STRUCK A GOOD GAIT.

Second Day's Session of the State Christian Endeavor Society.

GETTING DOWN TO THEIR WORK.

The Young Organization Shows a Remarkable Growth in Members.

MORE PERSONAL WORK THE NECESSITY

The second day's session of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, of Pennsylvania, in the Fourth Avenue Baptist Church, was even more largely attended than at the opening, Wednesday evening. All the members had little note books, and they seemed especially anxious to catch any useful points let fall by the speakers.

Rev. Dr. J. T. Beckley, President of the State organization, presided, and after devotional exercises, he made his annual address.

Dr. Beckley, in the course of his talk, said that the growth of the society had been remarkable. Over 40,000 names are now enrolled under their banner. Every year that is added to the list of the society only strengthens the pledges which have been subscribed to. The organization is perfect, but the danger lies in the efforts to build up the society instead of building up the young people.

The great object of the society, said the speaker, is to glorify the name of Christ. The world has many mighty problems to solve, and it is the object of the society to help solve them. He made a strong appeal to the members to help the emigrants who come to this country into the church.

GROWTH IN THE STATE.

J. Howard Breed, of Philadelphia, Secretary of the State organization, urged the members to renewed efforts in their work. He spoke of a meeting held by his society on the train bound for Pittsburg, and expressed the hope that the time was not far distant when services on railroad trains would be a not uncommon occurrence. The record on his books showed 702 Christian Endeavor societies that had reported and 304 not recorded. In these there is an active membership of 27,703, and an associate membership of 8,293. Before Mr. Breed sat down he invited a handful of names collected at the National Convention in St. Louis, and it was placed in front of the platform.

Mr. Alexander, one of the traveling secretaries, gave a description of the duties of his office and then Treasurer John H. Small's report was read. It showed a balance in the treasury of $24. Committees were then appointed on resolutions, nominations, place of meeting, registration and auditing.

MORE WORK NEEDED.

The convention sermon was preached by the Rev. George T. Purves, of Pittsburg, his theme being "The Latent Powers of Christianity." He dwelt particularly upon the unused resources of the church, comparing the great capacity of the minds of the ancient people to the dormant capacity of the present. The church boasts of the large number of missionaries sent out and of the quantity of money raised, but as a consequence of the riches of the church it is but a small sum.

He did not consider that in the scheme of church work the power of personality was brought forward as it should be. Personal influence could do more for humanity than almost any other power. The power of prayer is also unused. Convictions rule the world, and when one has the convictions of himself and not the convictions of his ancestors, he will at once become more zealous.

The reports of local unions followed. The report of the Allegheny Union showed that it had been organized about one year ago and the membership is nearly 2,500.

UNION OF CHRISTIAN WORKERS.

At the afternoon meeting Rev. Dr. H. L. Wayland, editor of the National Baptist, spoke briefly upon "Christian Work and Christian Union." He said that the enemies of the state, the church and the home were alive, and it became all Christians to unite, or else they would be beaten in the contest. Christian unity was not promoted by external violence, nor could it be promoted by any one denomination absorbing all other denominations. The providence of God allowed the growth of many Christian denominations. There was no denomination large and powerful enough to swallow all the rest. Christian unity is not to be promoted by gush, which the speaker defined as falsehood inflamed by idiocy.

All should be proud of their church and its doctrines. He believed that unity could be promoted if there was a better understanding between the different denominations, by treating other denominations with justice, and by not misrepresenting and taking unfair advantage of them. Christianity is a practical sentiment leading to work and begotten of work.

A half hour was then devoted to short addresses on the two subjects, "Work Among Non-Church Goers," and "What is Your Society Doing?" Mr. Murphy, of Bethany Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, introduced the subjects. He contended that members should recognize the personality of their work, and the fact that they must be in earnest. The Bethany Society circulated printed invitations and when the pastor announced from the church they were welcome. Their Sunday evening services was mainly for strangers. Brief remarks were made by delegates from other sections of the State.

SCHEME OF THE SOCIETIES.

R. H. Wallace, of Philadelphia, took charge of brief talks on the subject of "Light on the Christian Endeavor Idea." Mr. Gillespie, of New Castle, thought that the most important work was done by the Lookout, Prayer Meeting and Social Committees. Other speakers spoke of the importance of Missionary, Temperance and Flower Committees.

G. S. Benson, Jr., Philadelphia, advocated an additional committee in each society to be known as the Aggressive Committee, its object being to work purely on a personal basis. Then Walter B. Shumway, of Philadelphia, told how the local union in that city was conducted. It was composed of the presidents and secretaries of the various societies, and had a membership of 120. It was an executive body, and in that way all the societies worked together.

