TO AID STRANGERS.

City Officials Want a Bureau of Information in Connection With the Police Department.

WHAT MAYOR GOURLEY SAYS.

The New Institution Will Not Entail Any Additional Expense to the Taxpayers of the City.

RUSH OF VISITORS SHOW ITS NEED.

Country People Exposed to Danger Through the Dark Ways of Sharpers.

The necessity of a city bureau of infomation where strangers in town could go and find out the different points of interest, or ascertain where some particular place was located, has been shown since the opening of the Exposition. That such a branch of the City Government should exist is something that will not be denied by any person who has noticed the large crowds of strangers on the streets since the show opened.

According to figures furnished by the passenger departments of the different railways entering the city there have between 8,000 and 9,000 strangers, on an average, in town every day. This is exclusive of the crowds attracted by the Iron and Steel Institute, the engineers' convention, Revision Committee, laundrymen's meeting, and the convention of German Catholics. These people, the majority of whom could be seen daily on the streets asking passers-by for information regarding some point they wished to visit, and the police records show a number of cases of suspicious characters who were only too ready to guide the strangers to any place they wanted to be taken. No robberies were reported, but it was not because the strangers did not give sharpers an opportunity to "do" them.

AFRAID OF THE BUNKO MAN.

In other cases it was painful to notice the look of distrust with which a stranger eyed every person he found it necessary to accost for fear that he was running up against a bunko steerer.

A number of good reasons were given for the bureau at THE DISPATCH voting contest at the Exposition on Tuesday. In many cases those who wanted the bureau were country folk, who see the necessity of such an institution more than their city cousins. One man wanted the burcau established in City Hall and ruu under the supervision of the Department of Public

Mayor Gourley is in favor of this idea, and says it would not cutail any additional expense on the city. It could be connected with the Police Bureau, and every member of that department would also be an emplaye of the Bureau of Information. On the ground floor of City Hall is the office of the police patrol telegraph, and the operator in the office, which is open at all hours, day the office, which is open at all hours, day and night, could answer all questions without it interfering with his other duties. In speaking of the innovation, Mayor Gourley said yesterday:

THE MAYOR INDORSES IT.

'Such a bureau is certainly needed in this city, and I am heartily in favor of it if it does not cost anything additional to the city to maintain it. There is no question but strangers are exposed to great risks when they access every person on the street in search of information A uniformed police officer should be the person to direct strangers to any place they wanted to go, but a great many country people stand in such awe of our officers that people stand in such awe of our observe that they are afraid to ask them what they think are foolish questions. As we have a large number of officers they could be instructed to keep a lookeut for strangers and answer ques-tions in a manner that would put the visitors at ease. "There are thousands of people in the city daily, and there are a great many points of i terest they do not know anything about. It should be the aim of Pittsburgers to show visitors every possible courtesy, and impress upon them the extent and beauty of our city. If we have something worth selling I believe we should show it, and not be backward about it. uld be fired with this kind of enthusiasm, and it is such a feeling as this that the people of the growing Western cities have. They get up and hustle and are not afraid to talk of their town. As a natural result they bring people to it, and they do not wait for the natural increase in population to build the town up. I am heartly in favor of such an institution, and hope something will be done about it." sm, and it is such a feeling as this that

Magistrate Succop, of the Southside, has a few ideas of his own about such an enterprise, and thinks that while the bureau should be under the jurisdiction of the city, as any of the other departments, it should be self-sustaining.

In speaking of the matter last night, he said:
"I believe it is one of the greatest necessities of the city. It would be very convenient for a business man coming into the city, a stranger, and if he only had two or three hours in which to go half a dozen places that he did not know to go half a dozen places that he did not know where to find, to have a messenger or guide to take him all around for a nominal price. In most large cities a guide must be paid a dollar an hour. If a bureau were organized here it would be possible to include, with 1:s many other valuable features, a messenger department, through which a service could be furnished at a mere nominal price. In this way the bureau would be nearly, if not altogether, self-westaming. ing.

