LAST OF THE OUTLAWS ARRESTED.

Thrilling Story of His Capture and Attempts to Escape.

THE OFFENDERS WEALTHY FARMERS

TRECTAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. KEYSER, W. VA., November 12 .- Deputy United States Marshal O. C. Miller arrived here a day or two ago, having in charge a moonshiner named William Fausler. He lived, with a number of others of his class, about 20 miles south of St. George, the county seat of Tucker county, and about 60 miles from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and his chase and capture constitutes one of the most remarkable episodes in the criminal annals of West Virginia. Detective Miller was compelled to follow his man for several weeks before he finally landed him in prison, often at the risk of his life, and he detailed his experiences to your correspondent about as follows:

Fansler is a member of one of the most during and successful gangs of moonshiners, counterfeiters and stock thieves that ever infested the mountains of West Virginia. Their stamping ground was the "Cansan" wilderness and contiguous portions of ad-Joining counties, and their headquarters were established in a

LOG HOUSE, STRONGLY FORTIFIED,

and provided with loop-holes for its de-fense with repeating r.fles and situated in the most inaccessible portion of the "Back-bone" range of mountains. It is surrounded for miles on every side with laurel and timber, standing so thick as to make an approach to it almost impossible, except by a secret path, which for a long time was known only to the members of the band. Here the gang had for several years operated a splendidly equipped distillery, with a capacity of 85 gailons a day, until they were betraved some months ago by one of their own number, who led a posse of Government officials to the "fort," as it was called, at a time when all the gang were away disposing of their stock of honor at Philippi. The detectives lett not one log of the thief harbor resting upon another, and destroyed the still, mashtubs and everything else of any value found about the premises. These summary proceedings made home anything but sweet for the gang, and they scattered, Fansler being the only one who made any attempt to "bold the fort," and even he, taking alarm at the activity of the officers, retreated to what he called his "mountain place," about 15 miles further south.

BEARDED IN HIS DEN. Here he was traced by Marshal Miller, who spent seven days in getting to the place from St. George. Miller was fortunate enough to find Fansier at home, and walking suddenly in and Fansier at home, and walking suddenly in upon him, told him the best thing he could do was to give himself up, as he had men outside who would take him, and resistance was useless. Fansier surrendered, and started off quietly with his captor, but when they had gone some distance without meeting any other officers, Fansier turned upon Miller, and a fierce fight cusued. He was finally overpowered, and everything went well until the Dry Fork of Cheat river was reached.

The two men started across the stream in a suiff, but Fansier, watching his chance, caught the detective by the shoulders and threw him out of the boat. Fansier then jumped into the soift current himself and tried to escape, but Miller caught him by the legs, and after narrowly escaping being drowned. Fansier again surrendered, and the two reached the shore. Fansier made no further effort to escape, and is now under look and key. There are three beach warrants against him and many capiases, and he is sure of a long term in the penitentiary. THE GANG'S HIGH STANDING.

A strange feature of the whole matter is that the members of this gang were not vagabonds or criminals, in the common acceptation of those terms, but all owned fine farms, and as an evidence of this, one of the party, arrested sometime are, was released by United States Indge Jackson on $5,000 ball on his own recognizance. The "queer" and "moonshine" departments of the business were manared with skill and energy, and they were nasiduous and successful in their live stock operations, frequently stealing as many as 200 sneep, or 30 or 40 cattle at once. Many are the stories told by the people of Randolph, Tucker, and Barbour counties of the wild orgies with which they celebrated at their camp in the mountains the successful issue of a raid of this kind on the barns and pastures of the farmers of that portion of the State.

Until recently, no attempt at punishing these callaws ever succeeded, as they were quick to JOHNSTOWN, November 12-There is more rouble in Stony Creek township in regard to the school funds. Some time ago Justice Cook, cretary of the School Board, was arrested on the charge of embezzlement. This morning be appeared before Alderman Rutledge and entered bail for court. Prior to this he had appeared before Alder-

Prior to this he had appeared before Alderman Hart and made information against S. W. Repp, E. F. Wissinger and Julius Wild, members of the School Board at the time of the alleged emberziement. The charge made by Look against the directors is the same as that made against him. Mr. Repp at once appeared and entered ball for a hearing next Saturday evening. Mr. Wild appeared and entered ball for a hearing next Friday evening, and Mr. Wissinger has not yet made his appearance.

