FAITH IN PROF. KOCH.

Pittsburg Physicians Who Hope That a Cure for Consumption Has at Last Been Found.

MEN WHO KNOW THE DOCTOR

Think He Will Prove All He Claims He Has Discovered, and Give Reasons for Their Belief.

MICROSCOPISTS GREATLY INTERESTED.

Their Studies Lead Them to Declare That Science is With the German.

Dr. J. D. Thomas has given considerable attention to the study of tuberculous diseases, and is very much interested in the discovery of Dr. Koch. Dr. Thomas was a delegate to the International Medical Congress, at Berlin, last summer, and has met many of the prominent doctors now attracting the attention of the world. In an entertaining chat, last evening, Dr. Thomas gave some very interesting facts about consumption and tuberculosis, that to the layman easts new light on Dr. Koch's discoverv, and adds to its full significance.

It is not only consumption as affecting the lungs, which this wonderful lymph is supposed to cure, but all conditions of a kindred nature and due to the ravages of the same little bacilli. Scrofula, white swelling, lupus, tuberculosis of the glands, the brain, intestines, larynx, etc. All of the latter are generally supposed by laymen to be distinct diseases, but they are not. They are but different forms of tuberculosis, or the conditions brought about by this little microscopic animal or germ, the bacillus. BACILLI FOUND ALMOST EVERY WHERE,

The bacilli tubercuiosis is a small germ that enters the body through the air we breathe, and is found everywhere except in climates like that of Montana, where the air is so pure that bacilli do not exist. This same Dr. Koch was the first to discover the bacilli after years of patient labor and research. When he had made his discovery some doctors laughed at him, and his new theory regarding consumption by no means met with perfect approval. With time, scientists followed his prescribed lines of discovery and found that he had, indeed, brought to light the cause of consumption. Now professional men the world over not only believe what Dr. Koch first presented, but have found for themselves that he was correct. Scientists have since been using their microscopes to good advantage, profiting by the researches of Professor Koch, and trying to delve further into this secret of MICROSCOPISTS INTERESTED. Dr. Koch's discovery gave an impetus to microscopists, the world over, to study more and more the cause and a possible cure for consumption, the king of destroyers.

All this time Dr. Koch was not asleep. He had spent years to discover the cause of consumption, and his incentive that led to this application was that after finding the cause, he might find an antidote-or, plainly speaking, something that would destroy this death-dealing little bacillus. All these years the doctor has been nursing the bacillus, and searching the animal, mineral and vegetable kingdoms to animal, mineral and vegetable kingdoms to and some little thing that would kill his pets and not the patient. He has experimented on dogs, guinea pigs and other animals, inoculating them with bacilli, to give them uniserculosis, and then trying to stop the ravages of the tuberculosis by killing the bacilli. He now claims that the old Sergeant notified Inspector McAleese and poison, has been once more proven true by him. To be a little more conservative, he has not yet claimed that his discovery is but gives the facts which would merit the former statement, and then tells the public to wait in patience until he can take his bearings and see just what his discovery really has resulted in proving, and just what it is worth.

CONSUMPTION NOT HEREDITARY. Dr. Thomas said that no person is born with bacilli in their system, and in that sense there is no such thing as hereditary consumption. Parents who have consumption may give their offspring a condition of tissue that is susceptible to the lodgment and growth of bacilli, or in other words, is like soil in which the bacilli will flourish. It this person, susceptible to consumption, went to Labrador, or any place where the air was not contaminated with bacilli, consumption would never appear.

Tuberculosis is a condition of inflammation and irritation resulting in the destruction of the part affected, produced by the ravages of the bacilli. This condition may be of the skin, when it is called lupus. In lupus, the bacilli, being on the superstructure, rarely get to enter the blood and cause berculosis of the lungs. If the bacilli find lodgment in the joints, the effect is the same; so it is with the glands, the intestines, the brain, and, in fact, all portions of the lungs they cause what is commonly known as

Dr. Thomas said he had no idea what Dr. Koch's remedy is; it may be a com-pound of the same tuberculosis. Dr. Koch's method is to introduce into the body his remedy, which only attacks and destroys the tissue where the bacilli exist. This tissue in the cure of lupus scales off and of course the bacitli are taken with it. In the case of tuberculosis of the lungs this warden that he was on the verge of delirium tissue containing the deadly bacilli is expectorated and thus the body (reed from it. This is adduced from Dr. Koch's paper given in THE DISPATCH. How far this completes a cure and anything further than Dr. Koch has stated is at present all

