Kanawha Rivals

The river coal shippers of this city are contemplating the formation of a combination in the near future to freeze the Kanawha river operators out of the Cincinnati and Louisville markets. Matters have reached such a crisis that some method will have to be adopted to insure them some return for the large capital invested in the business.

Each successive year home operators feel the effects of outside competition, and where twice the number of the present firms were encaged in the business five their friend hailed most of them out years ago the trade has dwindled down to such an extreme that only the wealthy operators survive to compete for iractional profits.

In recent years, new coal territory, more available to the Southern market than Pittsburg, has been developed by outside Penn avenue. Both the women and four capital, and what was at first considered by Pittsburg operators to Le a short-lived enterprise has turned out to be a formidable competitor that has made great inroads on the profits of Monongahela Valley coal shippers, until it appears that coal territory in other sections will completely wipe out the business here eventually, if concentrated action is not taken by Pittsburg operators to nip this threatening danger in the bud.

The latest competitors that Pittsburg operators have to contend with, in the Cincinnati and Louisville markets, are the firms that have placed the Kanawha river product on the lower markets, at prices far below those asked for Pittsburg coal.

SLILL IN DEMAND.

While it is universally conceced that the Kanawha region coal is a very inferior article, yet it fairly meets the requirements. and consequently there is a large demand for it. The region as yet, has not been fully developed, and there is no telling how the field will turn out.

The shippers of this city are now realizing what they have to contend with, and as they labor under great disadvantages in shipping coal from Monongahela river mines, the formation of a combination of Pittsburg coal firms in the immediate future is very proba-

One of the most extensive operators in the city talked about the matter yesterday. He said: "We have every reason to combine in our business, and if the coal operators do not do it, I predict that within three years our business will be ruined. We are not in a position, with such excessive taxation, to mine our coal profitably, to stand any chance against the Kanawha river shippers, who are at present sending a great quantity of coal in to the Southern market, which is not to be compared with our product, but it burns, and the region is not fully developed yet. In my opinion a much better grade of coal will be found there ere long.

The first of the two cases mentioned was that of a well-known woman on Mt. Oliver, who had engaged with a city quack who advertises in glaring, black-faced type, at the rate of $75 for six months' treatment. Her ailment consisted of a sore in one of her ankles. After the quack had proven his lack of either knowledge or skill the woman went to Dr. O'Connor, of Knoxville, but not until it was too late. Colloid cancer had set in and amputation became necessary and Dr. O'Connor performed the operation. ALSO LOST A LIMB. The other case also resulted in the loss of limb. A young man named Davis had been treated for six weeks for cancer of the heel, and, as is claimed by one of the physicians who subsequently attended him, "through the cruel and criminal handling the cancer grew into a large cauliflower mass. The young man was removed to the Southside Hospital, where it was necessary to amputate the whole leg in order to save his life." A third incident that is probably as amusing as it is held to be outrageous, is the case of a well-known Southsider, who was told it would take six weeks to cure him. After he had been under the quack's care for nearly half that time, without any apparent improvement, he called upon a reputable physician, got a single prescription filled, and was a well man in two days.

night. Detective Shore took the party to the Central station, where Mrs. Maguire told her story to Inspetor McAleese.

Mrs. Maguire who, in spite of her shabby garments and distressed and nervous appearance, is quite pretty, said she would be 16 years old next Christmas. Her maiden name was O'Neill, her father, Peter, being at one time a well-known and well-to-do plasterer in the East End. Two years ago she became acquainted with a man named cilling Stewart. Maguire, and after some months' courtship, they were engaged. One night Maguire told her he had rented and furnished a house, and wanted to be married that evening. They went to their new home, and there they were married by a man the girl supposed was a minister. They had no marriage liceose but the girl never suspected anything was wrong. The couple lived together until the birth of the child, a pretty y, when Maguire suddenly left. A few weeks later the deserted child received a letter from Philadelphia stating the bare fact that Maguire was dead.

