It was not until along toward the close of the pertermances that the bulletins became nue-sided enough to cause extra enthusiasm. When the bullerins began to come in, with his figures for each side alternately, the buildings rang with the cheers. The orchestra struck up an air after each round, as a kind of finish to the outburst.

The large number of ladies the thestors was particularly notice-able. They seemed to greatly enjoy seeing the returns come in when their favorite candidates had won in a district, and joined in the cheering. One Lady in the Bijon ap-peared to be a thorough politician, from her conversation, which was everheard. She can culated the result in the "districts to be heard from." "the rural vote," and all such things, as though she had been on the samp and knew thoroughly the situation. See was not slone, either. ### WAITING FOR NEWS.

Large and Auxious Throngs Assemble in the Club Houses to HEAR THE ELECTION RETURNS.

Delamater Men Jubilant, While the Pattison People Are Sad.

GETTING PIGURES OVER THE WIRES

The rooms of all the political clubs and associations were crowded from 7 P. M. until the early hours of morning. The vanguard of Pattison's supporters in Allegheny county had assembled in the Randall Club, where the returns were sent in by private wire and Captain W. H. Barclay, candidate for the Secretaryship of Internal Affairs, presided over the eager party in the library, and read aloud the bulletins as they were handed in. The Captain showed the nerve of an old soldier, for he recited gains and losses alike, without displaying the slightest nervousness or emotion. Ex-Postmaster Larkin, who sat opposite the plucky chairman, kept up the spirits of the meeting by numerous and lively sallies at the expense of every newcomer. Dennis J. Boyle, worn and travel-stained from a fierce canvass, was greeted with acclamation, as "Our next County Commissioner." Mr. Boyle, however, proved modest; and blushingly exclaimed, "Wait a bit, gentlemen. Time enough to congratulate me when I'm elected." Louis Cella and B. Foley bustled about welcoming all comers, and distributing every item of news through the club rooms.

GENERAL GUTHRIE ENTHUSIASTIC. One of the most enthusiastic of those present was General Guthrie. "Hurrah, boys! the fight is ours," exclaimed the gallant General, at every favorable bulletin; and not even the most depressing intelligence could dampen his ardor.

Joseph Cuneo, leader of the Italian colony, occupied a prominent seat and appeared deeply interested. "If Pattison wins," said Mr. Cuneo, "the Italian bands will serenade the Randall Club."
"If he is beaten." murmured Mr. Larkin, "I presume the bands will play 'Razzle-dazzle.'"

Mr. McCrickart, who acted as secretary, sent an urgent telegram to ex-Chairman W. F. Haran urgent telegram to ex-Chairman W. F. Harrity, in Philadeiphia, asking for news: and Captain Barciay was in constant communication with Mr. Pattison and Chauncey F. Black.

At the Columbus Club, which is almost entirely Democratic, there was another private wire, but the returns did not excite nearly as much interest as in the Randall. An impression seemed to prevail from quite an early hour that Pattison would be snowed under, and the spirits of the members were accordingly low. Mr. James J. Flannery whispered hoarsely, "We have no hope. It will be a Waterloo, with our man on the wrong side." C. G. Dixon lost interest in the proceedings and left the bulletin room before 10 o'clock.

• Quite a scene was enacted in the club, when a prominent local Delamater supporter was compelled to leave, after being threatened with forcells a seem to be a light teacher of the allah compelled to leave, after being threatened with forcible ejection. In the County Democracy Hall the returns were read out as they came by private wire and telephone. W. J. Brennen was present, and Dennis J. Boyle looked in occasionally to see how things were going. Every Delamate victory was hailed with groans, and a storm of cheers greeted every announcement favorable In District Attorney Lyon's office several of the Delamater leaders gathered to hear the latest news. J. O. Brown, William Flinn and others spent a good deal of time figuring on Mr. Lyon's private returns. THOUGHT IT LOOKED BLUE. Independent headquarters, although not crowded to any great degree, were very lively, W. A. Magee, Chief Elliot, Hon, T. M. Marshall, and the Independent leaders were present in full force, although their hopes were not as high as they might have been. W. H. Gutelius sighed as he said. "I feel it looks blue for our side." Mr. Peter Shields, however, said: "We're not going to give in, not even if we are beaten." At Democratic headquarters, on Grant street, Everybody had his coat off, from Chief J. O. Brown down to the lowest compiler of campaign matter. There was a smile upon Mr. William Flinn's expressive countenance, and that smile plainly read: "Allegheny! Only for Allegheny City, there is no saying what might have happened."