"In general the bureau ought to be a place where any information concerning the city could be obtained. It ought to be located some place near the heart of the city, within easy access of all railroad depots, I believe I would have those in charge of it to be persons capable of answering any question relating to the commercial, manufacturing, manucial, political or social interests of the city. If a stranger wanted a know what the year estate transactions know what the real estate transactions to know what the real estate transactions for the last week, month or year amounted to, or what amount of money had passed through the Clearing House the previous day he could be accommodated with the information. Some plan ought to be arranged in connection with it, however, by which the running expense could be derived from it."

SEEING THE SIGHTS.

Laundrymen Elect Officers and Finish Their Work.

The laundrymen fluished their work yesterday morning and then spent the balance of the day seeing the sights of the city. They were divided into three parties, one going to the Edgar Thomson, one to see the National Tube Works at McKeesport, and the other crowd visited the glass houses and mills on the South-side. The evening also was given up to enter-side. The evening also was given up to entertainment and sociability.

At the morning session of the convention C.

A. Royce, of Springfield, Mass., was elected president; Thomas Syres, of Louisville, Ky., first vice president; Merrill Spaulding, of Chicago, Ill., second vice president; L. G. Carr, of Pennsylvania, treasurer; H. W. Stoer, of Ohio, secretary. St. Louis was selected as the place for helding the convention of October, 1891.
The Executive Committee consists of Messra.
Lawson, Purchase. Reed, Doremus and Dusten.

At the evening meeting the officers were installed, and Messra. Doremus and Stoerr were presented with diamond pins. A committee of four members was appointed to go to Boston to try to organize a local association there.

TO ANDREW CARNEGIE THE PEOPLE OF PITTSBURG PRESENT

Conncils Committee Visit the City's Generous Benefactor and Tell of the City's Gratitude for His Most Magnificent Gift -An Address by Mr. Carnegie.

A people's gratitude to a public spirited citizen was shown yesterday by the formal presentation to Mr. Andrew Carnegie of the handsomely engrossed and bound reso-lutions from Councils, thanking him for the splendid monument to be erected to his name and to stand as a free institution for the educaand to stand as a free institution for the education of Pittsburg's populace.

The Library Committee of Councils, including Mayor Gourley, Presidents Ford and Holliday, City Clerk Booth and Connellmen Keating, Wright and Bigham, repaired to Mr.
Carnegie's office, where they were most courteously received by that gentleman. The party was ushered into the rear room of the office.
Mr. Lambie, on behalf of the city, made the presentation speech and Mr. Carnegie replied in an address characteristic of the man. During the course of his remarks he said:

1 am certain that among all the influences for good which Pittsburg is to possess that the Free Albrary and its branches will occupy a place in the foremost rank. The longer i five the more important i believe a free library and branches to be to a great manufacturing community like Pittsburg. The bonests of a library may be computed because other cities have librarles and the Futts are known, but the Art Galiery is something the like of which the world has rarely seen, if my expectations are fulfilled—as I believe they will be, for if the Art Committee expend $50,000 per annum torever in the purchase of suitable material for a technical museum and also for the best illustration of American painting and art in every year—the result must be that as years roll by we shall have in the city of Pittsburg a historical school of American art.

I am glad that the city of Pittsburg is to maintain the library, because I believe that is the best way to produce the best results from a public library. I am also glad that the Museum and Art Gallery is a free _lft. The library you might almost consider a practical necessity, and the other is a luxury, although its fruits are also to be precious, and it gives me great pleasure to think that I have been the means of giving Pittsburg what might be considered an extravagance in one sense, although I believe the fruits to flow from it will not be less precious than from the library. We are all Pittsburgers. I have made my fortunes what my fortunes with Pittsburg, stand with her, fall with her.

