kept in life our great Government until 1860. They looked back at the sacrifices made in the War of the Rebellion, and in the War of 1812. The threat to overthrow the Gos ernment and danger of disunion again made it weeessary for the President to make that declaration of independence, and Abraham Lincoln sand that this Government of the people, for the people and by the people, must not perish. He arerely retiterated the statement. He came it om the people and knew what the people wanted. It was his purpose to breathe the spirit of the people.

AS IMPORTANT AS EVER.

You may ask what this has to do with this meeting. It has everything to do with it. It is SOME LEGISLATION IS EXPECTED. now time for a restoration of the declaration that this Government of the people shall stand It is as important in Pennsylvania to-day as ever it was. Forbid that you should forget that this is a Government of the people when that this is a Government of the people when the people are about to vote. Who are the people but the individuals? Each man goes to make up the people. If the individuality is destroyed, the bulwarks of the nation are broken. The issue in Pennsylvania to-day is not a dead controversy as some would have you think. It is a live and active one. There is an element that has assumed the powers of the people. It has been especially active in Pennsylvania the last few years. They act for the people and think for the people. These men, who are sometimes called bosses, have set themselves up in the control of the State. The issues of this context are home rule, self genrament and clean politics. One side consists if the people, the other of bosses and spolismen. A great power belongs to you once a year. It is a solemn occasion, and no man should fail to assert his citizenship at the polis. You may take my party, drive away my friends, and all else, but you can't deprive me of my birthright of American citizenship.

The people have made a complaint for the secrecy of the bailot; a just complaint. It is not only in Pennsylvania, but all over the country. In 1881 a bill was introduced in the Legislature, providing for a uniform bailot to be issued by the County Commissioners. No attention "as paid to it. In 1881 sent a message to be Legislature, recommending a revised electival law. It was not considered because an element is in control of State politics who did not want ir, and did not care what the people want. If this is brought about it must be by your vote, and must be manifested on election day. The Republican bosses are howling for bailot reform because the people demand it, but they did not do it when they had the chance.

In closing, all I ask of the people in Noveminer. the people are about to vote. Who are the people but the individuals? Each man goes to make up the people. If the in-

In closing, all I ask of the people in November is to exercise that intelligence and regard for that great privilege, for the care of home and children, every man should exercise at the polis at the election. Whatever the result may be if every man exercises his right to yote I will be satisfied. I will be content to bow in humble submission to the will of the people. Tumultuous applause followed this declaration at the close of Mr. Pattison's ad-

ALWAYS FOLLOWED PATTISON.

Ex-Lieutenant Governor Black was introduced, and immediately wormed himself into the good graces of his auditors, in the happy style for which he is noted. He said he had always been following the Governor. He had followed him into office, and through four years of the administra-tion. He had hoped he was through, but the Scranton convention had dragged him out. He is now following his leader through a most enthusiastic campaign, and expects to follow him into office again, and through another four years' administration. Mr. Black then illustrated the point he wanted to make by a little

Dean Swift was asked to preach before the Queen, and was told to be brief. He took for his text: "He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord." "Now," said he, "if you like the security, down with the dust." We are like the Dean. Our security is the record of four years' honest administration at Harrisburg. vears' honest administration at Harrisburg. There is no reason for any argument. It is abparent that the people of Pennsylvania want honest Government and know just where to get it. They had it once and liked it first rate. The voters of it once and liked it first rate. The voters of this State are in the habit of only orting for the regularly nominated candidates of a party. Here's a man from Crawford county out on a false prefense that he was nominated for Gov-ernor. He was never nominated by any party. He was appointed by one man, and are the peo-ple going to vote for such a man? They want to nominate their man.

The speaker then touched upon the question of ballot reform, and declared that Matthew Stanley Quay does not want it. Mr. Black advocated the Australian system. In closing the centleman said:

This is a time for a second declaration of in-dependence. The first was for liberty of State; this will be a return to the people of the power to govern, a power well-nigh extinct in Penn-I ask you to support this man and t that flag on the Capitol at Harris-

PRAISE PROM A VETERAN Major Veale, a one-legged soldier of Philadelphia, described as a man "shot to pieces" in the defense of his country, spoke to the comrades of the G. A. R. on the sub-ject of the Governor's friendship to the soldier. He declared that he had no friends who were not also soldiers' friends, and he a friend of Mr. Pattison. In closing, Major Veale said, in regard to the veto of the burial bill: "I say, all honor to Gov-ernor Pattison for killing a measure that disgraced the soldiers by making them declare themselves paupers."

