PHILADELPHIA. November 6.-There was ostensibly an informal conference of the capitalists of the Players' League at the Continental Hotel to-day, but it was really a meeting to discuss the course that shall be adopted in event of the desertion of the New York and Brooklyn Players' Clubs, which now seems probable. There were present Messrs. Hanion and Rea, of Pittsburg; Prince, Hart and Irwin, of Boston, and J. Earle and G. W. Wagner, Vanderslice and Allen, for Philadelphia, while Francis C. Eacht acted in an advisory capacity. John M. Ward attended the meeting, but not as the representative of the Brooklyn club, although he held the proxies of the Cleveland and Cincinnati clubs. The proxy of the Chicago club was held by Boston, New York and Brooklyn were not represented.

Before the meeting convened Mr. J. Earle Wagner, who was not inclined to believe that any desertions from the Players' circuit are conemplated, asked Mr. Prince, of Boston, at whose instance the call had been issued, if the Brooklyn and New York clubs had been formally requested to send delegates, Mr. hed that they had, but that neither had sent any reply. Just what was done can only be conjectured, as the delegates either made evasive replies to leading questions or cealed what they had done by declaring hat they had only discussed the situation. But in discussing the situation the probable amalgama -n of the rival clubs in New York and Brooklyn and its possible effects upon the desthoses of the Players organization was thoroughly carrassed and a pian of action considered. The Boston delegation appeared to be satisfied that the rumored desertion of the Brooklyn and New York clubs was true, although Mr. Prince acknowledged that his opinion was based almost entirely upon the reports of the newspaners. is of the newspapers.

It. J. Earle Wagner took the opposite tack.

He declared that it was unfair to form such opinions upon mere newspaper rumors, and that he had been assured by Mr. McAlpin that that he had been assured by Mr. McAlpin that the New York club would take no decisive step until the remaining clubs of the organization had made satisfactory arrangements with their rivals. While Mr Wagner was undoubtedly smoere in his belief in the New York club's loyalty, a telegram from Mr. Talcott rather strengthened the position taken by the boston delegation. It read in substance: "We can make a satisfactory arrangement here. Hope other clubs can do the same. Would like to see something definite come within 30 days." With the exception of the Wagner brothers, the delegation regard the Brooklyn and New York clubs with distrust and the fact that neither was represented to-day was significantly commented upon. Mr. Richter, who has been the sturdy champion of the Players' movement from its inception, came out flat-footed and declared that they were traiters to the cause, and went hat they were traiters to the cause, and went of ar as to expose the admission of Mr. Ward s the representative of the Grooklyn club. A elegram was received from Al Johnson stating

sted over the management of the Players

"Why, we had the League beaten to a stand-still," said be, "and then the manager quit, and now the League is on ton. Talcott was first to weaken, and the rest soon let down." Personal friends of Comiskey intimated that the Chicago club owed him $2,000, and that as it failed to pay on time he considered himself released from the three years' contract. Boyle and Munson will return with him, but he does not want O'Neill.

test to take place the latter part of December.

Tony MULLANS maintains that too much gymnasium work is detrimental to a ball player in some respects, and especially for a pitcher. He claims that the development of the muscles of the arm and shoulder deprives a pitcher of that free and elastic motion which is so essential in throwing the ball. In the spring of '88 Mullane devoted a good deal of time to work in the gymnasium, and when the season was started he counted himself in first-class condition. When the championship games were on and the "Count" was called upon for his best efforts, he found that he was lacking in both speed and endurance, and for a long time he was at a loss to account for it. Constant exercise had so developed and hardened the muscles of his throwing arm that it required nearly two months' time for him to work out the stiffness and limber it up. It was not until near the close of the season that Mullane regained something of his old-time speed and effectiveness.

STORY OF STANLEY

Continued from First Page. You are all my officers: you are all bound to be loyal and faithful to me and to the best interests of the expedition. You must not best interests of the expedition. You must not forget that you left England with the expressed intention of doing the very best you could. Now, when you get to Africa, you seem to have forgotten your prdmises; you have quarreled with one another; you have made your camp an abode of misery. Instead of 271 men and officers, you have only 60 men; the rest are in their graves or dying, and of these men in camp before my eyes 40 cannot walk. What is the cause of all this? That is the information I wanted to get from Bonney. He could not answer because he was the lowest officer in the rank, but he said he could let me have an insight into what had been going on.

