GOAL MEN'S INNINGS

Retail Prices May Go Up a Little During the Winter, but Not Very Much.

THE RIVER OPERATORS' WANTS

A Return to the Use of Coal Here Would Take Away Some Lively Competitors,

RAILROAD MINERS ARE VERY HOPEFUL

They Are Getting New Business and Inquiries for Mer-Coming In.

No material advances have been made in the price of the old reliable article that forms one of the corner-stones of Line burg's wealth as yet, but the tendency is upward, and moderate increases in prices may be looked for within the next few weeks.

A number of coal men were seen by representatives of THE DISPATCH, yesterday, and their opinions on the outlook of trade solicited. Mr. I. N. Bunton, manager for Joseph Walton & Co., said that if affairs with the gas producers were as reported they would be indirectly benefited. If there was a genuine shortage in supply, or if the demand was so great for domestic uses, they would be the gainers. "We do not furnish a pound of coal for use in Pittsburg," he added, "but the mines that formerly supplied the local trade came into competition with us with the discovery of natural gas, COAL PROM THE FOURTH POOL.

"This coal was nearly all mined in the fourth nool and was sent into the lower river markets. As it could be mined considerably cheaper than that in the second and third pools, the result was the competition kept advantage. The shipment of coal in flats to this market is on the increase, but just what it will amount to no one can tell at present. We have made no advance in prices yet and do not expect to at present. Captain W. W. O'Neil, another heavy river operator, said: "For a year past the shipment of coal to this market in flats has been on the increase, and the business is growing daily. An increase in demand for fuel will quite likely elevate prices a little and the down river shippers will be bene-

F. M. Jenkins & Co. at present supply a city, the most of it coming from the fourth

DOESN'T ANTICIPATE A BOOM Mr. Jenkins said yesterday that while people generally were looking for a boom in the business, he did not anticipate any such result. He said that the old iron firms, such as Jones & Laughlins, the Carnegies, Painters, Olivers, Park Bros. and the Republic Iron Works, that formerly sepended entirely on coal, now had natural gas lines of their own and they seemed to be getting a fair supply of fuel from them. Their orders constituted a large per cent. of the flat coal shipments, and no material increase in business had come from these The retail dealers he said, were all very hopeful and were looking for a good winter of it. The coal sold to retailers from flats was in excess of that sold by dealers in the railroad mine supply. first named were Thomas Hartley, Burke & Co., J. U. Gilchrist, C. G. Jackson, George Clark, Lue & Hamilton, Frank Clinton, R. C. Smith, J. M. McIlwain and John Dipple. Inquiry among plenty of business, and were taking on new customers, while many persons using natural gas were putting in stocks of coal for emer-gencies. The price is 8 cents per bushel,

J. Morton Hall, President of the Pittsburg and Chicago Gas Coal Company, rail-road operators, said they are taking on some new business, and that many inquiries by mail and otherwise were coming in daily. Mr. Hall, who has made a close study of the business here, said that natural gas had displaced 10,000 carloads of coal a day in Pittsburg. He looks to see considerable of this business returned, particularly if the natural gas companies knock out the 500 furnaces of the city mills. The prices for coal this winter, he said, would be higher than last, owing in part to the extraordinary demands made for coal for lake shipment during the season. He added that the local retail dealers might be a trifle short of coal at present, but that as soon as navigation closed, which would be in about two weeks, there would be plenty of cars.

Alexander Black, a railroad operator, "Oh, we have gotten past the point the gas business worries us. We where the gas business worries us. We stopped worrying about three years ago, and the local trade is now independent of the gas supply. We were forced to seek other markets, and found them. All this talk about the searcity of gas does not elevate our spirits, and if the tide should turn toward the other extreme, it would not depress us. The coal trade will not receive a om, and, so far as I can see, prices will not be affected.

A BLIGHT FLURRY JUST NOW. "Just at this time, when navigation with soon close, there is a slight flurry, and the lakemen are anxious to get all the coal they can. A man who is short will give more to get it, but what he pays cannot be taken as the market price, or as any indication of what it will be. It is true that we could get better prices now than what we are redesert those in their extremity who stood by | from $5 per pair upward.

"If the gas should play out, the city would be in a bad way for a few days. The docks are very low, and the lake trade is drawing heavily on the production. Most of the coal is going in that direction. When navigation closes for the year, of course, there will be a better supply here. Since the discovery of gas new coal fields have been discovered, and there is no scarcity of the black dimonds. Even if the mills go back to coal, the operators feel that it won't be much of a bonanza for them. Prices will be cut, and a number of new operators will be attracted into the business, who will find out there is not much in the coal trade after all. I don't believe the gas is failing, and when it comes to the pinch I think a good many men will pay the advance rather than use coal."