Comrade John L. Jones, of Braddock, was introduced, after loud calls from the audience. Mr. Jones is the commander of the G. A. R., and has always been a Republican. In the course of his address he

The time has come when party lines must give way to principle. I am going to vote for the candidate of the people, and not for the appointee of one man. I for one, will not wear the Quay collar. Mr. Pattison was the best Governor we have had since Andrew G. Currin. I always honored him for vetoing that bill that made pupers of deceased soldiers. We don't ask the State to bury our dead. We can do that ourselves. I ask the Independent voters of Braddock to stand with me in this fight against bossism, and vote for Robert E. Patrison.

W. J. Brennen, Secretary of the Democratic County Committee, was the last speaker of the evening. During the prog-ress of every address the appliance was loud and the enthusiasm spontaneous. POOLS OR NO POOLS.

A Question That Has Aroused Horsemen. Lovers of Racing and Many Citizens During the Week.

The Law and Order People Are Firm in Their Opposition, but a Great Many People Favor It.

PHILADELPHIA WILL MAKE THE MOVE.

The Opinion of Many Men Who Have Ideas of Their Own to Offer.

Captain Wishart's determined pursuit of the pool sellers has revived the issue of pools or no pools, to a marked degree. During the present week the subject has been discussed in all its various phases, by horsemen, men of business, and people generally who take a most decided stand against the practice. In order to get a full expression of opinion on the question, from people who have ideas of their own on the subject, a DISPATCH reporter exhausted considerable energy, and wasted some shoe leathers

Ex-Representative Robison, of Allegheny, declared himself as follows: "The present provision covering the matter of pool selling is one of the old blue laws that still holds its own. For years it was a dead letter, and might have remained so had not Captain Wishart unearthed it and put it in force. 1 voted for the bill which was before the last House, the chief provision of which was to legalize pool selling on race tracks. I thought it no more than fair to a large class of people who consider that their rights had been abridged. Time out of mind fairs and agricultural societies in this State have offered prizes for borses, cattle and farm products, and almost invariably they have racing on which money is wagered.

WHAT HAS BEEN NOTICED.

The development of speed horses is just as essential to breeders as the development of any other class of animals, but I have noticed that where the privilege of speculation is cut off there are rarely ever any speed contests of any consequence. When these contests are knocked out the breeders suffer. There are several millions of dollars invested in stock farms in this State for the development of speed horses, and these people have rights that must be respected. Beside this, many fair associations, particularly in Western Pennsylvania, have suffered greatly by the enforcement of this old

"Do you think a bill will be revived at the coming session of the Legislature?" "Beyond a doubt. I understand that Representative Richmond, of Philadelphia, will take charge of it this time. It would have gone through at the last session had it been properly handled from the start. It came into the House as a waif, and no one rallied to it until the last, when it was too late. But at that it was only defeated by five votes. My idea is that in the Senate it would have had much clearer sailing. The way things look to me all the old members who voted for the bill will do so again, and I look for its passage."

UNALTERABLE OPPOSITION. James W. Houston, Vice President of the Law and Order Society, declared that they Captain Barelay, of Pittsburg, addressed the audience on the record of Governor Pat- from the present laws. "Our Society has considered this matter carefully, and we are firm in our convictions. They can race as much as they want, but we are all opposed to pool selling." "What are your chief objections?" was asked. "Why, it leads young men astray, and often they go to the excess of using money that is obtained by questionable means, to say the least. I voice the sentiment of all the people interested in our work, as we have a thorough understanding." Captain Wishart quite agreed with Mr. Houston, and had nothing of consequence to add to that gentleman's views. Henry McCullough, a well-known business man, said: "I am in favor of legalizng pool-seiling on race tracks, but want it confined strictly to these quarters. There are hundreds and thousands of people in this State who enjoy racing, and the only way to insure good contests is to legalize the matter of speculation. 1 believe the bill will come up again, and see no reason why it will not pass. This talk about boys being dragged into the vortex of gambling is nonsense. There is not an association in the State that would allow them to wager a dollar, even if they wanted to. During my experience of some years I have never seen any young men ruined at the one or two meetings held here yearly. Workingmen bet money now and then, but they are a class of toilers who make $50 or $60 a week. But, for that matter, if they wanted to risk their money, they would do so, pools or no