At the conclusion of Mr. Carnegie's address, Mayor Gourley was prevailed upon to

At the conclusion of Mr. Carnegie's address, Mayor Gourley was prevailed upon to continue the speech making, and after some hesitation, said:

Every nation and every age of the world were remembered through the good deeds and philanthropic acts and noble achievements of their great men. Though the great men of Greece died 2,500 years ago their influence has been felt in the world through all succeeding ages, and will continue to be felt until the last hour of recorded time. What is true of streece is also true of every nation and of every city. Though Mr. Carnegle may die, Pittsburg will be remembered by posterity, if for nothing eigh, than the philanthrophy of the recipient of this memorial.

cipient of this memorial.

A general conversation lasted for an hour. The library was the principal topic, and Mr. Carnegie took occasion to express his satisfaction at the proposed Scheniey Park and Bedford avenue sites for buildings. He also told the committee of a rare specimen of the mastadon age discovered by a Yale professor, and which has been promised for the Pittsburg Art Museum. The skeleton is 80 feet long, and its ribs are 40 inches in circumference. A meeting of the Library Committee will be called in a few days.

AMONG LOCAL POLITICIANS.

Preparing Schedules for the Several Series of Campaign Mass Meetings. There was not much stir around the various political headquarters yesterday. At Demo cratic rooms on Grant street, two clerks were. engaged all day copying the list of voters in the various precincts for the benefit of the election officers. When asked what Pattison's majority in the State will be, one of them re-plied euthusiastically "not less than 100,000." At Republican headquarters half a dozen clerks were busy preparing literature for mail-ing. In the rear office "Squire Gripp, Philip Film, James Bradley and a number of others were discussing the situation, while closeted in were discussing the situation, while closeted in the little private office was William Flinn and one or two of his warmest friends.

FUNERAL OF LEE QUON.

The Dead Chinaman Laid Away in the Uniondale Cemetery. The funeral of Lee Quon, the Chinaman who died at the Homeopathic Hospital on Monday, took place yesterday from the morgue. The novelty of a Chinese funeral is dying out somewhat and this one did not attract as much attention as former ones have done. There were only about a dozen Chinamen in attendance, with but a single mourner—the deceased's brother. Less than half of these accompanied the body to the grave in the Unloudale Ceme-One almond-eyed native of China insisted one almond-eyeu native of China insisted upon riding on the hearse with the driver. Nothing else would suit him and he was allowed the privilege. Along the way to the cemetery the Chinese strewed small bits of paper with some sort of writing on them in reference to the dead man. At the grave there was no service. The burial was simple and entirely void of peculiarities. entirely void of peculiarities.

Loe Quon was born in China 41 years ago. He had been in Pittsburg about five years. He was well-known among the Chinese population.

GUESSING THE RESULT.

me Bets on Allegheny County's Vote-In Red or Black, Which?

Speculation, moneyed and verbal, goes on at a lively rate on the streets as to the November vote. Several bets were made yesterday. One was that Delamater would not have 2000 majority in Allegheny county; another that he would have no majority here, that Pattison "How many majority do you think Delamater will have in the county?" asked a reporter of Lawyer John D. Watson, who was discussing the situation.

Mr. Watson has thrown in his fortune with Mr. Watson has thrown in his fortune with the Independent Republicans. He looked astonished a moment, and replied: "I have been around a good deal and have no manner of doubt that Delamater's majority in Allegheny county will be written in red ink." As this is the fluid in which deficiencies in balances are usually inscribed by bookkeepers, there was a broad smile at Mr. Watson's way of putting it.

DON'T LIKE THE TARIFF.

Mr. Gates Says the Europeans Feel Sore Over the Passage of the Bill. J. W. Gates, of the Braddock Wire Works, who has just returned from Europe, left for Chicago yesterday with his family. He says the European people feel very sore over the passage of the tariff bill. He thinks the duties are high enough all around to protect the home are high enough all around to protect the home industries, and when the foreigners feel the effects of American competition, they will find out that they have struck a serious snag.