VALUE OF THE DISCOVERY. "The true value of Dr. Koch's discovery cannot yet be estimated or realized by medical men, and much less by laymen," said Dr. Thomas. "Dr. Koch is a man whom e profession respects and relies upon as a thinker and earnest man of science. The loctor himself did not wish to give publicity to his methods until he had completed his Dousman Ross Seeks His Love, but Finds a experiments to his satisfaction, and could give to the world something tangible that would stand all tests and be accepted as con-clusive proof. The news of the discovery was given out prematurely, and for his own vindication the doctor wrote the communiention cabled to THE DISPATCH. It is so conservative, and so much is yet held back for further experiment and more conclusive proof that no one can correctly give an opinon of the merit of the discovery in its en-

'This much is sure-the Doctor has evidently the keynote along the same line of discovery being followed by scientific men all over the world. With him it has not been a spontaneous discovery, but a result of the labors of different searchers in the field, their conclusions put together, additions made, and a definite result adduct can but wait with interest until Dr. Koch inishes his researches and an opportunity is given the scientists of the world to test discovery and find out its true worth and exact limitations. TRIBUTE OF AN OLD PRIEND. Dr. Carl A. Emmerling, of the East End, is an old friend of Prof. Koch. They were from the same neighborhood, though they did not go to the same school. "He is an excellent man," said Dr. Emmerling, last evening, "and was always a very close student. I have been in the Government laboratory, which is a fine place, and the doctor does a great deal of work. He has made himself famous, and deserves all the TOLD IN A MINOR KEY praise given him.

"Prof. Koch doesn't claim to be able to tion. He can't furnish a new lung. However, he does claim that under his treatment, with hyperdermic injections of his preparation, he can take a case in time, and prevent the lungs being eaten away, and thus save the lives of many. Unless a case is taken in time, the disease must prove fatal. Dr. Koch has so far held back the composition of this lymph for good reason. He wants it to be thoroughly investigated and does not want its chances ruined by placing it in the hands of quacks. He wil lecture on the subject until the physicians become thoroughly acquainted with his methods, and he will then inform them what Prof. Koch does not care to money by the means of his lymph, but is keeping it secret for legitimate reasons."

NOTHING OF THE QUACK IN IT. Dr. W. J. Aradale, of Penn avenue, is very much interested in the discussion of Dr. Koch's consumption remedy. "There is nothing of the quack in his make-up," said Dr. Arsdale,"and we will secure great bene fit from his discovery. He is a very eminent men, and in his experiments has bit upon something that will prove a boon to man-kind. I believe that other discoveries will be made in this line, and that of Prof. Koch's is only one of them. It is the same as the use of the virus of cowpox used to eliminate from the body the virus of small-

Microscopist Edgar A. Mundorff has for several years been studying the tuberculosis bacilli, with the end in view of discovering just what Dr. Koch claims he has at last found. The tuberculosis bacillus is distin-guished from the other bacilli by its taking a certain blue stain. Several times the doctor has shown bacilli, through a powerful microscope, to a DISPATCH reporter. The specimen was obtained from the lung of a consumptive. Dr. Mundorff could find the bacilli all right enough, and could breed them, but sailed to find anything that would give the effect attained by Dr. Koch's

Dr. Mundorf, though he was unsuccessful himself, was sure the problem could be solved. When asked why he studied day and night when it resulted in naught he would answer, "If all scientists worked hard to discover the great remedy one is sure, sooner or later, to strike on the right thing, and it will not matter who makes the discovery, as long as suffering humanity is thereby benefited."

CONSERVATIVE, BUT HOPEFUL. Dr. W. H. McKelvy was inclined to be conservative when approached on the sub-ject. He said: "We are in the dark yet, and know little or nothing of Dr. Koch's lymph. Dr. Koch is esteemed and relied upon by medical men, and I hope that he has discovered what is claimed. We must wait patiently and see. There was a great flurry about the Brown-Sequard's discovery, which went up in smoke, but I don't think the omparison between him and Koch is just. Both are eminent doctors and scientists, but Brown-Sequard was in his dotage, while Koch is young."

Dr. W. A. Thompson, physcian for the State Board of Health, said all that could be done was to wait and see the result. Dr. Koch is too eminent a man to doubt him without cause, He can freely give his secret to the world, for he will have all be can do to attend patients that come to him.

Dr. H. A. Page is another who hopes for the best, and thinks the chances bright for Koch and his remedy, but rests on his oars for further developments.