AN OPPOSITE OPINION. James Goldsmith was encountered at the Monongahela House. He is the son of the late Alden Goldsmith, who bred the famous old queen of the turf at his Washingtonville (N. Y.) stock farm. The son inherited the farm, and now has several worthy representatives of the old maid's sire (Volunteer) to perpetuate his farm. Mr. Goldsmith trots some of his horses, partly for the financial sinews of war and partly for the development of the qualities that make them valuable for private sale. He said he pools, in some form or on something."

favored the idea of legalizing pool selling on race tracks the same as had been done in New York State.

There under the Ives bill the business was confined strictly to the race courses, and was kept to a very large extent among horsemen, or men who made it a business to the horses from place to place. He said the law gave general satisfaction and wiped out all objectious. He thought the people of Pennsylvania, as a whole, would find a similar law the best way out of the difficulty. About all the people he had met held similar views, and he thought something would be done at the coming session of the Legislature. He added that under the present laws the great California stables of Hickok, Marvin and others, were afraid to come here and take chances. He considered this one of the greatest racing centers in the United States, and knew an Eastern syndicate that would rent the park at good round figures, improve the track and make other necessary repairs, provided the laws were modified. If they were not, he feared the Grand Circuit would weary of the city.

Mr. Van Osten, who acted as starting judge during the week, and who is President of Belmont Park, Philadelphia, favors pared to say what would be done, but thought steps would be taken this winter to Representative Richards, of this city, was asked if he thought a pool bill would be in-troduced this winter. He replied that in up again.

"What kind of a reception do you think it will receive?" was asked./

"Well, I think it will go through," was his reply. "The last bill met with opposition from quarters where that opposition will likely not exist this session. There was a misunderstanding among some of the Phila-delphia people, but I think they understand deiphia people, but I think they understand the question now. Then some of the rural representatives will likely be in favor of the bill, as many of these agricultural associations are big losers by the enforcement of the present law."

Adam Fuchs, a well-known butcher in the market, and also a fancier of horses, said he was strongly in favor of the proposed measure, and he knew hundreds of men in his line of business who held the same his line of business who held the same views. He said he was satisfied the ques-tion would be brought up this winter, and that a strong effort would be made to pass a

Frank Heraic, the pool seller, said he favored a bill something like the Ives bill in New York. This confined the business to race tracks and 5 per cent of the poo seller's percentage went to the agricultural association of the State. He said that pool sellers were not anxious to bring the business were not anxious to bring the business were not anxious to bring the business were not anxious to bring the said to be a seller when the said to be a seller were not anxious to be a seller when the said to be a seller were not anxious to be a seller when the said that the ness into cities. They were perfectly will-ing to forego this privilege, though it was allowed in a great many States in the Union. He had heard that the question was to be revived this winter, but could not say anything definite on this score.

ALL BY HERSELF.

John E. Madden, a well-known turfman and breeder of Lexington, Ky., said that Pittsburg, with her rigid laws, was the talk of the country. He had traveled all over the land, and this was the only big city in the United States that he knew of where pools could not be sold on the track. He believed that racing once or twice a year furnished a very healthy pastime for the people, while a good meeting always brought thousands of dollars into the legitimate

A gentleman who would not permit the use of his name, said he understood that the breeders and agricultural associations of the State would pool their issues this winter and see to it that they received legislation that would protect them. They could muster up a very strong following, he said, and could not afford to be overlocked.

The officials of Homewood Park were not auxious about expressing any views just at present. That they will give two or three meetings next year is already assured. The present meeting would have been a remarkably successful one had it not been for the rain, and this is sufficient encouragement to try it again. That they would like to enjoy the right of selling pools on the grounds goes without saying. The question is alive once more, and the outcome will be watched with interest by thousands of people.

DREW THE LINE ON A BABY.

