letter and Other Sporting News of General Interest.

To-morrow the football season opens at Harvard, four days before the University. All the principal men, or those who now are regarded principal men, will be back and work begin. try for the 'varsity football team have been taking light exercise, such as running, wrestling and sparring, so that when they return to Cambridge they will be better able to stand the rough-and-tumble practice on the field. A great many good men have been hurt at the beginning of a season by going into the roughes scrimmages without having had sufficient train ing. Captain Cumnock is determined, however, this year to have his men in good condition to stand whatever work he may put them at, and for this reason he has had them practice so long beforehand.

The above facts will have a local interest because of the boom the sport is likely have here, cause of the boom the sport is likely have here, and in speaking of the coming season Captain Cumnock says: "It is wrong for players to have too much confidence in any one man, for if that man goes to pieces then the whole team is sure to go to pieces. For that reason it is best to take on new material and make every man do his full share. This has been the fault of Harvard in past years to a great extent. She has relied on a foe star players like Sears, Holden, and Porter, and only within the past year has it been the policy of the team to make every man depend on another to the same extent." The Harvards mean to leave no stone unturned this season to come out victorious. The Yale game will come probably the Saturday before Thanksgiving, and will be played in Springfield. Yate will have a good team. She always does. They might say that she was weak in safe kicking on account of the loss of her full back, McBride, and then have practiced all summer some other man for that position. They know more down there than they tell, The Harvard boys feel sure that they are going to have a team this year that can beat a going to have a team this year that can beat a team equally as good as last year's Yale team. The Princeton team will not be so strong this year as last. Captain Cummock thinks it will not be possible to get a game between Harvard not be possible to get a game between Harvard and Princeton.

At Princeton the real work began on Thursday. Captain Poe expresses some doubts regarding his ability to make a team that will hold the rootball championship for 1890. On this year's team there will be but four of last year's champions. These will be Captain Poe, Jerry Black, Jesse Riggs and Warren. Ames will not return to college, while Cowan has completed his time as a footballist. Captain Poe summoned all aspirants to football fame to appear on the grounds Thursday. Over 30 responded, and an hour's hard practice was indulged in. Captain Poe will do his utmost to make a winning team out of the raw material at his disposal. He was loudly cheered as he appeared on the field, and the students will do their atmost to support him in his efforts to ost to support him in his efforts to hampiouship honors.

The local clubs are rapidly getting into condition to begin practice. Next week will probably find many "kickers" hard at work in some of the local ball grounds. The members of the new Athletic Club are extremely enthusiastic about the sport, and their efforts to make it a "go" here this season are being energetically backed up by Manager Hanlen and Secretary Tener, of the local Player's League ball club. The Athletic Club has determined at its own cost to build a track at Exposition Park and also make it thoroughly suitable for football matches.

With the races at Cynthiana, at Richmond and at Lexington the horses have eat no idle oats, and while no large amount of noney has been won, still the sport has proved first class. At Cynthiana, the owners of the three-year-olds did not have the courage to start their colts and fillies against the speedy Dr. Sparks, and he had a walk-over for the three-year-old stakes. He made the circuit, however, in the excellent time of 2:21%. The races at Lexington were under the auspices of the Colored Fair Association, Trotting Horse Breeders' Association. While no phenomenal work has been done here some very good contests were witnessed. eyes are now turning to the 18th of next month when the Kentucky Trot-

General Baseball Affairs. CORRESPONDENCE OF THE DISPATCE. Boston, September 20 .- Just at present the stockholders of losing baseball concerns are ert H.Lindsay, "Our Bob," of Pittsburg, Secabout the unhappiest men-on earth. For two ...0 3 0 0 0 1 5 3 *-12 weeks the rain has been keeping them g ing and she still pours. I guess the Boston Triumvirs came out better than any other bankers during the wet weather season. and the cames drew over $,000 people. They had luck enough to get in a Saturday game which drew out 4,020 admissions and the first game was attended by over 2,500 people. The Boston Leaguers have made no gain on Brooklyn: in fact both teams have been standing still while Anson's men have climbed to the front with a terrific rush. Long has been suffering from slow fever, which has been a big drawback to the Bostons, as the spry young German is full of life and a great leader. Long is also the best base-runner and run-getter on the team. Ganzel and Bennett have also been laid up for repairs, and Hardie is doing all the catching just at present.

