BETS FOR A BLUFF.

Big Wagers Being Made on the Result of the Pennsylvania Gubernatorial Election.

DELAMATER MEN'S SMALL CLAIMS.

Al Carlisle Estimates Pattison's Majority in the State at From 30,000 to 40,000.

COLORED DEMOCRATS GETTING IN LINE.

Republican State Committee Sending to Pittaburg Subscriptions.

That money talks has long been asserted and its clarion notes fracture the innocen and non-partisan welkin as the possessor of ready cash states in strident notes that "I'll bet you &- he's elected," referring to Delamater or Pattison, as the case may be, It is safe to say that the money offered in bets on the Pennsylvania Gubernatorial election would knock Uncle Sam's surplus so high that it would never reach the vaults of the Treasury again. Men with the appearance of unlimited boodle reach down in their pockets with an air of assurance that paralyzes the amateur bluffer who has a modest roll of $200 or $300, and he hastily explains, "I am not a betting man, but if I were that's the way I would bet." Occasionally the modest man is possessed of nerve as well as cash, and planks up the "long stuff." Then his opponent changes the conversation to the fruitful subject of the weather. But still some of these bets do go, and the money

BETTING ON MAJORITIES.

It is difficult to keep track of the bets made. Many men back their political opinions with cash, who would shudder if their names were placed under the category of gamblers. Then there are others who do not care to see their money gathered in by the poor officials, as provided by law.

Quite a large amount of money was placed in bets yesterday, but the Delamater men will not give even money on more than 15,-600 majority in the State, or 1,500 in Allegheny county, notwithstanding the fact that Beaver carried the county by 6,900 and the State by 43,000. In Quincy Robinson's place yesterday, $500 even were put up that Delamater would not have 15,000 majority in the State, and the same amount that he would not have 10,000 majority. An Allegheny contractor put up $1,000 which says that Delamater would not have 15,000 majority, and late last night $500 were put up which talked the same way. A Second ward politician has $2,500 on Pattison in small bets at even money and 5 to 4. An Allegheny City oil man has put up $500 against $400 on Delamater. Another bet of $1,000 was made in a newspaper office that Delamater would not have 15,000 majority. A large amount of Pattison money is expected to be on tap at Quincy Robinson's this morning ready to take anything that looks reasonable.

TAKEES WAITING ANXIOUSLY. It has been common talk for some time that a Government official in Pittsburg had $15,000 in his safe which he would put out on Delamater at the last minute to make sentiment. It was also understood that a prominent Pattison man was only awaiting its appearance to take it up. It is now claimed by some that the money has been ground. It was common talk last evening that ex-State Chairman Cooper had called back $6,500 he had sent to a Pittsburg hotel man to bet on Delamater. T. J. O'Leary, Jr., said last night:

"These bets are merely bluffs, intended to create sentiment. It's like a boy whistling to keep up his courage while he walks through a graveyard. A good deal of this money is bet several times over. It was done the same way in New York in the last Presidental election. A good many of these men who bet get a friend to hold the stakes; then they borrow the stakes and bet again. In this way they create the impression that they have lots of money and any amount of fuith in their candidate. It's only a bluff. At the Independent headquarters Chairman Blair said: "Are we making bets? Oh, no. We are poor people here. We have no money, but we've plenty of

AL CARLISLE'S VIEWS.

He Thinks Pattison Will Have From 30,000 to 40,000 Majority at a Fair Estimate. Al Carlisle returned home from a run through Ohio last night. During his absence he devoted considerable time to sizing up matters in Major McKinley's district. and he is of the opinion that Warwick will win the fight in spite of the tremendous fight being made against him.

Turning to the situation in this State Mr.

Carlisle said: "I am not thoroughly posted on the situation in Pennsylvania, but from what I see, from what I hear, and from the general tide of public opinion I believe that Pattison will have from 30,000 to 40,000 majority at the lowest calculation. I do know that the Democrats ever had a better organization in the State, while the Republican campaign has been a series of blunders and mistakes. No matter how brainy man Quay may be, he has had the Republican party in hot water since Harrison's Every issue that has been raised in this State during the present fight by boomerang. With the fireside home and of his own party arranged against him, if Delamater can win I freely admit that I am mistaken, as I do not want to figure as a post mortem prophet."

MR. PHILLIPS ISN'T WORRIED.