At the Americus Club there was no private wire. There was a large amount of suppressed excitement, however, in the club rooms, and the news found its way to the club with nearly as much celerity as though there had been a wire.

Feud on Hand. "What will be the outcome of the split in the Republican party?" was a question asked quite often yesterday. When a DISPATCH reporter put the question to a prominent county official, who was returned to office by the people during the day, he replied: "Well, a wound has been made that will not soon be healed. For years the local Democrats have been torn asunder. and now I guess we must take our innings. No matter which faction comes into supremacy its nominees will have a very hard row to hoe. its nominees will have a very hard row to hoe. Supposing Magee nominates a man for Mayor? The result will be that the so-called Quay element in the city will be against him in addition to the opposition in our own party. The Quay people care for nothing here unless they can win all. The same will be true if the other faction gets the swing, and the Quay people will maintain the same attitude.

"The outlook is gloomy, as grievances exist that will not soon be wiped out. Both sides have their friends, and they will resent any and every affront on the part of the other people until the foud is wiped out."

Left in the Lurch. The Lotus Club members on the Southside were a mad set of men last night. Arrangements had been made to receive the returns by special wire. The wire was put in all right, but the operator did not make his appearance until Mr. Fred Gearing came over to the city after him at 10 clock.

Several Members Linger After Midnight to Ponder Over the Returns.

At the Americus Club rooms at 1 o'clock this morning only a handful of members were present. The wire had ceased its the little company click, remained was not in a cheerful frame of mind. Several were hovering over a gas jet mysteriously counting figures, when one of them said: "I understand some one has received a telegram here saying, 'Delawater running behind, Post your friends not to bet. Signed, Dick,' the Dick referred to being Dick Quay. If any man has such a telegram he ought to make it known to protect us." "Oh, shaw," said another, "I will be $100 now that Delamater is elected." NO MONEY PUT UP.

"No, no," the others answered in unison. "It isn't necessary to put up money. The election is all right." About this time the reporter asked the crowd what were the latest returns at the club. "Everything is very satisfactory," remarked one of them. "How is it on the street?" The question was not answered.

It was quite apparent that despite their protests the boys were not altogether satisfied with the figures. Other members stated that the reports were not assuring after 11 o'clock, and some wanted to see the figures for the claim of 30,000 made by Senator Quay early in the evening. About 12 o'clock operator at the club rooms asked the operator in Philadelphia how it was going, and he nearly fell off the chair when the reply came back: "Patti-son is elected." This threw a wet blanket on the enthusiasm of many, as the answer is supposed to have come as a private tip from the Republican headquarters. This put some of the boys to thinking, and when they began to examine the accepted returns in detail they found that Delamater would have to pull up somewhere if he expected to be elected. HOPING TO THE LAST. On the other hand, some of the members are still very hopeful, and they can't see how the State went Democratic. "Well, if Pattison is elected, this is the end of Quay in Pennsylvania," chimed in one of the boys who probably had been training with the other side and was anxious to see such an outcome. However, the club sent the following congratulatory message

The Postmaster Holds Up His End in the Seventh Ward. Postmaster McKean had been twitted so much about the possible outcome in Charleroi and his own ward, the Seventh, that he felt a personal pride in the result in both places. In Charleroi the vote was Delamater, 84: Pattison, 75, In the Seventh ward the Republican vote was 500, against 343 Democrats.

Remained to a Finish. At an early hour this morning Smithfield street, in front of THE DISPATCH office, was filled with people. They had forsaken the other office fronts and were gathering in the news from the best bulletin quarters ever seen in this city. The crowd remained in great num-bers until the hour of going to press, and at all times was demonstrative and fully alive to the good thing offered.