OFFICER CARNEY SUSPENDED

For Taking a Dollar From a Prisoner With out Rendering Any Service Therefor. Thomas Carney, a colored police officer, was suspended yesterday by Inspector Me-Aleese for taking a dollar from a prisoner. The man had been arrested for drunkenness and taken to the Twelfth ward station. He gave Carney $1 to go to Washington svenue, Allegheny, and notify his friends to come over and pay his fine. The prisoner was shortly after taken to Central station, to await his removal to the Workhouse to serve a 30-day service in detault of his fine.

the latter sent for Carney, who said he went to the house on Washington avenue, but was unable to find the prisoner's friends there A messenger was sent to the house, and learned that Carney had not been there Carney will have a trial this morning before the Board of Police Captains.

MYSTERY OF THE ALLEGHENY.

Strange Circumstances Surrounding the Death of an Unknown. On the bank of the Allegheny, near Ches wick station, along the line of the West Penn road, yesterday the body of an unknown man was found. The body was badly decomposed, and the man had evidently been dead for about two weeks. A revolver was found lying beside it. No further particulars were given.

The Coroner notified 'Squire McCall, of Tarentum, and Detective Finney, of the West Penn Railroad, to investigate the case and report to him, but no word had been received at a late hour last night. The Coroner thinks the man may be one of the three burglars whom Constable Mateer, of Taren-tum, had a fight with at Tarentum two weeks ago. At that time it was believed that Mateer had shot one man, and the last seen of the burglars after their escape was near Cheswick station.

Charles McDonald Struggles Against De

lirium Tremens, but in Vain. Charles McDonald, 35 years old, was at the county jail, where he was committed last Wednesday for drunkenness. When tremens, and was afraid that he would die if he had an attack. With the aid of the jail physician's treatment, he fought off the attack until Saturday night, when he requested that he be placed in a padded cell, as he was in momentary fear of an attack. In the morning McDonald was found dead in the cell, as the result of an attack of de-lirium, which had caused a hemorrhage. McDonald boarded on Second avenue, but his friends have not yet been tound. The body is now in the morgue. AFTER SEVEN LONG YEARS

Police Court. Dousman Ross, a brother of ex-Chief of Police Ross, of Allegheny, figured yesterday morning in Mayor Wyman's hearings. His wife claims he left her for seven years, and part of the time lived at the Home Hotel, an adjunct of the Duquesne Way Bethel Home. On Saturday he came to her house and demanded admittance. She called the police, and when Ross was arrested he was trying to pry open a window.

The defendant is 70 years old. His case was held over for further investigation.

More Sunday Captures Made by Chie Brown's Officers.

The house of Lizzie Morrow, 359 Fifth avenue, was raided as a speak-easy last night. Three men were arrested. Last night Lieutenant Lewis and several officers raided the place conducted by Mrs. Mary Steiner, in the rear of No 2211 Peni avenue, and captured six men and one woman. They were locked up in the Twelith ward station. The house contained ten eighths of beer and about ten gallons of

A Very Pathetic and Original Musical Melodrama, of Which

ONE ACT IS GIVEN IN PITTSBURG.

Travels With a Tenor. DETECTIVE SHORE IN LIGHT OPERA

The third act of a musical melodrama was played in Pittsburg yesterday, and was a startling success. The opening scene of the play was in Detroit; the curtain arose on the second act a month later and disclosed a home in Cleveland, but owing to the fact that no programmes have been issued, it is not yet known whether the next and fourth net is the last or not. The dramatis personæ was as follows:

Sophie, but filled with a wild yearning for reciprocated affection and a consuming jealousy.... The Grim Pursus ACOB VOLKOWSKI, a tenor with a bald

Police, populace, etc.

The first scene of the third act disclosed the interior of Central station, with Friedfact that his wife had abandoned his bed and board in Cleveland, and was secreted in this city. Captain Silvus struck the wild, high C without effort, and directed the disconsolate husband to police headquarters in Municipal Hall.

A lightning change occurred right here, and a few moments later Friedman was repeating his solo in the presence of Detective Shore, who quickly responded, with an intensity of dramatic emotion which surprised his friends, "Lead on, I follow." ON THE TRAIL.

Several streets in Pittsburg were then reproduced with startling fidelity, as Basso Friedman and Barytone Shore pursued their search for the soprano and the tenor. They finally found a clew. The basso did not know it at first, but the barytone had been there before and recognized it at a glance The clew denoted that Sophie and Jacob were preparing to take a train East.