He Says He Will Make an Affidavit of Denial if Necessary.

Mr. T. W. Phillips, the Independent Congressional candidate from New Castle, seems to be in Pittsburg every day of late. Mr. Phillips said yesterday that he would pay no attention to Dickerson's statement, which was false, but if it was necessary he will make an affidavit to that effect. "It would be strange, indeed," "that I would go into this kind of a fight and then say that I expected to be elected by Democratic votes. Captain Maxwell, of Greenville, and I were talking together when this man Dickerson approached me. I do not remember what I and nothing of importance was talked about. Captain Maxwell, who was present, has already denied Dickerson's statement, and that ought to settle it. I didn't go into this fight for fun, and I expect to win."

SHORT OF MONEY.

State Chairman Andrews Sends to Pittsburg for Financial Assistance.

Money is becoming a scarce article with the Republican State Committee. Yesterday State Chairman Andrews sent two letters to a Pittsburg bank, asking for an immediate and large subscription, stating that it was needed urgently. No response has been made so far to the appeal.

A ROUSING MEETING

HELD BY PROHIBITIONISTS IN LAFAYETTE The Lack of Numbers Made Up by En thusiasm--Speeches for the Suppo the Ticket-Campaign Songs by a Choir, and the Collection Box Passed. The Prohibition rally in Lafayette Hall last evening, was what cold water enthusiasts would term "a rousing old meeting." There were not many present, comparatively speaking, but there was plently of enthusiasm in the applause and frequent audible commendations of the speakers' remarks Another similarity to a church gathering was the number of ladies present. Among the number present were noticed a number of the most ardent temperance workers in the city.

A choir of nine ladies and gentlemen filled in the time between speeches by singing such songs as "When Election Day Comes Round We'll All Be There." The ladies, under the present status of affairs, were, of course, speaking for the men. Another church feature was the passing of the collection boxes.

Rev. Mr. Covert, of Westmoreland county, was the first speaker, and was followed by John D. Gill, a candidate for Governor. After Mr. Gill had given lengthy arguments in support of prohibition, going over the familiar paths of temperance speakers, Colonel George W. Bain took the floor. The Colonel was applauded from the beginning to the end of his speech, which was of that serio-humorous character for which he is famous. He said he would rather stand there with that little band on God's side than with all the hosts on the outside. "Grant," he said. "took Fort Donaldson by local option and Vickshap he acceptant would be said. Vicksburg by constitutional amendment, but 'on to Richmond' was the cry." The speaker would help a place by local option, a State by constitutional amendment, but "on to Washington" washis cry. He would stop a while at Harrisburg on the way, however. Prohibition would settle all the questions in this country, including those between capital and labor, and it would pro-tect the home. Wanamaker, he said, a few years ago told him that if he would wait until they settled the tariff question, they would swing in and settle the temperance would swing in and settle the temperance question. It is now time to swing in. But neither of the old parties will take up the question. Quay and the other side, he added, are fighting to get the influ-ence of the liquor element, and neither party will touch the temperance question. He concluded by requesting all to vote for John D. Gill for Governor.

After another song by the choir, Judge Campbeil, of Uniontown, the Prohibition candidate for Congress in the Twenty-ourth district, was called on, and made a few re-

COLONEL SCOVEL'S OPINION." -  He is Banking Much on Delamater and T.

W. Phillips. Colonel James M. Scovel, a Philadelphia newspaper man, who found $25 per night and expenses to speak for Delamater more profitable than writing for the papers, has finished his stump speaking in Western Pennsylvania, or par-ticularly in Beaver county, where he has spent much of his time. Before leaving Beaver yesterday he had a chat with Senator Quay, and was shown a tele-gram from Thomas Power that Philadel-phia will give the ticket 20,000 majority. He says the Senator expressed great confidence about the result, and as for himself he has no doubt about the result.

The Colonel thinks that T. W. Phillips is the only man in the Twenty-sixth Congressional district who can win the fight. He is inclined to believe that Major McDowell is not in it. Dick Quay, he says, will pull through with the regular majority.

Chairman Blair, of the Independent Republicans, said yesterday: "A number of men who have been on the fence are now getting off on our side. Among them are a number of city employes. BRAND NEW

Offered for Sale by an Association Hailing From Baltimore

IN EXCHANGE FOR A FEW DOLLARS.