Long wants to play in the West during the Bostons next trip, but it is doubtful if he plays again this season. The Bostons open up in Pittsburg and Cleveland before tackling Chicago and Cincinnati, and it is not likely that Long will be called upon to play before the club strikes Chicago, where "Old Hoss" Anson is waiting for sweet revenge. Anson has been having a regular feast on the other Western teams, but he is liable to get badly fooled if he is looking for a snap on the strong Eastern teams.

Old Dame Rumor has King Kelly hobnobbing with Al Johnson, of Cleveland, and don't be a bit surprised to hear that Kelly will play with the Cleveland berotherhood team next season, Kelly and Johnson are great friends, and the former would sacrifice a good deal to pull Johnson out of the hole. Johnson has sunk a small fortune in Cleveland this season, but a good strong team, with a non-conflicting schedule, would make Johnson a winner next season, and he knows it. Cleveland was supposed to be a great League town, but if Johnson gets a winning team he will best the opposition to a dead certainty. I fail to see any bright League prospects for Cleveland in the near future, and another such loser as they have had this year will make the backers quit or sell out their franchise to some other city. Kelly would strengthen Johnson's team, but as a baseball leader he will never be a succe of work. The team is the best in the country, and nearly every man on the team is sober and reliable; consequently, Kelly has no hard work in managing the team, for it has run itself. Kelly has had trouble with Kilroy, Madden and a few more men, and at one time during the season Charlie Radbourne elevated his back for some imaginary offense, and he was lost to the world for over a week just when the club needed his services. Brouthers has laid off several games, and there was no reason assigned for his absence. CHARLES J. FOLEY. THAT CINCINNATI DEAL

Psesident Stern Says He Wants $65,000 for His Ball Clab.

Although it has been denied that the Cincin-nati Baseball Club has been sold to the Players' League, many people are still of the opinion that the deal has been made, or that an underthat the deal has been come to almost equal to its completion. The matter is certainly shrouded in mystery. The following dispatch from St. Louis, however, gives President Stern's flat denial concerning the question. It says:

St. Louis, September 20.—To a reporter who called on him to-day Mr. A. S. Stera. President of the Cincinnati League club, stated positively that as long as he was connected with the Cincinnati club it would remain a member of the National League. "I'll sell," said the gentleman, "but they will have to come to my terms If they will pay me $55,000 for the club they can do with it what they please, but as to joining the Brotherhood that is entirely out of the question. I am on record as being with the National League and I mean to keep my word. We have signed Tom Loftus to manage the club next season, and are, now negotiating with a couple of young bloods' to play with the team next year."

The foregoing is in accordance with what was published in yesterday's DISPATCH, But rumor has added a little. It is now stated that the Brooklyn N. L. club is to go over to the Players' League. standing has been come to almost equal to it-

A LOST OPPORTUNITY. ONE OF ENGLAND'S GOLDEN CHANCES GONE GLIMMERING.

African Territories That Might Have Easily Bren Marie Part ot the British Possessions-Resources of the Dark Conti-

WASHINGTON, September 21 .- Englishmen by the score have visited Washington this summer, but few of them have came from as far away corner of the world as Mr. Arthur S. Butcher, whose home is in Natal, on the southern coast of Africa, where he is a prosperous merchant. He was seen at the Shoreham, and was willing to talk about his section of the "Dark Continent." "Until the other day," he said, "the map of Africa represented a coast line indicated with fair detail and accuracy, but as a rule the vast interior beyond the littoral regions was but little more than an indeterminate blank, with the courses of rivers and lakes vaguely outlined, and with nothing to show proprietorship. Twenty years ago this vast portion of the earth's surface was presumptively shared by England and P gal. They were the only powers that had settled on the seaboard. France put in an settled on the seaboard. France put in an appearance north of the Congo, and the rights of the Sultan of Zanzibar were supposed to extend a long ways inland; but these two powers could at that time easily have portioned the whole country. England lost her opportunity. The territories that are now assigned to Germany, the Congo Free State, and Italy might easily have become a part of the British Empire. English statesmen, however, failed to realize the value of Africa as a possession. The Dark Continent was still a land of fable and mystery, and the directors of imperial destiny did not per-ceive the possibilities of the future.