When in London the head of a large exporting house told him that as long as the tin plate manufacturers could hire boys and girls at 2 shillings per week to sort and pack the plates that the Americans could not hope to compete. No such labor can be procured in this country, but still Mr. Gates thinks the tariff on tin plate is sufficient.

TICKET SPECULATOR ARRESTED.

A Scheme to Revive the Business Promptly Squelched.

The ticket speculator blossomed out with the cold weather and a big week's business at the Bijou, and in less time than it takes to tell it he was behind the bars in Central station. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Begin Business By HOLDING AN INITIAL SESSION. Grand Open Meeting to be Held in the Opera House To-day.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW WILL BE THERE

The delegates to the Convention of Enineers held their opening session yesterday n Old City Hall. The business done was reliminary. Credentials were examined y the committee appointed by Grand Chief Arthur and passed upon Some committee reports were read. The Grand Chief made some introductory remarks, and the convention adjourned at 5:30 o'clock P. M., until 8:30 o'clock on to-morrow morning. Four hundred and twenty delegates were present The remaining 32 have yet to arrive.

The Grand International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has every reason to be proud of its organization, if its rank and file are to be gauged by the representatives of the 452 divisions constituting the order, which it has sent to its twenty seventh annual convention. It would be hard to recognize in the body of delegates-some of whom are jolly looking, others of studious mien-but all of prosper ous appearance and well dressed, the men whose daily duty places in their hands the lives of their fellow-creatures. Rather would they pass for men whose anxiety seldom exceeded the result of a speculation on 'Change, or negotiating other species of business than that of custodians of the destinies of thousands who sink into repose while trusting so implicitly to their watchfulness and discretion. But, perhaps, if selection were to be made of men for this position of trust and responsibility, choice would not go beyond these princes of the railroad service who at present represent their brotherhood here.

been a member of the Executive Committee, and was elected to his present office in 1872.

Second Grand Engineer Deloss Everett, after serving some time as a machinist, first shoveled coal on the Pennsy in 1865. He got his engine the Chicago Convention of 1884.

First Grand Assistant Engineer H. C. Hays

The Chairman then introduced ex-Master Workman John Coffey, of D. A. 149. Eastern green glass blowers, who was received with prolonged applause.

Mr. Coffey, in the course of his remarks, laid stress on the fact that he was not pre stress on the fact that he was not present as the subordinate of any particular party or individual, but as a man disposed to engender a spirit of American independence on behalf of a candidate for Governor whose past record and present assurances indicated that he was practically a true friend to labor. The speaker took up Pattison's record and showed that as the candidate of the minority party in the State he was pursuing an aggressive policy against that of a defensive one on the part of the Republican candidate. Mr. Coffey showed conclusively that Dewey. Carlton and Turner had no connection with organized labor, and had no connection with organized labor, and that any political document coming from ther that any political occurrent coming from them should be discountenanced.

Mr. Coffey said that Delamater "during the whole of his Senatorial career had antagonized every bill which was introduced for the benefit of the laboring man, and that the only thing I can commend him to the working people for was his truckling propensities to a political buildozer."

line of hose had to be kept in the building all day yesterday to guard against a fresh outburst of flame.

It is not known how the fire started, but 26 bales of cotton that had just been put in on Tuesday had to be separated and removed from the premises. This was necessitated because of the fire bursting out after it had apparently been quenched. Finally the cotton had to be separated by hand, little by little, to get at the burning material, and was continued throughout the day. The loss will be considerable.

MAKING THE INSPECTION.

President Roberts and His Party Start From

Pittsburg. President Roberts and his party arrived. Pittsburg yesterday afternoon to start from here on the annual inspection of the Pennsylvania system. The local officers left with them about 5:30 P. M. for the West. They will go to Erie first, then Ashtabula, Alliance, and over the Ft. Wayne to Chicago, returning to Pittsburg by way of the Panhandle. This is the ninth annual inspection of the Pennsylvania Company's lines.