Thyele M. Lamb, the Local Agent, Lucidly explains flow it is Done.

The Merchants' and Mechanics' Bond and Savings Association, of Baltimore, is an institution which has been newly chartered in the Monumental City. During the last ten days it has established a "Branch for Allegheny, with offices located in Pittsburg," as a circular states, and on the same evidence. Theyle M. Lamb is the manager, with offices in room 38, Dallmeyer building, 96 Fourth avenue. With a laudable desire to acquire some information regarding the new acquisition to the city's business ranks and its modus operandi, a DISPATCH reporter entered the elevator in the building mentioned, yesterday afternoon. "Mr. Lamb has offices in this building?"

was inquired of the runner. "Yes, sir. Room 38, third floor." "Many people calling to see him?" "Oh yes, a good many; maybe 30 or

"How long has he been here?" "Not very long; little more than

AT THE LOCAL HEADQUARTERS, A shingle displayed outside room 38 indicated the headquarters of the Pittsburg manager of the concern. Entering, Mr. Lamb was found busily writing within a brass-railed inclosure, while a clerk pored over a set of books at the opposite end. It only needed a crowd of bond purchaserson this occasion wanting-to give the place a decidedly business-like character.

When Mr. Lamb had finished his corre spondence he turned his attention to the visitor. The latter was anxious to obtain some information regarding the op of the association. For answer, Mr. Lamb tendered the newspaper man a pamphlet setting forth the advantages to be derived setting forth the advantages to be derived from an immediate purchase of the associa-tion's bonds. Its object was stated to be: To encourage the masses of the people to save and provide for the future by judicious investment, and to all who are "wide awake" and wish to invest, we offer the best and most successful system which has ever been ad-vocated in this "new world" of inventive genius. We offer for your inspection our bonds as follows:

Face Admis- Month- Quar of sion ly teriy bond, fee, dnes, dues These bonds, being secured by our redemp-tion and reserve funds, are as good as the United States Government, which have ever been a favorite form of investment, etc.

REDEMPTION OF THE BONDS. The circular proceeds to state that the onds are redeemed in numerical order, the lower numbers being called first, and citing this as a reason for immediate investment. The bonds, according to the circular, are called in as they become due, in numerical order, and are paid at the following rate: If called within the first year, they are paid at 50 per cent of their face value; the second year, 60 per cent, and so on up to the sixth year, when they are redeemed at par value. The first bonds are to be called on the 15th of January, and regularly at every month thereafter. Lapses are calculated to average 24 per cent per annum, and the last bond is expected to be called in in about four years. Every bond that lapses brings the next number above it one point nearer to redemption; for when a bond becomes due, and has lapsed, it is skipped and the next number

"Supposing, Mr. Lamb," inquired the reporter, "that I purchase a bond for $500, what will it cost me?"

COST OF A $500 BOND. "It will cost you $3 admission fee, and you will have to pay $2 every month for dues."
"When will I get the $500?"

"Whenever it is called. If there are no bonds before you you will get $250 on the 15th of January, when the first call is "Well, supposing that several bondholders desire to call in their bonds at that time, what then?" "Oh, then, only bonds will be paid which there is enough money to meet. The bonds are paid out of the receipts for their sale. If we sell, for instance, 100 bonds before the 15th of January, we shall have $700 to meet any bonds called in."

"Is this the only fund to meet the demand

"Oh, we have a reserve fund of $50,000. but that is not for the purpose of meeting such claims."

Reference to the circular here showed that this "reserve fund" was to satisfy the claims of the last bondholders.
"The bonds," continued Mr. Lamb, "are only called in in numerical order. They begin with No. 1, and so continue up to 10,000, the number we expect to place here. They will only be redeemed in rotation and called in in numerical order; those holding the earlier numbers, of course, being paid first."

AN UNEXPECTED CASE.

"Suppose several early bonds fell due for redemption in January, where are the lunds to meet them?"
"We don't expect they will. In that case we would pay just as many bonds as we had money to meet them." 'Have you done much business here?"

"We have not got well started yet. In fact, we are only beginning, but we have sold 20 of series A, 10 of series B, and 10 of Mr. Lamb expressed entire confidence in the success of the plan, and said he had no doubt he would sell the whole 10,000 here. He had been appointed agent for all of Penusylvania west of Altoona. He had een with the house in Baltimore, and was ocquainted in the mode of doing business.