"Yet, though the opportunity of vast expansion of British rule in Africa was lost, the actual results were better than we had any right to hope for. We have large possessions in South, Central and East Africa. While Germany holds the southern shore of Victoria Nyanza, England holds all the northern shore of that inland sea including the kingdom of that inland sea including the kingdom of that inland sea, including the kingdom of Uganda, and all the country which em-braces the birthplace of the Nile, giving her command of the entire regions that intérvene between the central lakes and Egypt. England, therefore, has in effect secured uninterrupted communication from Cape Town to Alexandria. She could establish tomorrow through regions dominated by her flag a trade route from the South Atlantic to the Mediterranean.

"Natal, my home, or Durban, as it is also called, is a fine seaport city of 25,000 people, about 13,000 of whom are whites. It does an immense trade with the Transvaal and the Orange Free State in wool and hides, and is soon to become a coaling station, the only one in that part of the world. For six months of this year the combined import and export trade of Natal was £3,352,352, or over $16,000,000 in American money."

CRESSON SPRINGS, September 21 .- The President telt somewhat fatigued to-day after his lively experience in the coal regions of Central Pennsylvania yesterday, and was compelled to decline a pressing invitation to attend divine service in the Presbyterian Church at Ebensburg, a village about eight miles from Cresson, greatly to the disappointment of hundreds of people from the surrounding country, who had assembled there in anticipation of his coming. He took a walk with Mrs. Dimmick in the forenoon and a drive with Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. McKee in the afternoon. The day was spent very quietly and there were not over a dozen persons about the place. Mr. J. R. McKee, of Indianapolis, the President's son-in-law, is a guest at Executive Cottage. He and Mrs. McKee and the children will leave here Tues-McKee and the children will leave here Tuesday night for Indianapolis. The population of Cresson then will be nine persons all told, viz.: The President, Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Dimmick, Private Secretary Halford, Mrs. Sanger, Mr. F. N. Barksdale, representing the Pennsylvania Railroad, the representatives of the two press associations, and a telegraph operator.

The closing of the Mountain House has necessitated a change in the location of the executive office, and cottage "B," on Pittsburg avenue, just south of the hotel, has been selected for that purpose, and has been fitted up for the temporary accommodation of Mr. Halford, Mr. Barksdale and the representatives of the press associations. It is practically settled that the President and family will remain here until Thursday morning if the present good weather, however, the party will return to Washington Wednesday.

AROUSED TO ACTION.

Continued from First Page. this thing together. Already the monopoly is the only transporter. It requires 80 per cent of the crude produced in these fields and produces probably 40 per cent. It makes no difference to the inside producer what the price of crude is. The inside producing companies are pooled with transportation and refining in one big trust. If they lose millions on cheap production they get their "divide" of the profit on refined sold at the same old price. It would be just the same to them if crude sold at 10 cents a barrel if refined was maintained at 7 cents a barrel if refined was maintained at 7 cents a gallon.

It would make a very great difference, however, to the outside producer and the land owner whose royalty would be little more than 1 cent a barrel instead of over 10 cents as at present. In other words, the customory one-eighth part of the product given to the land owner would not pay for plowing up the wheel tracks of the monopoly teamster's wagon. THE ULTIMATE OBJECT.

Of course such a disparity between crude and refined would be fat living for the outside refiner while it lasted, but it would only last until the outside producers had been forced to sell their wells and territory. At that point the outside refiner would disappear. After that the consumer would be in line to suffer from high prices for refined oil. These are pretty strong assumptions oil. These are pretty strong assumptions for the hopeful producers, but they may be found any day in knots of three or four discussing the situation in this vein, some even making stronger deductions than those

They are talking again about the Billings-ley bill, which had been well-nigh forgotten during the era of high prices and good premiums following the last effort of the monopoly to be conciliatory while it got its hooks in deeper. in deeper. They aver that they never be ore felt how much they had lost in the failure of that bill, not even at the very time of its slaughter. OPINIONS OF OIL PRODUCERS AT A BIG MEETING.

Relief Expected in the Establishment of an Independent Company-A Scheme to Run a Pipe Line to Pittsburg-$100,000 Needed.