A two-time millionaire tells THE DISPATCH that he is pouring out his heart's affections and $12 diamond engagement rings at the feet of a haughty Chicago beauty, and she will have none of it. He stated positively that there were other men in the world just like him in that respect, and he had no idea of being peculiar. He gave his name as George Siegel and said he was a nephew of the famous General.

Siegel says he is engaged to Miss Nina Van Zandt, who became prominent during the trial of the Anarchists in Chicago. He sent her an engagement ring, but she failed to acknowledge its receipt. He knows she is willing to marry him, because some friends road a statement to that effect in a newspaper, and now he desires Miss Van Zandt to name the day. Mr. Siegel sums up his condition by paraphrasing Tennyson's "Mariama in the Moated Grange." "I am aweary, I am aweary, I would that I were wed."

At this meeting questions of interest to humanitarians will be dis-

President Eaton said yesterday: "The care exercised by humane societies over helpless children, who are orphaned by the desertion of their natural protectors, is by no means a secondary object, but has resulted in inestinable good to those thus protected as well as the community. The influence of parental example and the inevitable association with the ignorant and debased, when youth is left to follow the bent of ignominious heredity, would unite, without the prompt inservention of these societies, in adding all these deserted little ones to the already rapidly accelerating forces of the criminal class, and in course of time work social and moral disorganization. Under the best conditions youthful hearts and minds are sufficiently prone to that which all good people exercised by humane societies over helpless ficiently prone to that which all good people avoid, showing the faulty pre-notal influence, which will require a score of generations un-der proper treatment to eradicate."

LIVELY SESSION.

Reformed Presbyterians Discuss An Affirmative Vote to Utilize Petty Crim-Whether They Should Vote.

THE MATTER REMAINS UNSETTLED.

A Committee Appointed to Decide About Charges of Heresy.

NAMES OF THE YOUNG MEN IN TROUBLE

The liveliness that was expected at the meeting of the Presbytery of the Reformed Presbyterian Church in Wilkinsburg came yesterday.

The church was crowded at the opening of the morning session, the most intense interest being felt in the matters to be discussed and all being anxious to see how the liberal members of the church would stand the fire. As THE DISPATCH stated yesterday, the memorials presented on Tuesday in relation to the free ideas put forth by certain ministers in Rev. O. B. Milligan's church, in the East End, on July 22, were to be referred to the Committee on Discipline, who were expected to report last night, and decidedly adversely to the men accused of schismatic

After a little routine business Prof. D. B. Wilson, of the Allegheny Theological Seminary, arose and stepped up to the clerk's desk with two papers in his hand. As he gave the papers to the elerk:

Prof. Wilson—Mr. Moderator, I should like these papers to be read to the Presby

The Moderator-The clerk will read them The clerk opened one of the papers and read to the effect that Rev. H. W. Reed, pastor of the R. P. Church at Youngstown O., had warmly commended a certain plat form adopted at a meeting of ministers in Rev. O. B. Milligan's church on July 22 last. Since everyone in the church had heard that Mr. Reed was to be CALLED TO ACCOUNT for his action on that occasion, the paper was no surprise, although significant remarks were made that that perhaps accounted for Mr. Reed being deposed from the position of assistant clerk of the Presbytery, which office he had held at the last meeting. The second paper set forth that Rev. H. W. Temple, pastor of the Brooklyn, Indiana county, Church, had subscribed to the same platform, and had, in addition, published in the Christian Union, of New York, over his own signature, the proceedings of the meeting at Rev. O. B. Milligan's church,

The platform adopted on that occasion was subscribed to by 17 of those members of the church who believed that reform in its principles was necessary. They represented five States and Territories and one-half of the Presteries of the United States. The platform is as follows:

First-That while we hold it to be the duty of for his action on that occasion, the paper as follows:

First—That while we hold it to be the duty of the church to maintain the most advanced testimony in behalf of truth and against error, yet the terms of the communion ought to be limited to the piain requirements of the Scriptures, namely faith in Christ and obedience to His revealed ple that it is a marvel that they were not brought out before; anybody might have done it, but somehow nobody did, and it inith in Christ and obedience to His revealed will.