Other branches would be established in Harrisburg and Wheeling.
In reply to a question, Mr. Lamb said that while other schemes had had a very short life, they were of a different character to his institution. He said he had leased the offices till April, 1892 with power to sub-lease, as he wanted to move into larger quarters suitable to his business. On THE DISPATCH represents tive leaving, Mr. Lamb asked him where he had seen his advertisement.

"In THE DISPATCH."
"I shall have a much larger one in another paper to-morrow." APPLICATION TO REFERENCES. "Can I apply to the references you men-

"Certainly." The reporter withdrew, without deeming t necessary to disclose his identity. In pursuance to Mr. Lamb's permission to apply to the reference, dispatches were sent to two banks in Baltimore. The First National Bank replied: "We know noth-ing about them," and the Old Town Bank, especially referred to by Mr. Lamb as knowing the members of the directory, replied "Parties of good character, not large

The association was incorporated on the 3d of August, by Louis Strasburger, Frank I. Murphy, Thomas H. Musgrove, Thomas R. Wheeler, H. S. Regester, Charles E. Ehmann and Charles H. Evans, all of whom to pay current expenses.
When S.C. Bergstresser of the Insurance

World, was asked what he thought of the plans of the association, he said:

"A man investing money in a lottery has some chance of winning, but none whatever under such business arrangements as proposed in this circular. It is a bait throw out to honest wage earners, and I prophec out to nonest wage earners, and I prophecy the concern won't last a year. Such institutions should be prohibited from doing business. If the investments could be shown to be of a legitimate nature, and returned to the bondholders with an increase, there would be nothing to be said, but—well, I wouldn't like to buy any of the honds."

Speaking of the aid and loan associations which had lately bursted, Mr. Bergstresser SOMETHING ABOUT BENEFIT SCHEMES said: "They are a fraud on the working classes, and the managers of such companies are not any more responsible than Sefton and Dunn, who were convicted of swindling in connection with a building and loan scheme."

"Argus," in the current issue of the Insurance World, under the caption of "Standing Room Only," says: ANOTHER MAN'S IDEAS.

Fool-catching schemes are getting so plentiful of late that one gets tired of recording them. That of the People's Mutual Benefit Associa-tion, of Rochester, N. Y., is so extremely fresh, however, that I willingly accord it notice. In this scheme the members are numbered-I might say its days are also, but that doesn't might say its days are also, but that doesn't matter. Each member pays an initiation fee of $10, and monthly dues of $1 25. Beginning at No. 1, each member is paid $1,000 as fast as enough money is received. It's a cold day when the officers get left, and so of course their names appear among the first in the list. As they report 138 names aiready on the list, the ground floor must be pretty well occupied by this time. Schemes of this kind supply a "long feit want," in that they serve to fill the hungry pockets of speculators. In the meantime it seems to me that the law which covers sawdust game and confidence men might be made to apply in such cases.

MORE STREET RAILWAYS.

The Perry Line Ordinance Affirmatively Reported to Allegheny Councils. The Committee on Street Railroads Allegheny met last night. A petition of Mrs. E. C. Kreiling for the removal of old car tracks on Charles and Sarah streets was referred to a sub-committee. A supplimentary ordinance to the ordinance granting the Perry Street Railway Company the right to lay a single track on Perry street, Williams street, Long Lane, Green street, Madison avenue, Second street, East street, North street to connect with the Pleasant Valley lines at Federal street, was affirmatively returned to Councils.

W. H. Graham, of the Pleasant Valley appeared before the committee and asked the privilege of constructing their road on a macadamized base along California avenue until such time as the avenue is paved, also that they be allowed to use "T" rails. The request was granted.

HALLOWEEN PRANKS. Some of Them Too Loud to be Overlooked

by the Police. There was scarcely need of reminding any person that last night was All-Halloween. If anyone had forgotten the fact, the pranks of the small boys were a sufficient reminder. Out Fifth avenue some boys, particularly mischievous, broke three stoves belonging to J. Grimburgo, a hardware dealer. One of the boys was caught by an officer and sent to the Eleventh ward station. A wagon owned by Philip Doyle and loaded with coal was started down the hill and wrecked. Pittsburg Flooded With Circulars, and the Government Notified.