The session was concluded with a few remarks by Harry O'Neill, of Pittsburg, on "Progression Among Active Members." At the conclusion of the general meeting the various conferences held brief sessions.

THE EVENING SESSION'S EXERCISES.

At the evening session the first address was made by Mrs. Hunt, of Boston, who spoke of the evil effects of the liquor traffic. She was followed by E. B. Haskell, of Oberlin College, who spoke upon "Worldwide Evangelization." He told how young men and women students to the number of over 5,000 had pledged themselves to enter the foreign mission field. He also explained the need of these people among the heathens, remarking that even this comparatively large number was not sufficient for the work that was necessary to be done. Mrs. J. M. Irvine, of Bombay, also made a short address upon missionary work in India.

John W. Baer, of Boston, General Secretary of the United Societies of Christian Endeavor, closed the evening's exercises with a few words upon the subject of "Growth." He was on the programme for a set address, but owing to the lateness of the hour, he spoke only for a few minutes.

In the evening the Philadelphia delegates gave a reception to the other delegates, in the parlors of the Monongahela House. The convention will adjourn this evening.

"Philadelphia Greets You," were the watch words at the Monongahela House parlors. Several hundred of the Endeavorers had gathered there on the invitation of the Philadelphians, and it proved to be a most pleasant affair. On each side of the door stood the reception committee, kept busy shaking hands with the impouring stream of Christian workers. When all had arrived light refreshments were announced, lemonade being the beverage which slaked the thrist of the Endeavorers.

The remainder of the evening was spent in hand-shaking and becoming more thoroughly acquainted with each other. All formality was dispensed with, and everyone seemed anxious to become acquainted all around. The badge of C. E. membership was sufficient introduction for all, and many lasting friendships were made during the evening.

The leaders of the organization consider that for the members to become acquainted is one of the best ways of increasing the membership, and that they should promote sociability as well as other good works.

MONEY TO SELL.

A Green-Goods Circular Gets Into the Hands of the Police.

Detective Fitzgerald, while sitting in Central station yesterday afternoon, was addressed by a tall, sandy-mustached gentleman, who handed him a small package of papers, with the remark: "I suppose you are bothered a great deal with circulars and other literature, but I wish you would read this."

Fitzgerald took the package, and supposing it was some patent medicine advertising matter, began to read, without paying any attention to the stranger, who shortly started away. The circulars were type-written, and called attention to a great scheme for "an agent in every town" to handle a certain class of goods with which fortunes are to be made as easily as rolling from a log. No reference is made to how this can be done, but the reader is referred to an alleged newspaper cutting which accompanies the circular, and which, under big display lines, tells about how a dealer in "green goods" had evaded the law successfully in counterfeiting money, and how it was now easy for anyone else to do likewise and become rich.

On a little slip of paper was printed, "send orders for these goods to Charles Wilson, No. 1,040 Adams street, Hoboken, N. J."

After reading the circular the detective was puzzled. He did not know whether the circulars had been handed to him by an agent for a green goods concern, or whether the stranger, for such he was, had received the circulars and desired to turn them over for investigation. He started out to find the man and ask for an explanation, but so much time had been consumed in reading the stuff that the stranger had got out of sight entirely.

LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM AGAIN.

A Pittsburg Couple Elope to Wheeling to Get Married.

The hill district has found food for gossip in the elopement of Louis Spargo, aged 22, who lives at 96 Fulton street, and Miss Alice Haggerty, residing at 134 Webster street, who is only 17 years old. They had been keeping company for some time, and two requests of the young lover to Miss Alice's parents to wed their daughter were refused, owing to the youth of the latter. Then they made their minds to elope. Wednesday, about noon, Miss Haggerty left home, telling her mother that she was going to the market. She met Spargo at the Union depot, and they took the 1 o'clock train for Wheeling, W. Va., where they were to be married. Alice's parents heard of the elopement late in the afternoon.

Mrs. Haggerty said that the only objection she had to the wedding was Alice's youth, and that had she known that they were so desperately in love she would have consented to the marriage rather than have them run away. The elopers are expected to return in a few days and take up their residence on Wylie avenue, where Spargo has engaged a suite of rooms.

GOOD WALKING THIS WINTER.

East End Streets Rapidly Getting Into First-Class Condition.

Chief Bigelow, of the Department of Public Works, was looking at the sun yesterday with distinguished admiration. He said: "If this weather keeps up for a few days we will get all our streets cleaned up and in first-class shape for the winter."

"The work on a number of the East End streets has been finished, and a few more days will complete the others. There will be good walking this winter."

Slings a Lightning Pen.

Assistant City Controller Davis is a rapid penman. Yesterday, in 95 minutes, he numbered, filled and checked 305 warrants from the police pay roll, an average of less than 19 seconds each.