BUTLER, September 21 .- The deep interest which oil producers are manifesting in the movement to better the unsatisfactory condition of their trade, was well illustrated at the big meeting held in the Vogely Hotel to-night. An organization was effected by electing C. G. Christie, of the firm of Christie Brothers, who have large tnterests in the Hundred-foot field, Chairman, and J. M. Carson, Secretary. Captain W. A. Clark said:

"We need an independent opposition pipe line. It does not need to be a large one in the beginning. The Standard began business in 1872 with a capital of $100,000, and now has $30.000,000. We are abundantly able to build such a line as will give us immediate and permanent relief. The producers of this county alone can build their own pipe lines to some point on the Ohio river near Pittsburg, where they can refine their oil and ship it to the markets of the world. We have in the Ohio river an outlet which no power on earth can close against us, for if it becomes necessary we can build barges and float our oil to the can build barges and float our oil to the principal cities of export. In organizing to build a pipe line it is of the first importance to make the stock not transferable, and that no one be permitted to hold a large number of shares. The producer, the driller, the tool dresser, the pumper, the rig builder, the teamster and every other man directly or indirectly interested in the oil producing business, should be represented in this proposed new enterprise. One hundred thousand dollars is all that will be required, and it can be is all that will be required, and it can be had for the asking."

Clarence Walker suggested that if they desired to prevent the trans er of stock in the proposed new company, their best plan would be to organize under the limited partnership act. Mr. Christie thought the pipe line scheme entirely feasible, and that the terminus should be at or near Pittsburg.

On motion, the Chair was authorized to appoint a committee of five whose duty it would be to fix a time and make arrangewould be to fix a time and make arrange-ments for a general meeting of the produ-cers of the county. The committee selected consists of Messrs. William A. Clark, Charles Haslett, C. D. Greenlee, Thomas Alexander, and Fred Leidecker. If ar-rangements can be completed in time the general meeting will be held not later than Friday evening next.

ANOTHER APPEAL TO THE COURTS.

Friends of the Enterprise Promise to Operate the Canal April 1.

PROTESTS OF THE OPPOSING COUNSEL

IPROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT, 1 WASHINGTON, September 21 .- The petition of the surviving bondholders of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, filed the other day in the courts of this city, praying they be allowed to pay the bonds and repair and manage the canal themselves, is now supplemented by other interesting proceedings efore Judge Alvey, at Hagerstown, the Judge who recently rendered a decision in favor of the sale of the canal.

Messrs. Bernard Carter, William P. White, John P. Poe, S. Teackle Wallis, General Bradley T. Johnson and John K. Cowen, counsel for the several interests involved in the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal case, appeared before Judge Alvey yesterday, the object being the appointment of trustees to take charge of the sale of the canal, but owing to the petition above referred to, H. L. Bond, Jr., read an answer filed by the trustees of the bondholders of 1878, accepting the proposition set forth in the petition of the 1844 bondholders.

"They are willing and ready," said Mr. Bond, "to receive from the bondholders of 1844 the money proposed by them, for which they would turn over the bonds secured by said moneys."

THE STATE TO FORECLOSE.

General Bradley Johnson, representing the bondholders of 1844, asked that since the trustees of the bondholders of 1878 had acceded to the proposition made by him, that the State should foreclose its mortgage. Referring to objections which had been raised by opposing counsel to the 1844 people having unlimited control of the work, he said:
"From 1868 until 1875, the only time we,
the '44 people, ever had control, we made $1,000,000 as revenues in the seven years."
He also outlined the method of running the canal, which would be pursued when the work was turned over to them.

Ex-Governor William P. White, for the State of Maryland, wanted to know if the State's interest, representing $20,000,000, was to be abandoned, as the petition made no mention of reimbursing anybody but themselves. Mr. Bernard Carter, representing the mi-nority bondholders of 1878, denied the right of the trustees of the bondholders of 1878 to assent to any proposition disposing of their claims without unanimous consent of all of the 1878 bondholders. He furthermore demanded a filing by this court of a decree of

A LIBEL ON JUSTICE. John K. Cowen, counsel for the trustees of the bondholders of 1878, said it was a libel on justice to say that the canal is impracticable as a waterway because of a fail-ure of business when that failure of business was brought about by gross misman-agement on the part of the canal company. Put some one in charge who is capable of running a canal, and then the returns can be taken as an estimate of the business done.

