THE FUTURE AFRICA

Their deliberations and the different ramifications of their work cannot but have a great influence in missionary matters the world over. The convention opened with about 200 delegates representing the different seminaries of the United States. The forenoon was given up to an informal reception of the delegates. Rev. H. T. McClelland, D. D., of Western University, delivered the opening address at 3 P. M. C. H. Stacksubject showed that the text was a familiar one to him and many new and interesting points regarding the future of the ever interesting "Dark Continent" were brought out. An ontline of the paper is appended:

THE CENTURY DIVIDING LINE. The pre-eminent event of the closing years of this century is the partition of A 'rica and the leading question o' the coming century will be the regeneration of this vast, but hitherto comparatively unknown and ost unthought-of dark land. "I am in a hurry to read this paper, for fear day is not the Africa of yesterday or to-mor day is not the Africa of yesterday or to-morrow. The world is thinking and acting on this subject, and we live in a time when prophecy is fast becoming history. History is fast proving these prophecies.

"All the maps of Africa are antedated, and they will continue to be. For, though Africa has, indeed, at last been formally introduced to the world and all the princinal geographical problems solved, yet the army of explorers, political, commercial, scientific and missionary,
that are to follow will reveal for generations secrets of nature and possibilities of civilizaecrets of nature and possibilities of civiliza on that will keep historians and geographers n a constant state of revision. For I hope that in a constant state of revision. For I hope that it may be impressed upon our minds that we are dealing with a field whose capabilities are untold, and, too, that the timing of its wonderful opening is a striking fact. The activity of the scientific and missionary spirit, the means of rapid communication and wide exploration make it possible for this quick age to do for Africa in half a century what for the American continent it required three fall centuries."

Mr. Stackpole reviewed at length the strife of nations for the possession of Africa. All eves are now turned to this section of the world, and its regeneration means the addition of many mighty nations to those now existing and the development of a country that sur-

and the development of a country that sur-passes that of the United States in extent and with as great possibilities as first lured the set-tlers across the Atlantic.

In the course of the reading Mr. Stackpole referred to an extract from a London paper aying: "We may possess Africa in an absolute cace and grow nations in its vast culturable lains and in the valleys of its broad most one, valleys that would hold state, and over toins, valleys that would hold states, and over its mineral regions, which, if rumor may be trusted, are as much richer as they are vaster than Colorado. The natives—we are always hearing about the natives—but what harm can they so, unless it be a barm when an empire is being founded to provide cheap labor?" Eng-label is universally a grabber. Germany is cou-mercially jealous. Why? There must be some value in this black diamond. The avarice of the world is aroused, and here is a leason for the world is aroused, and here is a lesson for SLAVE TRADE OF CENTRAL AFRICA. The slave trade was mentioned. A half millchildren are sold in Central Africa yearly, and large sections depopulated by the slavehunters. The natives have their own slaves and this evil is the great yoke that is to-day pull and this evil is the great yoke that is to-day pulling Africa down. Arabs take slaves to barter for ivery and other articles, and on the Utangi river the standard of commercial value is flesh, which is easen by the cannibals. Human beings are also the victims of religious rites.

The slave trade in Egypt, where 25,000 beings are under shackles, and in other European countries was spoken of at length. The Berlin Anti-Slavery Conference of Nations was commended for its efforts to abolish slavery and the fact commented on that the United State- under a Democratic administration had refused to problish the sending of rum to the benighted land. Some statistics on the exportation of spirits was given and the doubt expressed whether rum or slavery was Africa's worst curse.

Mr. Stackpole said that another danger to Africa was the introduction of Mohammedism. The Soudan has a population of 90,000,000, and not a single Christian minister. Other large sections had never heard of the true gospel, while false doctrines were flourishing.
In closing his paper Mr. Stackpole said that "He who thinks that in the evolution of Africa" "He who thinks that in the evolution of Africa" to its civilization the Caucasian will be the future dominant power, is mistaken. 'Twill not be as with America. The natives will not fade as before the break of man. The negroes and native races, clothed in their right minds, will rule the future nations of Africa and be the coming lords. 'Tis left to the Caucasians to point them the way. The regenerated Africa will linkers the vices as well as the virtues of the Caucasians, and the stamp of Europe and America will be upon the future enlightened people."

After a discussion of Mr. Stackpole's paper, Mr. W. H. Cossum, traveling secretary of the

His subject was: "David Living-stone, or Man's Work and God's in Missionary Endeavor." The Doctor, after a short intro-duction, gave a retrospect of foreign mission work from the ting that subscriptions amounted to a little over $300 until the present, when they reach $11,000,000; when there was not a single missionary Bible, and now when they are printed in 300 languages; when there was not a single missionary, and now when there are 100,000.