REVELATIONS F ROM BONNEY. It seems that before my arrival at Yambuya nd after Barttelot's murder, Bonney had written a report to the committee as he, in common when I asked him if he had any evidence of what had taken place he said: "I have a letter what had taken place he said: "I have a letter which I was just about sending to the committee." They said: "As I am here and am your superior officer of the expedition, I have authority to open it." After reading it I asked him to address it to me as chief of the expedition instead of the committee, and it was in this way that I prevented that report of his from going to England.

I have that letter. It explained very clearly what had happened. It was written before I arrived. Therefore I have Bonney's report, Troup's two letter's, Ward's account, which I received, and more important than all, I have the log book signed by the officers day after day. Without any other evidence that log book of itself would prove that I was justified in my censure of the rear column, which was very unild in my letter to the committee. Am I going to publish that log? I cannot say. I think it better to wait a while, till I have read Troup's book.

BONNEY COULD TELL IT ALL. Bonney could remove all this criticism by elling what he knows, and writing a plain, simple story of what took place; how it was that Major Barttelot was killed; how it was these men died like sheep; that the rear column, so grandly equipped before starting, fell to rot. He told all the same story, and told it to Emin Pasha, and we all have heard it, but I also have his written story recorded at the time. The log book was written every day, like a ship's log, stating what had occurred during the day. It is signed officially by whoever was the officer of the day. The log book is very valuable, and with the social results in my possession fully justify me in my censure of the rear column and acquit me of the charge that I have acted otherwise than an honorable man and an officer.

Barttelot was shot on July 19, and I arrived on the scene on August 17, therefore I did not see the deed nor did I witness the causes which led to it. The whole and sole cause was the violent temper of the Major.

CAUSE OF BARTTELOT'S DEATH. mple story of what took place; how it was

CAUSE OF BARTTELOT'S DEATH. Barttelot had just come from Nyanza and was in camp where the rear guard had camped before. His very presence seemed to stir up the natives in camp. He demanded 60 men from the Arab chief as couriers, when he had from the Arab chief as couriers, when he had already had all that was necessary. The chief told him that he could not give them to him, for they were not to be found. He threatened him with reporting his denial and again demanded the men, and then complained to donney. Bonney told him he had enough men already, and if he put the 15 loads of rifles into their hands they could go ahead and protect themselves. That was July 17. He went to the Arab chief and beat him with a cypress stick, and left him in a horrible condition. Early on the morning of July 19 Barttelot was awakened and disturbed by loud singing and beating of drums. He sent his sergeant to find out who made the noise. The sergeant reported he could find nobody responsible for it. He then sent his little boy, Soulti, who reported on his return that a woman was singing and the men were drumming, which is the African's custom in saluting the rising sun.

BARTTELOT KILLED BY THE CHIEF. Barttelot said with an oath that he would shoot the first one who refused to stop the noise, and suiting the action to the word, he took down his revolver and marched out to find the native singers. He found near the chief's but a woman, who was the chief's wife. She was singing and the men drumming. He told them to stop, and the woman looked at him in a defiant way and kept on, for all the natives hated him. He then struck and kicked her. She screamed and her busband, who was in the hut, not five yards away cleaning his gun, looked out of a loophole, and seeing Barttelot abusing his wife he put his gun through the loophole and fired, killing Bartte lot instantly. The murderer was a chief not a slave, and these men love their, wives as much as you do here. It was done in a spasm of anger, to protect his wife from the officer's brutal treatment. From what reports I can obtain, he made himself very distasteful to the natives. He had a habit of standing in the pathways and grinning and making faces at them. He had four front teeth that were very prominent, and when find the native singers. He found near the making faces at them. He had four front teeth that were very prominent, and when he showed these it made the nativos angry. For these reports I don't rely on Mr. Bonney, for there were 500 people who could tell me how the affair happened. Both Arab and native chiefs went over it very minutely, and although they might be somewhat prejudiced, they agreed to the letter in their statements of faces. I warned him to look out for the Arab chief, and eulogized his character as compared with a white manis character as compared with a white man's TERBIBLE TALES OF CRUELTY. There was no accusation against Barttelot, as is generally supposed, of immoral conduct with the chief's wife? I never said any such thing as that nor intimated it. There was no immoral action of any of themen as far as known. "The log book of the camp signed by Bart-telot, Jamieson, Bonney and Ward, were simply one long account of remorseless flogging and inhumanity. One man had an ulcer seven inches in diameter which was full of maggots, inches in diameter which was full of maggots, caused by a severe beating. Barttelot even kicked his little boy, Southe, whom he himself said was an interesting, quaint little boy, and from the injuries of which he died.