PRICES NO HIGHER THAN BEFORE. At the office of the National and Oak Ridge Company retailers of railroad coal, the manager said: "Prices are the same with us now that they were last year, 8 cents per bushel. We have lots of business, which is increasing, and we expect that prices will advance a little, perhaps half a cent per bushel, during the early winter. As a matter of fact we are entitled to a little advance. When the miners got what they saked for last May we had to pay more for coal, but we did not raise the re-tail price. With other fuel going up we should get our recompense at the same time. We are a little short of coal at present, but when navigation closes we will be all right."

At the offices of Latimer, Myers & Co., David Steen, Fred Greiner and others, about the same line of talk was indulged in, but in no instance was any positive as-sertion made that prices of the fuel would

NO COMPLAINTS YESTERDAY.

The Natural Gas Companies, as a Rule, Meet

The Philadelphia Company had a pleasant time of it yesterday so far as listening to the complaints of grumblers was concerned. The palatial office was free from kickers, and so far as the officials know the supply of the fuel was satisfactory.

Over in Allegheny the same conditions prevailed, and in consequence the Philadelphia people were happy. The People's Company is still short in its supply, but everything is being done to accommodate the private consumers. This, according to statements of the officials, will be a matter ho declared up and down that they would Coal men, as a rule, whether they come under the bead of operators or retailers, are taking a very hopeful view of the situation, as it is forced upon them by the present shortage of gas and the increased price of the same for fuel.

Ab declared up and down that they would abandon gas rather than pay the increased channel by the Philadelphia Company. The coal men and others directly interested in the matter, however, say that a great deal of this talk is in the order of speeches made in bluff, and that persons who can stand the present rates will make their ante good on December I rather than go to the expense of December 1 rather than go to the expense of tearing out present fittings and fixing up

It is stated on good authority that puddling furnaces will not again be placed on the list of the Philadelphia Company unless they are fitted out with economical burners and other gas-saving appliances.

GOOD YEAR FOR COAL MEN.

The Lake Erie Road's Record Will Probably be 80,000 Cars.

Navigation will close to the upper lake region points next Wednesday. The general rule is that boats can be run for two weeks longer to the lower lake stations. At this time there is a lively hustle among the coal men to fill contracts, and the lake peo-ple who have vessels to load don't care to go back empty.

In speaking of the coal trade yesterday,
a Lake Erie official said: "The coal men admit that they haven't had such a good year for a long time, and this is saying a good deal for them, for you know how they kick. They have been independent, and instead of seeking markets, people have come to them. Our rolling stock has been greatly increased, and the fact is, that for once we were able to us down to se y fine margins. If we get rid furnish the cars as fast as the operators of this opposition of course it will be to our could load them. They haven't anything to complain about on this score.

"I think our record this year will be 80,000 cars of coal out of this territory.
Last year we carried 65,509 cars, and in 1888 the number reached 70,000 cars."

PLENTY OF GAS,

But Mr. Logan Says Not Enough Wells Have Been Put Down.

A. H. Logan, the oil and gas man and former partner of ex-Senator Emery, said yesterday that the gas fields are not exhausted, but not enough wells have been put down to supply the demand. Like the large quantity of the flat coal used in this | oil regions the gas territory has only been spotted, and there is plenty of gas and new fields will be found all the time. Mr. Lo-gan says the trouble has been that the price of gas is too low, and the companies didn't make enough to drill the wells required. He thinks the price should have been advanced long ago, and while the rates are higher than cosl, in the end he believes it will be cheaper for the domestic consumer. When the cost of removing ashes, the wear and tear on furniture is considered Mr. Logan believes a man will think a goo while before he will return to the use o

General Daniel H. Hastings was candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania before the recent Republican Convention. That convention nominated George Wallace Delamater for Governor. Major E. A. Montooth, of Allegheny county, was also a candidate for governmental honors before the same convention. What have these two gentlemen said in regard to the ticket since that convention adjourned? They have both declared, unequivocally and without hesitancy, that they would support it from top to bottom. Major Montooth has been interviewed by the newspapers of Allegheny county on several occasions, and has invariably expressed himself as intending to vote for Mr. Delamater, because, as he put it, "I am a good Republican, and I can't do anything else." Immediately after the convention, General Bastings declared in a public agent that the resolution of Delamaters and the search that the resolution of Delamaters and the search that the resolution of Delamaters are the search that public speech that the nomination of Dela-mater was fairly brought about, and that there was no reason why any good Repub-lican should not vote for him.