Shore and the husband rushed to the Union depot and found the Philadelphia express just leaving. They took passage on it and searched the cars, but could not find the people they were looking for. The representation of a train was so natural that the audience could feel the cars lean over at an angle of 450 as they rounded the curves between Lawrenceville and Ben Venue.

The intensity of the next scene was dramatic in the extreme. The detective and the husband left the train at East Liberty, intending to return to town on a cable car. They had reached the terminus of the Pitts burg traction line, where Friedman turned on his lower register to inform Shore that he saw Sophie in the distance and in the car station. "That's all right," said or sang the detective. "You point out the man; we'll get the woman easily enough."

THE SUPRANO IS A PRISONER. But the grim pursuer could no longer re strain himself. He rushed at his wife and aught her wrist in a vice-like grip. The detective was at his side in a moment, and exclaimed, "Never mind the woman; where is the man?" Just at this moment the prima donna in-troduced a little by-play, and saying a few words in a foreign tongue to a stranger standing by, the latter disappeared. The detective had not yet appeared upon the stage at the same time as Jacob Volkowski, stopped for breath the assembled chorus carried the air until he was ready to begin again.

The burden of his song was to the effect that he was an operator on men's clothing. That is to say, he ran a sewing machine at his own home. That home, five weeks ago, was in Detroit, but owing to his wite's dis-like for that pretty city, he removed to Cleveland. There Sophie became acquainted with the tenor. She had been a successful singer in German opera companies or a number of years, and was still fascinated by the glamour of the footlights. Sophie and Folkowski were kindred spirits, and this fact seemed to affect Friedman until he felt like the very unpleasant hero of "The Kreut-

SOPHIE SINGS HER SONG. Sophie sung her little song to Matron Brennan, who appeared before the foot-lights with considerable diffidence. The soprano, who is a petite but brilliant brunette of 28 years, laughed at the idea of run-ning away with a man of Volkowski's appearance. They were good comrades, but that was all. She desired to go back to the stage, because, in the first place, her hus-band could not provide for her suitably, and next, because he was so insanely jealou found dead in his cell yesterday morning, of her that life was a burden. Just the same she would never, no, never, return to her

When the curtain dropped on this scene Sophic was declaring her resolve never to become reconciled to Friedman, while the latter was starting out into the black, rainy night in search of a hotel.

The next act will open this morning, and a new character, Inspector McAleese, will appear on the stage. It is understood that this character will not have many lines to recite, but they will be to the point, and when he concludes the curtain will be rung

THE CHILD STILL LIVES.

Row at a Christening, but the Baby Survives.

Michael Dougherty, Charles Keppler and Maggie and Mary Hanlon were arrested on Brady street, by Officers Haas and Connors, and lodged in the Fourteenth ward station last night on a charge of disorderly conduct.
It is alleged by the officers that the prisoners were holding a christening at the house of Michael Dougherty and a dispute arose over the name of the child, which resulted in a general row. The women used clubs and stones while the men desended themse ves with their fists, and by the time the officers arrived all four were badly beaten up. They will be scratch on his neck.

Captain Brophy was notified of the affair early yesterday morning and arrested William Johnston, an employe of the Westinghouse Electric Light Company, whom he believes is the man who struck Daizell. Johnston lives on Forty-third street. A little later Harry Ott and Michael Kane were arrested for being implicated in the affair. John Stagawait, of Forty-third street, was arrested last night as a witness and Joseph Carliac could not be found. Kane and Johnston had nothing to say in regard to the matter. Ott stated that he was in the saloon, and that a quarrel over a test of strength between himself and Dulzeli ensued, and that Dulzeli wanted to fight, but he declined. Ott states that this is all he knows of the case. Stagawalt, when arrested, stated that he was in the saloon and saw William Johnston strike Dalzell, he thought in the face, with his fist, and man declaiming in mournful recitative the then follow Datzell out of the saloon. Dr. Marquis stated that about 9 o'clock yesterday he was called to Carline's saloon, and found Robert Dalzell lying unconscious. The only apparent injury on his person was a slight scratch on the left side of his head. Efforts were made to revive the man, but were unsuccessful, and he was removed to the house of Martin Cross, where Drs. Marquis and Griffen continued to work with the man, but to avail. A short time previous to his death he was seized with spasms and appeared to have difficulty in swallowing, which, in tion with a slight bruise on the man's

Mary Loud reported to the police yesterday that she had been robbed of $55, by Mag Money, alias Littlehill, who had fled to New Castle. Mrs. Loud is a cook and addicted to drink. She was sent to the workhouse for drunkenness over a year ago for 30 days. She proved to be a good cook, and Superintendent Warner gave her employment at $10 a month and board. She re mained there, saving her money, until about a week ago. She then came back to the city and went to living with Mrs. Littlehill, at No. 9 Fort street. One day last week Mrs. Littlehill and her husband were arrested for keeping a speak-easy.