One man took a piece of raw meat because he has nearly crazed with hunger and ate it. For this he was ordered to receive 300 lashes. The doctor told Barttelot that if it was not stopped it would kill him. As soon as the man was able he ran away into the bush, but was captured and shot by Barttelot's orders. Bonney said to me a few days ago, 'I haven't told you half of the horrors that existed in that camp, but it will all come out some time.

Mr. Stanley when he returns to Foreland.

Mr. Stanley, when he returns to England, may bring an action of libel against Bart-telot's brother, in order to sift the matter to the bottom so that the world may judge. He has Hospital Sergeant Bonney's diary, but will not make it public at present.

Miss Irene Smeltz Left Bleeding and Uncor scions in Her Fathers's Door-Vard After a Terrible Struggle-A Suspicious Character Arrested.

Hazelwood was aroused yesterday by the story that a negro had broken into the residence of Mr. Adam Smeltz and had committed all but murder.

The home of Mr. Smeltz is on Hazelwood avenue. He was away from home and there was no one in the house but his wife, his 15year-old daughter Irene and Miss Lizzy Krebbs, a friend, who was spending the night at the house. Shortly after midnight the girls were awakened and saw a burly negro in the act of putting Miss Krebbs' watch in his pocket.

Seeing that they were awake, the man uttered an oath and going to the bed picked Miss Smeltz up in his arms. He started out of the room and the girl fought and struggled to free herself, but it was of no avail, the negro beating her in a terrible manner. He carried her to the back yard and there she partially freed herself, but he beat her into unconsciousness.

freed herself, but he beat her into unconsciousness.

In the meantime Miss Krebbs, who had fainted, recovered herself and ran out to awaken Mrs. Smeltz. Throwing open a window the two screamed for help. Mr. Smeltz was just getting home from his store, and learning the trouble yan to the yard, where he found his unconsciout daughter, her face badly larcerated by the bealing she had received, and her night dress covered with blood. The negro had taken fright and ran away, leaving his victim in this terrible condition. whatever at present. It is gathered from parties outside the firm that the embarrassment is believed to be due to an increase of business on capital hardly sufficient to warrant it and to the tight money market. The firm has been rated at from $100,000 to $150,000, and was believed to be making money every year. It is understood that the firm recently sold its estate on Commercial street and put the proceeds into the stock of the Kansas City Packing and Chase Refrigerating Com-pany. It is also understood that the latter oncern is not involved.

Adam Sedgwick, the geologist, his recently published biography relates, was once breaking specimens in a road in Wales, when a lady asked him the direction of a certain place and how to reach it. She handed him a shilling, and, before he could explain, was off; but the next evening she turned up as a visitor to the house at which he was staying. She did not recognize the geologist, but he knew her at once. She was really pleased with her visit—her first to Wales and with the people, "They are so obliging and so communicative," she said. "Only yesterday I had a long conversation with an old man who was break- count of the other countier ing stone on the road. He asked a number of questions yesterday as to what kind of man the Minister of Justice is, the distance to Ottawa, etc., and eagerly scanned the newspapers for news from there. the Nineteenth Pennsylvania district, said to-day:

"The brilliant success of the Democratic party in New England might make it advisable to make the selection from that section, in which event no better choice could be made than that of William E. Russell, of Massachusetts, who has just been re-elected. Judge Crisp is my choice, and if I were a member of the Fifty-third Congress I would do all in my power to make him the next Speaker."

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

Another Assembly Surprise Turns Up Kings County.

NEW YORK, November 6 .- The turning over of the majority in the Eleventh Assem bly district of Kings county was the surprise to-day in the Assembly news. Aspinwall is thus bowled out and the election of Reinhard makes the Kings county delegation solidly Democratic. The total of 69 may now be safely claimed for the Democrats. This gives them a good working majority of 10 in the Assembly and a majority of 4 on joint ballot to elect a United States Senator. The talk is still that Smith M. Weed is likely to be the man if Governor

Authentic Count Gives Majorities for Governor and Congressman

Board of Canvass of Sussex County has just completed the official count. The official count of that county gives Reynolds, D. for Governor, 608, and Causey, D., for Congress, 618 majority.

