A MODERN MURDERER

Not to be Compared With One Back in the Fifties, When Everybody Was Interested in His Fate.

JAMES MYERS BEFORE THE COURT,

Charged With the Assassination of His Aunt and Foster Mother, at McKeesport, Last May.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE STRONG,

But the Prisoner's Counsel Will Attempt to Get Him Out by the Alibi Route.

To one who can remember back into the early fifties, say back to the time David Jewell was convicted and hanged for a murder that to-day would scarce arise to the grade of first degree, having been committed in heat of blood, a modern murder trial presents a strong contrast. Then the community was stirred to its profoundest depth, and the matter was discussed on 'Change, in the corner groceries, at the market stalls, at the fireside, and ministers of the gospel seldom failed to find it a topic for impressive discourses.

But since "hanging is played out in Allegheny county," and murderer's row presses on the space intended for other criminals in the jail, public sense seems to have been in a great measure dulled. We haven't time to talk long over the latest sensation in this line.

There is a murder trial now in progress in Oyer and Terminer Court that 30 years ago would have drawn an immense audience, and it is more than usually impressive on account of the mystery surrounding it. But there being no seats furnished for the lobby in the small courtroom in which the prisoner is arraigned, the crowd is not so great as it otherwise would be.

MYERS ON TRIAL FOR HIS LIFE.

James Edward Myers, a splendid specimen of budding manhood physically, and apparently mentally above the average, is arraigned charged with the crime in its most heinous aspect, the victim being not only his aunt, but also his foster mother, and he the being on whom she had lavished a mother's love. Myers was faultlessly dressed in black, linen immaculately clean, collar and cuffs carefully arranged, and his general appearance, though interested, was one of rather negligent ease. The victim was Miss Margaret Douglass, a spinster of 65 years, sister of the prisoner's mother and joint heir with him of the property both occupied in the suburbs of McKeesport, it having been left to the sisters by their father.

On the 15th of last May, about 1:30 o'clock P. M., Myers, the prisoner, reported that he had found his aunt lying dead in the yard of the residence, stating also that the doctor had said she had heart trouble and expressing the opinion that beyond doubt she had died of heart disease. After she had been carried into the house a physician discovered that she had been shot in the back, the ball lodging in the stomach.

ALWAYS ASSERTS HIS INNOCENCE.

As the neighbors did not recollect of having seen any one about the house near the time of the murder, save Myers, and as he and his aunt had quarreled frequently on account of his alleged wild habits and extravagance, suspicion attached to him, and he was arrested. His apparent callous indifference regarding the loss of one who had been a mother to him strengthened the suspicion. Since the time of the murder he has been very reticent, but very emphatic in his denial of guilt.

When arraigned and called to plead, Myers stood up unmoved, and the neatness of his appearance, his delicate mustache of jet black, hair carefully trimmed, ear of aristocratic mold, together with his dreadful position and unmoved appearance, combined to make him an object of close scrutiny.

When the question, "What say you, are you guilty or not guilty?" was put, the prisoner replied in the usual formula without any prompting, and as his plea was not guilty, the impaneling of a jury was begun.

A jury was not secured until after 1 o'clock. It looks like a good one, and among its members are teamsters, grocers, a banker and several other occupations represented.

District Attorney Johnston and Captain E. Y. Breck represented the Commonwealth, and John S. Robb the prisoner. Captain Breck summarized all the facts known in the case, and said the Commonwealth would ask for a verdict of murder in the first degree.

While at present there appears to be nothing but circumstantial evidence against Myers, it is thought to be so strong and connected as to show that no other could have committed the crime. The defense places reliance on the hope of proving an alibi.

HER SECOND TRIAL.

Mrs. Louisa Engleman Convicted of Illegal Liquor Selling.