THE POSTMASTER AWAITING A REPLY

Postmaster McKean is now anxiously awaiting a reply to a letter sent by him to the pestal authorities at Washington regarding the deluge of Mexican lottery communications now being sent to parties in Pittsburg and passing through the mails en route to other cities. He has received these circulars from persons all over the city, who had been sent them through the mails and wished to call the postmaster's attention to this seeming defiance of the new anti-lottery law.

As would appear from the communications received, the new anti-lottery law, while pretty effectually stopping the successful operations of lottery companies in the United States, has not resulted in crushing out the business. Instead, it has only transferred the points of operation from the United States to other countries. And, instead of the thousands of dollars going into the pockets of Americans, Mexicans and citizens of other countries capture the huge profits.

MONEY LEAVING THE COUNTRY. By the present traffic, not only the citizens of the United States lose their hardearned money, but the country loses it also. Before, the money in part benefited the State of Louisiana directly, and benefited all by so much more free circulation. Now the money leaves the States, and other foreign countries reap the benefits.

These foreign companies, according to their statements, can openly defy the anti-lottery law, and send their communi-cations openly through the mails. Uncle Sam may squirm, but the company will send its communications just the same, and for its vindication will rest assured of protection under the international posta treaty laws. What will be the result of the company's stand rests with the Government authorities at Washington to decide.

Pittsburg is now being flooded with com munications from the Loteria De La Bene-ficencia Publica, of the City of Mexico. The company has evidently obtained a city di-rectory, as the street addresses are given in every instance. It is also a strange fact that many of those receiving letters have in times gone by patronized the Louisians State Lottery. Whether this fact is merely a coincidence, or the latter company has something to do with it, has not been accorded. learned. It is stated as a possibility that that Louisiana State Lottery Company may have sold the addresses, or is in league with the Mexican concern.

pany says: The special attention of our patrons is re-spectfully invited to the fact that the terms of the new anti-lottery law do not and cannot in the least apply to letters sent to this company by ordinary mail. Therefore, correspondence with it can be continued with impunity and without risk whatsoever, precisely as hereto-fore.

The patrons are requested to address all communications simply to the name given as the manager of the company, without using the name of the lottery company. The inference drawn is that the company takes the stand that the Government has no right by law to open a letter directed to an individual. Remittances are to be made by bank exchange on New York or express money order. As an extra inducement the company offers to pay the express charges on all amounts of $3 and upward sent by the United States or Pacific Express Com-pany. Laredo, Texas, is designated as the transfer point to the Mexican National Ex-

Some people who received the circulars were of the opinion that the company is a bogus one, that hopes to make one or two good "hauls" of money, and then, if caught, would suspend operations. However, it is said that the company is an old and rich one, and has the support of the Mexican Government. Its officers are said to be members of Congress and others in government positions. The company gives large sums to the Charity Hospital of the City of Mexico, and is furnishing the funds

The circulars are inclosed in plain envelopes, with nothing on them but the ad-dress and stamp. How these letters could be recognized, even by the postal authori-ties, is a query advanced by many. Another point probably now under consideration by the Government is, whether it has the right

OH, WHERE IS FLAHERTY! Stockyard Men Want Him to Reclaim His

Thomas Flaherty left a horse at the stockyards in the East End for sale about three weeks ago. The other day a man offered him $110 for the horse, and Flaherty insisted on the buyer trying the animal. When he came back with the horse, Flaherty had disappeared, and has not been seen since.

The stockyard men can't sell the horse until his board amounts to $110, and they MARKED TO BE HELD.

The Last Rites Over the Victims of the Grant Street Fire.

Yesterday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock wo hearses drove up to the basement entrance of St. Paul's Cathedral. In one was a little white casket, trimmed in peach-blow velvet, and having on the top a beautiful wreath of flowers. In the other hearse was a large black casket. These two coffins contained father and daughter, the victims of Wednesday night's Grant street fire. It was intended to defer the funeral of Mr. Gauetelli and his daughter, Mary, until tomorrow, but on account of the fire's havor, the effect of the embalming fluid was lost. Mr. Gauetelli was a member of the Italian congregation of St. Paul's Cathedral, and one of the Italian priests officiated. Among those who gathered in the church were a number of firemen and those who had worked so hard in vain to save the lives of the two then lying in their tuneral robes. Mrs. Davy, mother of Mrs. Gauetelli, took charge of the funeral arrangements. Interment took place in St. Mary's Cemetery.