A Marble Dealer Held Up While Crossing Maryland Mountains.

PRPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. BEDFORD, November 12.-Last night, while Upton Amick, a marbie dealer of Cumberland, Md., was crossing the mountains between New Md., was crossing the mountains between New Enterprise and St. Clairsville, this county, he was held up by two men, who, after assaulting him with a hand billy until he was unconscious, robbed him of Sidi and a gold watch.

From the appearance of Amick he must have received a terrible beating. Amick had just made some collections, which leads him to believe the robbers were not strangers, but cannot recollect of anyone being around when he received the money.

Build a Railroad. INPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCILL

WHEELING, W. VA., November 12.-Presigent Charles Meyran, of Pittsburg, of the Pit'sburg, Canonsburg and State Line Rail-road, and H. H. Nieman, A. H. Paul and A. E. Succop, of Pittsburg, directors of the company, met this afternoon in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce to take steps to secure a sub-scription of $100,000 from this city to the stock of the company.

The proper steps were taken to lay the matter before the authorities.

CAPITALISTS OF COLOR In Disputed Possession of Valuable Iron

Lands in West Virginia. MYRCIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. ZANESVILLE, November 12.—George Washington Welcome, a colored barber here, if his story be true, is a man of considerable interest to Eastern investors. He says that in 1879 he was teaching school at Martinsburg, W. Va., and while there formed with John L. Rogers, of Norfolk, and other colored people, a company with the high sounding title of "The West Virginia Investment Company." The shares were placed at $10 each, he taking eight and Mr. Rogers five shares, and others taking suffi-cient to swell the capital stock of the company to the grand total of $220. With this sum they purchased 120 acres of land in Grant county, in the heart of an unbroken wilderness. The purchased 120 acres of land in Grant county, in the heart of an unbroken wilderness. The land was rough, and scarcely tillable, but, says Mr. Welcome, "it abounds with iron ore, which cropped out solid just like rocks." Mr. Weicome, on account of his superiority as a man of letters, was made secretary of the company, but despite all his efforts he could not succeed in making the stockholders pay a cent on the taxes of the land. Like Sellers, he saw "millions in it," and paid the taxes himself. John L. Rogers died, and his heirs made Mr. Welcome a present of the five shares he owned, so that now he owns 13 shares, and is out of pocket on the land, since 1880, some $200 in taxes.

J. M. Price, an attorney of Martinsburg, now comes out for the other stockholders, and demands the books of the company. A railroad has recently penetrated the county, and the land adjoins it, and has increased in value to about $5,000. Mr. Price threatens to sue Mr.
Welcome if the books are not delivered, but offers to pay him for the taxes he has paid on the land. Mr. Welcome claims that the land is wanted by the Pennsylvania Iron Company, and doesn't know what to do in regard to the matter.

Board of Pardons Settles the Destiny of Several Convicts.

ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. HARRISBURG, November 12.-The Board of Pardons, at last night's session, took action as follows: Charles Hannon, Aliegheny county, murder, continued until additional evidence is presented; Charles Miller, Allegheny county, pardon refused; Hyman Browarsky, Allegheny county, assault and battery, pardon refused John Byrne, Westmoreland county, selling

John Byrne, Westmoreland county, selling liquor on Sunday, pardon refused.

A pardon was granted Denuis Magher, Allegheny county, imprisoned for assault and battery. In the case of William H. Smith, the Allegheny county murderer, who is confined at Dixmont, the board refused to consider the application for a rehearing, and his counsel, William McElroy, was advised to see the Governor with regard to the granting of another respite, which will probably be granted.

Settle Difficulties. PRPECIAL TELEPRAM TO THE DISPATCH.: SCOTTDALE, November 12.—The United Mine Workers of the coke regions are getting their forces together for the presentation of their demands on the operators next February, the date fixed for formulating an agreement for the ensuing year.

Master Workman Kerfoot in an interview to-day made a remarkable statement, in which he made the following propositions: First, that all coal be mined by weight instead of by meas-terment; second that eight hours shall constiurement; second, that eight hours shall consti-tute a day's work; third, that day laborers shall not receive less than $1.50 per day. These demands are all new, and have been sent to the men in circular form.

There are tides in the clothing trade which, taken at their flood, lead on, if not to fortune, to points of advantage which have much to do with a firm's popularity with the public.