Mrs Magnire then determined to return to her mother, her father having died in the meantime. They rented a house in Homewood, where they lived together until about a month ago, when her mother, Mrs. O'Neill, was sent to jail for trial on a charge Washington is a colored man who supports of assault and battery, the result of a neigh-borly quarrel. There were four in the party, Major. Walker, George Veney and Robert Russell. They had proceeded but a short distance when some one in their rear called out "There's the very man we're looking tor." Walker called back that he did not want anything to do with them. This disinclination to open relations with the other side resulted in a shower of stoves. A brickbat coming from the same direction struck Major in the face and laid him low. The belligerents were then at close quarters. Jen-kins tusseled with Russell, and Walker.

"If the Kanawha river operators were burdened with tolls for locks, such as we have to pay on the Monongahela, we might stand some show, but at present we can do nothing, and until this proposed pool is formed, they can undersell us. So far the shipments from the Kanawha have been very light, but the field is one of great promise, and unless we do something, and do that at once, we will some time find no market for our coal in Southern ports.

"With the exception of one or two large firms, all the shippers favor a consolidation, and a vigorous warfare against the Kanawha shippers for about a year would compel our rivals to leave the business, but the longer the combination is put off, the harder it will be, for that would enable those now working the region to branch out, and if not forced out of the business, they will, at least, cause us considerable more trouble. It appears to me that the coal operators are giving no thought to the future, and while these few firms remain obdurate and refuse to enter into the combination the rest continue st i, hammer and tongs, and try to eke out smill profits on investments that should yield 100 per cent larger returns. Last year several coal shippers effected a combination on the quiet and tried to improve the condition of business in that way, but it was discovered that one of the largest firms here was underselling the syndicate at Cincin-nati and Louisville, which resulted in breaking up the combination, and the venture was disastrous to every firm in it, several of them being nearly pushed to the wall in the crash that followed. The outcome of our efforts to maintain prices was that several firms were compelled to retire from the business.

ONLY ONE OBSTACLE.

"The only obstacle to prevent the consummation of the syndicate this year is the same firm, it still refusing to enter the project. The other operators are unwilling to have anything to do with it unless this one firm joins the pool. There may be good reasons for this firm remaining out, they are not apparent. Last year they shipped more coal down the river than all the firms in the pool, and sold it without profit. Some operators have concluded that this firm is largely interested in the development of the Kanawha river region, but this rumor is generally discredited. "An attemp will be made to induce every shipper to go into the deal, and it is thought that it will be successful.

"It will be a question of the survival of the fittest," concluded the operator quoted, "it this firm refuses to join the syndicate this time. The majority of us are determined to act in unison, and bitter warfare will be urged against the Kanawha river operators and the Pittsburg firms who refuse to enter the combine." The gentleman talked in a strain that showed he was in carnest in his intentions. That something must be done to save the Pittsburg coal shipping is acknowledged by a great many coal shippers, and develop-ments in that line can be looked for shortly.

WILL TAKE A CENSUS.

New Pastoral Residence to be Erected in St Agnes' Parish.

A census of all the families belonging to St. Agnes' parish will be begun this morning. The object is to ascertain exactly how many Catholics attend the church, and also to raise money to build a new pastoral residence. At the several masses in his church, yesterday morning, Rev. Father Corcoran, pastor of the church, made the announcement of the census, for the two-fold reason given above. He stated that the debt of the church and school building has been paid, and it is pretty nearly time for the congregation to secure a house for the priests fit to ive in. The old frame building now occupied by the priests is tumbling down, and the erection of a new house has been put off from time to time until some of the church debt has been paid.

Father Corcoran has been pastor of the church five years, and the fact of his having paid off the large debt speaks well for his business ability. The parochial school at-tendance is increasing daily under his management.

KNIGHTS OF THE GOLDEN EAGLE

Preparing for the Philadelphia Demonstration of This Week.

The Sir Knights of the 387 Castles and 72 Commanderies in this State are actively engaged in preparing for the demonstration in Philadelphia on October 1 in commemoration of the fifteenth anniversary of the introduction of the Knights of the Golden Eagle into Pennsylvania. The event promises to be a brilliant one, and while it is not anticipated that all of the Castles and Commanderies will participate, the indications are that the parade will compare favorably with any recent demonstration. Major General Maurice C. Stafford, of the Pennsylvania division of the military branch, K. G. E., has been elected by the General Committee to command. He has issued general orders, No. 7, in relation to the parade. Local Knights are preparing for the turn out.