Mrs. Loud paid their fines, amounting to over $50, and secured their release. She still had $55 left. On Saturday, she says, Littlehill and his wife skipped out, taking her money, some good clothes she had bought her earnings and a number of other articles belonging to her. The New Castle authorities have been notified.

But Annie Wagner is Keeping Up Her Record for Drunkenness. Annie Wagner, one of the regular characters about Central station, was brought in again yesterday for drunkenness. It was her first appearance since November 1, when she was sent to jail for ten days on a charge of disorderly conduct. One side of the woman's face was twisted, and Sergeant Grav asked her if she had been hit.

"Yes," she answered, "it's a stroke from God." An investigation showed that since her last arrest she has suffered a stroke of par-alysis. Her condition is such that she cannot last long and apparently she means to die as she has lived. She has been under arrest so often that the police have lost

THIRD VICTIM DEAD.

Mr. Hicks, Injured in the New Florence Wreck, Expired Yesterday.

IS THE OPERATOR RESPONSIBLE?

Contracts for 8,000 Tons of Steel Waiting for Somebody to Make. THE NECESSITY FOR MORE HOLIDAYS

C. C. Hicks, of Providence, R. I., who was injured in the Pennsylvania wreck at New Florence, died yesterday at the Johnstown hospital. He is the third victim of the fatal wreck, and was taken there after the catastrophe occurred. Mr. S. H. Angell, the husband of the lady who was killed outright, will be here to-day to take her remains to California for burial, A partial hearing for the purpose of placing the responsibility of the accident was held by Superintendent Pitcairn, on Saturday. No conclusion has been reached, and the investigation will be continued to-day. The operator at Nineveh claims that he put out the red signal, and Engineer McCor mick swears it was green, which means to go ahead, but run cautiously. The point to determine is which man is right.

Mr. McCormick, among his fellow railroad men bears the reputation of being one of the most careful engineers on the road. In-deed, a telegraph operator told a reporter that he used extraordinary care in running his engine. A number of train men who were talked to believe that what Mr. Mc-Cornick says is correct.

said last evening that according to the evidence the operator was to blame. It seems that after McCormick's train passed the Nineveh tower, an employe who was present asked the operator if the Western express had passed New Florence. He replied that it had not, and then his attention was called to the green light. He claimed it was red, and when he saw it was not it is said by the witness that he changed it. If Mr. Miller's statement of the testimony is correct, and he ought to know, then it would look as if the Nineveh operator had put out the wrong signal, and it was done by accident, but it was something that was never expected to

So far as could be learned last evening, the others injured in the wreck were doing well, and no further deaths are anticipated.

THE PECK-OVER BANK.

How a Cotemporary of Baring Bros. & Co. Obtained Its Title.

A gentleman who is interested in financial affairs was talking yesterday about the Baring Brothers' failure. In the course of his conversation, he said: "Baring Brothers' was one of the few English banks which stood the strain of the bursting of the South Sea bubble, in the latter part of the eighteenth century, when even the Bank of England was shaky. By the way, did you ever hear of the Peck-Over Bank? There is a peculiar story connected with the title of the institution. "The Peck-Over Bank, which at the time of the South Sea trouble had another name, was located on Lombard street, London. It was a conservative institution, as it is now, and when the bubble burst nobly withstood the run upon its resources. When every claimant had been paid in full, the cashier found he had a quantity of specie still on hand. He was an enterprising fel-low and saw a chance for an advertisement. He procured a peck measure, and filling it up with golden guineas, placed it in the window of the bank to notify passers by that that institution, at least, was all right.

"When the directors met the next morning they showed their appreciation of the cashier's idea by promptly changing the name of the bank to 'The Peck-Over Bank,' which title it bears to this day.

SIMPLY A FOOLISH MAIDEN.

How Some Theatrical Managers Had a Little Fun at Her Expense.

"Adonis" Dixey enjoys the reputation of being a masher and a 40-pound heart crusher. The last time he was in Pittsburg a blushing damsel became much enamored with his comely figure and rather good-looking face. She called at the Duquesne Hotel, and Dixey, to get rid of ber, gave her his autograph. The maiden was awfully flattered, and the next day at the matinee pre sented herself at the boxo ffice of the Grand Opera House, and gushingly exhibited the much-prized card with Dixey's name on it to the ticket seller. The latter recognized at once that she had the fever, and thought he would have some fun at her expense.