A Penusylvania Conductor Wouldn't Take a

Little Child Unaccompanied. Many are the stories told of young children who have been carried miles by railroads, and reached their destinations safely, with nothing but a large tag on their breasts to guide the conductors, but last night the Pennsylvania road drew the line on a 21/4ear-old baby that was to have been sent to New York unaccompanied. The little one was a bright child, just able to walk, nicely dressed, and carried in her chubby hands a red doll. The ticket agent sold a half ticket for it on condition that the conductor would accept the charge, but he refused. Quite a crowd gathered around the baby while the people were tying a big tag around its neck. Considerable indignation was expressed that anyone should even think of sending a child of such tender years to New York alone, and the refusal of Conductor Hawkins to take it was ap-

The facts are these: When Mrs. Clarke, the wife of the chief cornetist in Innes' band, left New York a tew weeks ago she was accompanied to the depot by the parents of the baby. The little one was with them. They got on the train when it started, and eir haste to get off the baby was left with Mrs. Clarke, in very good hands, who brought it to Pittsburg. The father of the baby directed that it be sent back alone, trusting to the watchfulness of the conductors, but the result was quite different. Unless Superintendent Pitcairn issues an order to that effect someone will have to take the baby home.

IN HONOR OF MR. STONER.

His Lawyer Friends Give Him a Banquei Before He Goes West.

About 60 representative lawyers, members of the Bar Association and non-members, attended a banquet at the Monongabela House last evening given in honor of J. M. Stoner, who intends to leave shortly for California, where he will locate on account of ill health. S. A. McClung presided, and the attorneys enjoyed the social features of the occasion. Of the Judges, Ewing, Stowe,

Over and Siagle were there.

Mr. McClung, in a neat sphech, stated the object of the feast, and regretted that the object of the feast, and regretted that Mr. Stoner was going to leave. Mr. Stoner made a clever reply. He stated that the rewards of a lawyer were not as great as the profits of business men, who don't expend any more energy, but there were other pleasures that compensated the attorney for his hard work. Judge Ewing, Major Morehead and others talked. There were orles for various lawyers, as it seemed to suit the fancy of the listeners. Judge Ewing indulged in some personal recollec-tions of Mr. Stoner, while Mr. Moreland argued that the attorneys missed a great deal by failing to have more social banquets; that working in antagonistic fields lawvers often failed to note many good qualities of head and heart in their opponents, and that they really didn't know each other as they should. A number of other impromptu speeches were made.

A LITTLE FAMILY FIGHT.

A Father Charges His Daughter With Steal-

Johanna was arrested, and gave bail for a hearing to-day. Kempen asserts that she stole two feather beds, some jewelry and some shawls from his reside on Mifflin street, last July, and took then to her relatives in Allegheny.

Johanna claims that the goods are hers, and she had a right to take them. She says they belonged to her mother in the first place, and when she died, about three months ago, the goods were willed to her, which she can prove. Miss Kempen is now living with a family on the Southside

A BOY AND REVOLVER

To Say Nothing at All of the Many Redskins He Proposed to Kill.

HOW ANY CHILD CAN GET A PISTOL

Charged With Selling Firearms to Youngster.

A very peculiar case is held under advise ment by Alderman King, of the Southside. It is that of Howard Royer, a dealer in cheap hardware at 622 Smithfield street, charged by F. J. S. Peregrino with misdemeanor in having sold a revolver to the latter's son, a boy of 13 years. The law under which the information was arms to a boy under 16. The case was heard by Alderman King, and after the evidence was in, the decision was reserved. The highest penalty of the law is $300 fine. There is no imprisonment clause. Mr. Peregrino also proposes to prosecute the man who sold the boy the cartridges to fit the revolver. He says he went to see the men in the case, but they laughed at him. He then told them they had not heard the last of it, and began proceedings against them under the law. This is another case of a boy becoming infatuated with the stories of life in the West by reading trashy novels of such character as "Blood on the Moon; or, How Border Bill Made Fifty Redskins Bite the Dust." The boy decided to become famous, doubtless thinking he would some day be a modern Othello, and his name would float down to posterity in the annals of history. In other words, he decided that he would flood the Territories in blood from the veins of his Indian victims. HAD TO HAVE A GUN. Of course, to do this he must have a gun. A small boy with his head swimming in tales of Indian wars would not think of killing the dusky redskins with anything else, and he decided that a revolver was the article with which he would do the terrible execution. So, according to his story, he went to Mr. Royer and purchased an article that suited his fancy. It looked all right, and he perhaps didn't know whether it would shoot or not, but he paid his cash and started West to rid the country of the "pesky varmints" that never forgive a wrong.