POLICE HUNTING FOR THE TARENTUM

Vague Description of the Men-Officer Mateer Describes His Battle with the Thieves-An Engineer's Failure to Arrest the Shooter to be Investigated. Special Officer Finney, of the West Penn Railroad, came to police headquarters yesterday and furnished Assistant Superintendent O'Mara with descriptions of the men who committed the robbery and shot Of-ficer Mateer at Tarentum Monday night, He said Mateer was still living, and physicians did not seem to think there was any immediate danger of his death. Only one shot took effect instead of three, as at first reported. Only two were fired at him, one striking a button on the front of Mateer's coat and glanced off without and, although the physicians have probed or it. Finney says the three robbers were about Finney says the three robbers were about Tarentum from 3 o'clock in the afternoon, having come in on a freight train from Apollo. They were seen early in the evening by Mrs. Beall. One of them was standing in front of Kennedell's jewelry store, comparing his watch with the regulator, which he could see through the window. Mrs. Beall tame to the door of her store and the man stepped up to her, asking where the jeweler was. He scenied pleased when she told him that Mr. Kennerdell had closed up for the night and gone home. She describes this man as a large man of dark complexion, about 35 years of age.

The impression prevails at Tarentum that the thieves intended robbing the jewelry store and expected to gain an entrance through the rear of the Eeali clothing store, falling in which they bundled up all the clothing they could carry and were leaving with it when discovered. One of the stolen overcoats was found near where Mateer was short research.

One of the stolen overcoats was found near where Mateer was shot yesterday. It had a bullet hole through the front of it, and Mateer where Mateer was shot yesterday. It had a bullet hole through the front of it, and Mateer thinks it was worn by the man at whom he fired after he fell. He says he fired one shot at the man, who first drew a revolver on him. The man fell, but immediately arose and started away. When Mateer caught up to the men he caught hold of one big man whose description tallied exactly with the one described by Mrs. Beall. The fellow offered no resistance, although he had a handybilly in his hand, and after the train started this same man got on the engine of the passenger train and asked to ride to the next station. When put off by Engineer Poorman, he left his billy lying on the floor of the engine. Engineer Poorman's conduct in not making an effort to secure this man is to be investigated by the railroad officials. He could not, it is alleged, have failed to know that he was one of the pursued party, as he was an eye witness of the shooting.

The chances of capturing the fugitives are not bright. They were last seen just opposite Cheswick station, seven miles below Tarentum, by Station Agent Armstrong, at 5 o clock yesterday morning. They were trying to cross the Allegheny river, but falling they walked on down along the river bank.

ALL TRAINS DELAYED.

The Limited and Cleveland Express Held Two Hours by Wrecks. All the trains centering in the Union station last evening were late. The limited was held for more than two hours by a wreck beyond The express from Cleveland was also delayed the same length of time by a small freight smashup. The St. Louis express on the Pan-handle was an hour late.

A Husband's Grief Upon Identifying the

The Polish woman who was struck by a train at the Clinton Iron Works siding on Monday night was identified vesterday afternoon by her hight was identified yesterday alternoon by her husband, as Laura Kowolenski, of No. 2518 Lebanon street, Southside, Kowolenski and his wife had been visiting friends in Chartiers and after spending the afternoon she started home shortly in advance. He followed soon after, but his wife had not reached home when he arrived. He spent the night and the creater part of yesterday looking for her. When he saw the remains at the morgue he became almost wild with grief and accused the railroad company with murdering his wife. Arrangements were made at once by his friends and the body was removed to his home. The Coroner's inquest will be fluished to-day.

The body of the man killed by a train in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad yards Monday evening was identified yesterday as that of MartingKreaske, allaborer at the Oliver Iron and Steel Works at South Twelfth street. He had been sent over the river on an errand, and was returning when the accident occurred. He boarded in Brownstown, Southside.

The remains of the man killed at the intersection of the Baltimore and Onio and Junction Railroads on Monday has not yet been identified, and are still lying at Flannery's undertaking rooms. sband, as Laura Kowolenski, of No. 2518