Second—That persons who make a credible profession of Christ should be received into church membership on their acceptance of our testimony and the testimony of communion without binding them to any explanation in the matter of political dissent or any other questions.

Third—That restricted communion and not close communion nor open communion is the teaching of the Buble and of our standards.

Fourth—That interchange of pulpits should be allowed among those who preach the evangelical decirine of the gospel.

Fifth—That there should be organic union of the whole Christian church upon the basis of the plain teaching of the Scriptures.

Sixth—That free discussion should be allowed of our subordinate standards and of deliverance of Synod, testing them by the Bible, which is the only rule of faith and manners.

After remarks by Prof. Wilson and Rev. O.

B. Milligan, the leaders of the opposing faction, the papers were unanimously referred to the Committee on Discipline, with instructions to them to report in the afternoon.

ASKING FOR EXPLANATIONS. When Presbytery met in the afternoon the Committee on Discipline presented their re-port, which was to the effect that the accused parties be allowed to explain their position and parties be allowed to explain their position and defend it, if they could. All the afternoon was taken up in accordance with this suggestion. Mr. O. B. Milligan started the ball, and made a vigorous speech. He was followed by others of the 17 who had drawn up the platform to which the concernations objected. which the conservatives objected.

which the conservatives objected.

Prof. Wilson mane several earnest speeches, that were listened to with the respectful attention they demanded, and when an adjournment was taken for supper it was evident that neither side was disposed to yield an iota.

In the evening an attempt was made to come to some decision. Speeches were made by the score, but they were mainly repetitions of the same idea. The liberals stuck to their guns manfully, and as one of the conservatives said, pathetically.

After a great deal of talk the Moderates.

pathetically.

After a great deal of talk, the Moderator, Rev. David McAllister, offered as a compromise a paper that it was desired the recaltitrant members of the church, who had favored the platform promulgated in Rev. O. B. Milligan's church, should sign. The paper was read and discussed from all points of view, but it did not seem to bring the presbytery any nearer a determination as to what should be done on the case of the two persons that were on trial, as it were.

WILL TRY THE HERETICS. As this paper was not accepted by the liberal party, Prof. Wilson presented another, to the effect that the liberals should promise not to preach or put forth their ideas upon the voting question until the next meeting of Synod whatquestion unit the next needing of Synod, what-ever they may think: that Synod's attention should be called to this matter, and that it should finally decide what was to be done in connection with it.

Finally part of the report of the Committee

Finally part of the report of the Committee on Discipline was agreed to, which provided that the Committee on Supplies should nominate, and Presbytery appoint, a committee to act as a judiciary in the case of the young men accused of heretical tendency, who should decide whether charges should be brought against them, and to report to a special meeting of Presbytery to be called for that purpose. This seemed to be coming as near to a final arrangement as was possible, and there the matter ment as was possible, and there the matter rests.

Following are the names of the 17 gentlemen who promulgated the platform that has caused all the trouble: J. T. Carson, A. Ernisse (elders), N. M. Johnston, S. D. Johnston, A. W., H. P. and J. K. McCllurkin, J. McCullough, J. C. K., R. J., J. S. T. and O. B. Milligan, A. R. Mitchell, H. W. Reed, S. J. Shaw, H. W. Temple and J. R. Thompson.

After deciding to hold the next meeting at Beaver Falls on the second Tuesday in April, Presbytery adjourned. Presbytery adjourned.

An overpowering number of country folks, mostly Junior Order people, were at the big show. The programme was very well selected, and consisted chiefly of patriotic airs, purely American.