The boy didn't get very many miles away from the city before he called a council of war with himself to devise ways and means to beat a retreat, and he soon returned home, leaving the poor, terror-stricken settlers the West to the merciless savages.

After the boy's return home he told his father where he purchased the revolver and cartridges, and the latter went to see about the matter. His reception, he says, was not what he expected or desired, so he decided to invoke the majesty of the law in behalf of his misguided son.

This case is one of hundreds of a like nature. Too many dealers have never heard of the law forbidding the sale of firearms to boys, and many that have heard of it disregard it. Boys have every opportunity of getting trashy novels and firearms, and often the publishers of the books give away revolvers as presents, under certain condi-tions, and thus they uphold a lottery scheme as well as furnish youths with firearms. SNARES EVEN FOR BABES.

In a store on Federal street, Allegheny, is to be found a scheme whereby some one will get a double-action five-shot revolver for a nickel. There are 150 "draws" in a box, which sell at 5 cents each, and, besides a little trinket, worth perhaps a cent a hundred, a number is in a box, which sell at 5 cents each, and, besides a little trinket, worth perhaps a cent a hundred, a number is given, entitling the holder to a chance for the revolver. These chances are sold to meeting. The corporate seal, as recommended by the committee, was adopted. The following new members were elected: J. I. Buchanan, David Kirk, J. R. Gemill and Joseph G. Speer. little children, no matter of what age, and when the box is sold out it is as liable to go to a 7-year-old youngster as to a man. Thus two laws are disregarded, the law against gambling and the law against selling firearms to boys. There are other places as well, especially in the suburbs of the two cities, where such schemes are worked on the little ones.

The above is not the only gambling of chance scheme that is placed before the children by keepers of candy stores and corner groceries in the suburban districts. There are the penny cash butter-scotch cakes that have a cent in about every 50 but it catches the pennies of the youngsters, often those given them for their weekly offering at Sunday school.

Said an Allegheny gentleman yesterday, speaking of this matter: "In the grand raids made on gambling, pool selling, etc., such schemes have been unnoticed, and there is no game of change in the city which there is no game of chance in the city which is more deceiving. It is worked on little children, who have more reason to be protected than the man who knowingly bets his money on a horse race and drops his little

fr. Howard Returns to the Criticism of the Duquesne-Points is Answer to His Ob-

Mr. William J. Howard, owner of the Howard block, Smithfield street, who has seen one of the most active opponents of the widening of Diamond street, writes a lengthy communication to an evening cotemporary, reciting the inner history of the organization of the Pittsburg Traction Company and throwing several buckets of cold water upon its new rival, the Duquesne Traction. Mr. Howard says that Messrs. Magee, Flinn, Whitney & Stephens Rhodes and McCandless realized a total profit of $564,982 in the building of the Pittsburg Traction line. He complains at some length against the widening of Diamond street and Cecil alley, which he claims is contemplated for the benefit of the Duquesne line. In his communica-tion he urges that it would be wise policy for the directors of the Duquesne to give up that part of the programme and confine their operations to the building of the road. The letter, which is quite spe-cific in its figures, seems to show an inti-mate knowledge of the arrangements by which the Pittchurg Traction line was built made makes it a misdemeanor to sell firewhich the Pittsburg Traction line was built. It reads like one of the first open hostilities etween the backers of rival passenger rail-One of the Duquesne directors was seen in eference to Mr. Howard's letter. He said

Mr. Howard's points were irrelevant, as the question before the public was one of competition and increased facilities for travel; The Duquesne is now built and an accomplished fact. It opens up new territory and will give new facilities where they were needed. As for the widening of Diamond street, Mr. Howard was in error in supposing that the parties moving in it were the Duquesne people. It was urged by owners of property on the street, who saw in the widening that the property would be greatly benefited, and that the public facilities for business would be largely increased by hav-ing a wide street in place of an alley. The cost of the widening was not a tax on the public treasury, but was to be borne by the property on the street which was asking for it. Mr. Howard was one of the few exceptants, as he had already a Smithfield street front for his lot, which, of course, the bulk of the property did not have. As the case stands, it is further stated, that the Duquesne line is not coming by way of Diamond street anyhow at present, but will probably make arrangements with the Central Traction line to use Sixth avenue and Fourth avenue.