"And wouldn't you like to have my card, also?" he asked in his sweetest accents. "Oh, my," she replied, with a faint blush and a happy smile; "how you do flatter me. Indeed I should be glad to have it," and he gave her his autograph, at the same time winking to several theatrical managers who happened to be present.

"These men are distinguished," spoke up the ticket seller again. "I feel sure the lady would like to have your eards, too "Well, she can have mine," remarked Dixey's man; "and mine also," chimed in Annie Pixley's agent.

A boy was sent out to drum up all the people around the Opera House, and before the dear girl departed she had a collection of autographs from Dixey down to some of the supers and stage hands, and she was happy.

BURIED IN PERFUME.

Scented Flowers That Convey the Gratitud of Chinamen.

Passing throngs glanced curiously yesterday at a strange plant that sprang up in the windows of the Chinese laundries. People without poetry in their souls darkly hinted that the almond-eyed Mongolians were raising onions. The Mikado's subjects were innocent of the base charge. The essence of human emotions were clustered in the white and yellow petals of the flower.

The plant is called a Chinese lily, and Chinamen at this season of the year import them from their native land. They place it in a vessel filled with pebbles and water and the flower is in full bloom till Christmas, when it imparts a beautiful odor that fills a room with perfume. The grateful foreigners have presented their riends in this city with pretty specimens as a token of their grati-tude for kindness shown them.

HOLIDAYS AND THE MARKETS.

They Decrease the Production and Largely Increase the Consumption. Hon. A. C. Robertson was talking yester-

It is my belief that a holiday not only reduces production, but large increases consumption, and thus prevents a glut in the markets. In Europe the Governments look after this, and the people are consequently more contented and less eager in the race for wealth." Seal Jackets, Sacques and Wraps,

ANOTHER MYSTERY SOLVED.

The Body of the Man Found in a Tunne That of Patrick Gallagher.

The body of the man found dead in the Pittsburg, McKeesport and Youghiogheny tunnel on Saturday morning was identified last evening as that of Patrick Gallagher, 25 years old, employed at the Republic Iron Works, and who boarded on South Twenty-fourth street.

On Friday night the deceased, in company with John Brown and a man named Stewart, went to a ball. Between 12 and 1 o'clock Brown and Stewart were arrested for disorderly conduct, and the next morning Brown was discharged and Stewart sent to the workhouse. Neither of the men knew what had become of Gallagher. The identifica-tion was made by Gallagher's mother, who had been looking for him.

utions on the Death of Wm. Graham of Chartiers Township. At a meeting of the Chartiers Township School Board, held Friday evening, No-vember 14, 1890, the following minute on the death of Wm. Graham was unanimou y adopted: WHEREAS, God, who doeth all thing well, removed from this life, after a brief illness, on Tuesday evening, November 11, 1890, Wm. Graham, a member of the Char-tiers Township School Board; and Whereas, Remembering his interest in the cause of education, his fidelity to the teachers, his attention to all improvements for the better condition of the schools, and his sterling worth as a school director and citizen, we record this minute of his excellent qualifications and true manhood; therefore, Resolved. That it is only a just tribute to the memory of the deceased that we, his associate members, express a deep feeling of loss which we have sustained in losing one with whom we have been accustomed to counsel and advise.

Resolved. That our deepest sympathy is hereby extended to his family in their bereavement, and we commend them for con-solation to Him who doeth all things wisely and well. Resolved, That this tribute be spread on the records of the school board, published in the daily papers and a copy be properly engrossed and presented to the family.

⊎HANDKERCHIEFS

Thousands upon thousands of dozens beautiful new Handkerchiefs now on display. We will not have larger assortments or better styles between now and Christmas, which simply means that our complete Holiday stock is now on exhibition and ready for your inspection.

To accommodate the rapidly growing business, we to-day have doubled the Ladies' Handkerchief Department. The annex is on the same side of the main aisle, across the aisle entering into the Cloak Department. In fact, handkerchiefs have added the entire space previously occupied by the Ruchings and Ladies' Neckwear. These treme rear of the same room. In the Gentlemen's Handkerchiefs every facility possible is afforded for the display of goods, and particularly for prompt and satisfactory attention to customers. An important point to keep in mind is the fact that prices on Cor. Fifth Ave. & Market St. Handkerchiefs are as low, if not lower, than ever before. Many are