Mr. S. Teackle Wallis arraigned the State for not acceding to the proposition of the 1844 bondholders, and declared its conduct "nothing short of scandalous." Mr. Wallis created much amusement by his witty Mr. White then read an answer to the petition of the 1844 bondholders, stating grounds of objection on the part of the State. Here General Johnson, to "relieve the apprehensions of the gentleman on the the Atlantic States. It was warmer in the Gulf other side," stated that the Baltimore and and South Atlantic States and cooler in the Ohio Railroad had nothing to do with the lake regions, the Middle Atlantic States, and netition presented by him but his backer was Mr. Joseph Bryan, of Richmond, Va., a man engaged in numerous big railroad enterprises, and he (Mr. Bryan) would furnish the money to run the canal. READY NEXT APRIL.

Judge Alvey asked General Johnson when the canal would be in running order. General Johnson replied with emphasis that it would be in operation by the first day of White read a decree of sale formulated by him for the examination of the Court. He also read a letter from the Board of Public Works of Maryland, requesting, in the event of a decree of sale being passed, that Judge Alvey would appoint the receivers of this court as trustees. Mr. Cowen also filed a decree of sale to be used by the Court if he passed for a sale. A de-

Chicago Directors Present the Dual Location-It is Not Entirely Satisfactory-One Bordering on the Lake Preferred

-Lndy Managers Selected. CHICAGO, September 21 .- The site question was reported on by the committee at Saturday's session of the World's Fair Commission. The dual site was recommended. It was stated that the title to Jackson Park and Midway Plaisance was perfect; that the title to Lake Front Park was sufficiently clear for Fair purposes; that the local directory had reached an agreement with the Illinois Central Railroad Company; that the company would depress its tracks, and that it had agreed to charge only 5 cents fare between the Lake Front and Jackson

Park.
The committee estimated that there were transportation facilities for 130,000 people per hour each way, and that this limit was capable of increase. Various propositions and amendments were presented and discussed at length, necessitating a continuance of the session until 3 o'clock P. M., when the following resolution of Mr. Martindale was adopted by a vote of yeas, 77; nays, 8: was adopted by a vote of yeas, 77; nays, 8:

Resolved, That in the opinion of this commission one single site for the Exposition is especially desirable, and a part of such site should border upon the lake. That the directors may procure and present to the commission the most desirable site by adopting Washington Park, the Midway Plaisance and Jackson Park lying south of the north line of the Midway Plaisance extended through to the lake, to gether with the Washington Park Club for a live stock and speed exhibit. That, while we do not at this time reconsider our action accepting Jackson Park and the lake front, we respectfully, but earnestly, request the directors to procure and present to this Commission the single site above outlined. That the special committee yesterday;appointed, to whom was referred the communication in reference to site from the directors is, hereby authorized and directed to confer with said directors and report to this commission whether such single site cannot be procured and presented to this commission.

PINE FORESTS RAVAGED.

Great Damage to the Frees in Louisians by the Sawyer Worm. ISPECIAL TELEGRAN TO THE DISPATCH.

NEW ORLEANS, September 21 .- The pine forests in Louisiana are being ravaged and destroyed by the hundreds of acres by the sawyer worm or borer. The sawyer is a small white worm with steel-like maddibles which usually infests pine logs which lie rotting on the ground and bores holes through them, making a noise like a small bnzz saw in operation. It has been known for years, but has always hitherto confined its operations to rotten timber, and never before attacked standing and healthy trees. It seems, however, to have changed its haunts of late, for the buzzing noise of the sawyer can now be heard among the standing pine, and trees vigorous and apparently healthy are dying by the thousands from its attacks. The evil exists throughout the pine dis-tricts of the State, but is worse in the western portion, between the Red and Sabine rivers. Here lies the largest body of virgin pine in the south. The land on which it stands was until lately the property of the United States, but was bought up some five years ago by speculators at $1 25 an acre, Jay Gould being one of the heaviest purchasers, taking 250,000 acres. The orests will average from 10,000 to 12,000 feet of pine timber per acre, and are very valuable unless the pine is injured by the