The majorities in the state, with unofficial figures from New Castle and Kent, are: Reynolds, 531; Causey, 726. The cofficial count of the other counties will not materially change these figures.

William Baldwin, Sentenced to be Hanged in Kansas, is Pardoned. TOPEKA, November 6 .- Governor Humphrey to-day signed the pardon of William Baldwin, of Atchison, who was convicted January 11, 1886, of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hanged. Since that time he has been an inmate of the State prison at Leavenworth, his death warrant never having been signed by the Governor. The crime of which Baldwin was convicted was the murder of his sister. His father, who was nearly a millionaire, died and left his fortune to his widow, son and daughter. Young Baldwin was dissatisfied with his share of the estate, and a short time afterward his sister died from the effects of chloroform under peculiar circumstances. Her brother was arrested, charged with administering the fatal drug, and con-ognition at the hands of the Democracy in the organization of the House. Our 14 members may expect that the astonucling majority elected against the Republicans destroys their recont oft-repeated claim that the verdict of the people in 1888 was in favor of higher tariff taxation and radical partisanship. The Democratic party has a great trial before it with such a large majority in the House. The people will expect much, regardless of the hostile Senate and Executive. We must relieve the agricultural interests of the evils depressing them, and labor of its unequal burdens. The fight for revenue reform must go on.

ON ACCOUNT OF A SCARE.

Michener, of the State Republican Central Committee, says there are three reasons for the Republican defeat. One of them is the apathy common to elections in which neither President nor Governor is to be elected. Another is the dissatisfaction with the national administration, which always puts the party in power at a disadvantage puts the party in power at a disadvantage for a long time after a national election. Continuing, he says:

The third cause and the one which I have been most afraid of all along is the scare over the McKinley bill. The bill will be beneficial to the country, I believe, but there has not been time for its good effects to begin to be felt yet. If Congress had passed the bill last June, the scare would have been over before the election, and results would have been different, but passed when it was, there was just time enough to get the people frightened about high prices and not time enough to show them results to remove their fright. I confidently believe that in a year and a half from now the McKinley bill will be in high favor.

SPECIAL: ANNOUNCEME

The past two seasons have been highly unfavorable for the sale of OVERCOATS, and in consequence the manufacturers, one and all, are heavily overstocked and unable to dispose of their goods, and many are, in consequence, badly "CRAMPED" for READY MONEY. Last week we learned that one of the largest and most prominent manufacturers of FINE OVERCOATS was in this condition and was unable to raise cash to meet his liabilities. HIS NE. CESSITY WAS OUR OPPORTUNITY. We offered to take his entire stock, amounting to over $100,000, at prices to be named BY US. His need for money was so PRESSING and IMMEDIATE, that he was forced to accept our offer, and we consequently own to-day TEN THOUSAND HIGH-GRADE OVERCOATS, CAPE COATS and ULSTERS, bought for less than ONE-HALF THE COST OF MANUFACTURE.

NOW WE WANT TO UNLOAD

A large portion of this enormous purchase, and for this purpose we inaugurate this morning

A TWO-DAYS' SPECIAL SALE

OVERCOATS!

During which the GREATEST VALUES EVER KNOWN IN THE WORLD will be offered. The goods cost us almost nothing; we can afford to sell them for less than the raw material cost and still make a profit. If you need an Overcoat, you can buy it at our store TO-DAY or SATURDAY for less than ONE-HALF what you would ordinarily. The stock includes the very choicest productions of RICH CARR'S MELTONS, SCHNABEL'S, CHIN-CHILLAS, ENGLISH KERSEYS, IRISH FRIEZE of the most desirable patterns. These garments are all elegantly made for extreme FINE TRADE.

We have no space nor time to mention prices, Call TO. DAY and TO-MORROW and see what we have to offer.

SPECIAL WEATHER BULLETIN.

The Coldest Wave of the Season Re States except Minnesota, Montana and Wyoming, where light snow was falling. The storm that was moving eastward over the lake region was crowded north into Canada by the formation of an area of high pressure on the South Atlantic coast, which also caused a rise of from 10° to 15° in temperature in the Ohio Valley and the lower lake region, and a rise of 8º to 10º in all the Atlantic States, A barometric depression formed in the Rocky Mountains, near Salt Lake City, making a steep barometric gradient between that point and the Northwest States, causing high northerly winds throughout the entire Northwest, and drawing down the coldest wave of the season. There was a general fall of from 15° to 30°. The temperature at Winnipeg registered 40