In relation to Mr. Howard's constitutional ections to the financial organization o the Duquesne line, it was answered that the ame objections, if there was anything in them, would apply as much to the organization of the Pittsburg Traction, but that the Duquesne people were not worrying about these criticisms, as their stock is not on the

The Independent Republican Organization Ready for Business.

The Executive Committee of the Allegheny County Independent Republican Organization yesterday secured rooms in the Bissell block, corner of Seventh avenue and Smithfield street, and headquarters will be opened there at 10 o'clock this morning. The general headquarters room is on the second floor, room No. 204. It will be open from 9 A. M. until 10 P. M. every day, except Sundays, until after election day. The committee discussed the subject of public meetings, and, while Chairman Ayres, of the Meetings and Speakers Committee, has not fully pre-pared his plans, it is safe to say that a large number of meetings will be held throughout the county. Some of the most prominen leaders of the Independent movement in the State are likely to be heard in Allegheny county. The work of the committee will not be confined to holding meetings, but it is stated that printed matter bearing on the issues of the campaign will be distributed in very election district. Chairman Blair invites all Republicans who are in sympathy with the movement to call at the headquarters. Struck Her With a Bucket. Mrs. Mary Stewart, who lives on Ann street, made an information before Alderman Lunan yesterday charging Mrs. Emma Lainey with assault and battery. Mrs. Stewart alleges that Mrs. Lainey struck her over the nead with a bucket, producing an ugly scalp would. She was arrested and committed to jail in detault of $300 bail for a hearing Monday.

BOUND TO BE A FIGHT.

Washington and Beaver County Conferees Fail to Agree on a CANDIDATE FOR STATE SENATOR. Samuel P. White Will Run, Regardless of

WILL ASK THE DEMOCRATS TO HELP HIM

a Nomination, and

The Regublican conferees in the Beaver-Washington district failed to nominate a Senatorial candidate yesterday, and the rival candidates, Colonel Hawkins and Samuel P. White, of Beaver, will run independently in their respective counties. A compromise may be made before the election day, but it is excoedingly doubtful, judging from the temper of both sides at present. The adjourned meeting was held at the Monongahela House. Four ballots were taken without any result. The Beaver conferees, weary of the talk and the contest, moved to adjourn to the 14th or 23d, but the Washington people opposed the motion. The Washington conferees then moved to adjourn sine die, which was carried, Beaver county not voting. This is the status of the case at present.

When the result was known Mr White said: "I will certainly offer no compromise in the future, and I will have my name placed on the Republican ticket in Beaver county. The nomination should go to my county by precedent and custom.

HE WANTS HIS TURN. "Four years ago I withdrew in favor of Senator McLean, of Washington, and at that time it was expressly agreed that the Washington Republicans would not oppose me this time. Colonel Hawkins was then a candidate for the nomination in his county. but was defeated. The claim made by Washington that Beaver has had more than her share of representation is not true. Since the present district was organized in 1875 under the new Constitution Washington county has had four terms, aggregating 11 years, while Beaver only had one of fou years. Whatever claims may be made previous to 1875 don't go, for the reason that the district was not constituted as it is now. Butler was one of the counties.

Butler was one of the counties.

"The Washington county people have been intimating all day that they have made some deal with the Democrats. All I have to say is that I am a Republican, and desire to be elected by Republican votes. I would not stoop to make such a deal in my county, even if I could. My impression is that the Democrats will nominate their own candidate. nate their own candidate, anyhow. I an in this fight to stay, and hope to be elected. THE COLONEL IS DEFIANT.

On the other hand, Colonel Hawkins said: "The old story used to be that Beaver county wanted the earth and part of Greene county. We are entitled to this nomina tion, and I don't propose to yield an inch I will make an effort to get as many Demo cratic votes as I can, but I don't know what success I will have. Beaver county now has a United States Senator, two leading Federal appointments in Western Pennsylvania and a Congressman."