To judge from yesterday's vote at THE DISPATCH headquarters in the Brunswick-BalkeCollender Company's space, public opinion favors making netty criminals extenuate their offenses to the State by cracking stone on the roads. The wording of this question was,
"Should petty criminals in judi and workhouse

Some of the affirmative reasons were, "Would result in less crime," "Make them pay their board," "It would have a restraining effect," "It will teach them to be of service to the State," "It would mean less crime and better State," "It would mean to be shadown as were, "For the sake of their future," "Might escape," "Would put a number of men out of employment," "It would benefit the county, but injure the unfortunates," "To err is human, to forgive

The Kirk Patents. It must be borne in mind that but a few days are left in which to examine these wonderful patents in Mechanical Hall. The exhibit has created a profound impression; for in these matters displayed have been found the solutions to that vexed question of the best system for slack water navigation. You may hear about a model and may think you understand it, but there is nothing like seeing it in motion, that is, a working model. In this instance of the great lock, with its gates rising and falling as required, the whole matter becomes plain, and you comprehend why this invention is so valuable, and how it will reduce the difficulties of passing through the locks to a min-imum. Indeed, with this new plan, it will be so interesting to prove by personal experience that the boat does not have to stop her engine, and that no time is lost, that travelers will really look forward to enjoying what has hitherto been an annoyance and vexation. It is the people who have given most thought to these matters that so cordially indorse these inventions, and admit without reservation that they are practicable; that they can be built at moderate expense; that they will be durable when built; that they are worth having, and will be the systems of the future. These locks are apparently se sim-

The steam drills in this exhibit are as interesting as can be, as they work away so energetically, while in contrast to them is the array of handsome canisters, presumably filled with high explosives, sporting and blasting powder, but it is only the outward semblances of the terrific weapons of destruction, the packages being filled with harmless materials so that no visitors these goods have never been seen, and to view these fac similes is both safe, interesting and instructive.

ORIGINAL PACKAGES. THE CHIEF CASE BEFORE THE SUPREME COURT JUDGES. ilverman's Appeal From the Quarter Ses sions Court Heard Yesterday-A Case Against Oliver Bros. & Phillips Was Also Argued-Cases Quickly Disposed of.

The leading case before the Supreme Judges yesterday was the appeal of Silverman, the Leechburg original package man. Silverman opened an original package house in Leechburg on the strength of the United States Supreme Court's decision, representing himself as an agent for the Cincinnati Brewing Company and selling beer in "original packages." He was sued for selling liquor without liceuse to minors and persons of intemperate habits, indicated and convicted. The court refused to allow the "oniginal package" claim and a special allocatur was obtained from the special allocatur was obtained from the Supreme Court. It is claimed that the section of the act of 1887 on which the indictment was made is in conflict with the Constitution of the United States and of Pennsylvania.

The counsel for Silverman contended that all acts of Assembly tending to regulate inter-State commerce are unconstitutional. Liquor, he said, is as much an article of commerce as clothing. The police laws of the State did not apply to this case.

The counsel for the Commonwealth presented the case as a man openly and confessedly violating the laws of the State, then assuming the position of an injured victim and asking the lating the laws of the State, then assuming the position of an injured victim and asking the court to administer those laws for immunity from punishment.

An argument was had in the case of Lars Anderson against Oliver Bros. & Phillips, appealed by the plaintiff from the Common Pleas of Lawrence county. The sult was for damages for injuries caused by imperfect brakes on a car. Anderson was non-suited on the ground of contributory negligence, but an appeal was taken and the claim made that the company should provide safeguards for the protection of the employes.

should provide safeguards for the protection of the employes.

Shortly before adjourning yesterday Chief Justice Paxson disposed of eight cases in very quick order. The cases were appeals of Peck and others from the Common Pleas of Potter county. The end of the list was reached ten minutes before adjourning time, and the attorneys not appearing, Justice Paxson nonprossed the lot of eight cases.

The Supreme Court yesterday concluded the list of cases for this week and adjourned tintil Monday, when they will take up the cases from Indiana, Washington and Butler counties.