It was intimated by the Washington peo ple that the Democratic nominee, if one was put up, would come from Beaver county. Colonel Hawkins' forces will attempt to get the Washington county Democrats to in-dorse him. It looks as if the fight will be dorse him. It looks as if the fight will be redhot from this out. No personal feelings were developed, and Mr. McCracken, of Washington, said that the balloting had been conducted squarely. Neither side offered any other compromise than the nomination of its candidate.

Colonel Hawkins was represented by M. L. A. McCracken, Dr. T. D. M. Wilson and A. M. Pollock. Mr. White's conferees were Abram Bentley, M. F. Micklen and W. H. Bricker. The conference held yes-

were Abram Bentley, M. F. Michael W. H. Bricker. The conference held yesterday was the third and probably the last, TRAVEL, Adventure, Fact, Fiction and Choice Miscellany will be found in Morrow's big DISPATCH.

EXPOSITION PEOPLE LEAVE, And Call at Kleber Bro's. After viewing the splendid sights at the Exposition most of the visitors (who mean business) call at H. Kleber & Bro.'s, 506 Wood street, and select one of their superior pianos and organs. They know in their hearts that to make a fine show is one thing and to give people the very finest instru-ments at the price of the common, secondclass goods is quite another thing. The Messrs. Kleber & Bro. enjoy the fullest confidence of the public, and whether they exprincipal business street of Pittsburg, Wood street, or in Diamond or Virgin alley, the public will seek them out and congratulate themselves that they have found out the place which is utterly safe and reliable, and above the sharp tricks of new houses which have come in at the eleventh hour, and which have to rely upon the credulity of the public to get rid of their goods-using clubs and other knock-down arguments to bulldoze their callers into buying their inferior wares—articles which the Kleber Bros. had long since rejected as unworthy of being as-sociated with their honorable record and name. Such pianos as Steinway's, Cono-ver's, Opera, Gabler, Emerson, and organs as the great Vocalions, Earhuff proof and Burdett, cannot be duplicated in this country. Klebers give an eight-year warrantee and sell on easy time payments Get Into Line. These are the days the lines are drawn. Now is the time to show whether you are a Democrat or Republican. Attend the Re-publican rally at the Grand Opera House to-night and show your colors.

WORE CLERICAL CLOTHING.

The Allegheny Police Bun Down a Man Who Has Been Deceiving Simple Girls-His Larid Career-Turned Over to the Pittsburg Authorities.

James Patrick Morrison, an alleged Cath-

lic priest, was arrested in Allegheny yesterday afternoon at the instigation of Chief Murphy. For some days past the Chief has been receiving complaints, principally from Catholic girls who are employed as domestics in Allegheny families, about the conduct of the alleged priest. The girls stated that he had come to them and in the name of the Catholic Church had solicited from them subscriptions for certain re-ligious books. The girls, in nearly every case, put down their names and paid a cer-tain amount of money, and after that they failed to hear either of the books or the priest. Chief Murphy detailed Detectives Glenn and Koruman to work up the case and yesterday afternoon the officers succeeded in finding their man in a Sandusky street saloon, and landed him in the lock-up. Mr. Morrison was dressed in priestly habil-iments, wearing even the Roman collar. He is a young man, smooth shaven and ooks like a minister of the Roman church. Chief Murphy stated that Mr. Morrison's escapades are not confined to his representing a priest and falsely collecting money, but that he has a wife and family living in Lawrenceville, and there is also a woman and child in lower Allegheny whom he sometimes lives with. Besides this he has been paying attentions to a certain young lady in the First ward, Allegheny. Chief Murphy learned that Mr. Morrison was wanted by Magistrate McKenna on a was wanted by Magistrate McKenna on a charge of embezzlement, and as there was no specific charge made against him in Alle-gheny the priestly effender was turned over to the Pittsburg authorities.

CARPET BUYERS.

The manufacturers of Carpets have given notice to the trade that orders for future delivery will be accepted ONLY AT VALUE AT TIME OF DELIVERY. They claim they are forced to take this step on account of the probable passage of the McKinley Tariff Bill, which, as framed, will necessitate an advance of from 5 to 20 cents per yard throughout the list. Manufacturers of varns will make no contracts for future delivery except at extraordinary advances over present prices. We laid in an unusually heavy stock of all grades last summer, and