In Judge Magee's branch of the Criminal Court yesterday Mrs. Louisa Engleman was tried for the second time on the charge of selling liquor without a license. She was represented by Thomas M. Marshall, Samuel Ammon and Messrs. Kennedy & Smith, while the prosecution was conducted by R. S. Martin. Her counsel first filed a plea holding that she was twice being placed in jeopardy of her liberty, and they had no right to try her the second time. Judge White's course was excepted to, and it was claimed that he had no right to discharge the jury upon learning that they intended to acquit the prisoner. Judge Magee overruled the plea, and the trial went on.

The four lawyers worked hard for their client, but the jury, after being out but a few minutes, returned a verdict of guilty, and recommended the prisoner to the extreme mercy of the Court.

ALLEGED INFRINGEMENT

On the Patent of a Reversing Gear for Steam Engines.

A bill in equity was filed in the United States Circuit Court yesterday by Clarence G. Harmon, C. G. Harmon and L. L. Bliss against Thomas Struthers, A. H. McKelvey, and J. P. Jefferson, doing business as Struthers, Wells & Co., at Warren. The plaintiffs are manufacturers at Corry. They make a patent reversing gear for steam engines and allege the defendants are turning out a like article that is an infringement on their patent.

In a similar suit brought by the plaintiffs against the defendants in the same court an injunction was issued restraining the defendants from the further manufacture of the patent. The plaintiffs aver that this order of the court has been disregarded.

HENRY GOTTSCHALK'S MONUMENT

Objected to by His Daughter-in-Law on Account of the Price.

A hearing was had before Judge Over, of the Orphan's Court, yesterday, on the matter of the exceptions to the account of the executor of Henry Gottschalk. The exceptions were filed by Mrs. John Gottschalk, the widow of one of the sons and heirs of the deceased. The heirs of the estate were the four sons of Mr. Gottschalk. One of them, George Gottschalk, was the executor, and John Gottschalk was the husband of the exceptant. The exceptions were as to the sale of a piece of property in Allegheny, claimed to be worth $14,000, to the executor for $8,000; and to the price paid for a monument for the deceased parents of the four brothers. The price paid was $600, which, it was claimed, was excessive. At the hearing yesterday the testimony showed the property sold to have been worth from $10,000 to $12,000.

The defense made by the executor was that the sale of and price for the property and the erection of the monument had been agreed upon by the four brothers long before the marriage of the one brother to the exceptant, and the executor had merely carried out the agreement. A decision was reserved.

EVER AT THE HEAD.

Drs. Copeland and Blair Still Retain Their Enviable Reputation as the Most Successful Specialists in Their Line.

THE SOUTHSIDE AGAIN.

Mr. John T. Good, who lives at No. 129 Nineteenth street, Southside, is a window glass blower, employed in the Cunningham Window Glass Co., Limited, on Twenty-third street. In a recent interview with the writer Mr. Good told the following story of his own experience:

"For about four years," says Mr. Good, "ever since I recovered from an attack of diphtheria, I had suffered almost constantly from catarrh. My head and nose would stop up. I had a continuous dull pain over my eyes and a rumbling, roaring noise in my ears. My eyes were weak and watery. I could feel the mucous dropping back into my throat and was always hawking and raising to clear it. My throat would fill up at night and I would wake up gasping for breath, as if I were choking to death. My throat was raw and inflamed.

Mr. John T. Good, 129 Nineteenth Street, Southside, Pittsburg, Pa.

"As my trouble grew worse, sharp pains like the stab of a knife would take me in the chest. Palpitation of the heart set in. My appetite failed. The little I ate caused me distress and nausea at my stomach. My nights were restless. I would get up in the morning more tired than when I went to bed. A short time ago, after reading so much of Drs. Copeland & Blair and their wonderful success in cases similar to mine, I called on them, and finding their charges so very low I decided to begin their treatment at once.

"I never made a better resolution," concluded Mr. Good, "for they have really done wonders for me. My symptoms all rapidly disappeared, and to-day I am like a different man entirely."

Drs. Copeland & Blair have their own laboratory and their own pharmacist, whose whole time is devoted to preparing the medicines for their many patients. Every prescription is compounded under the direct supervision of the doctors themselves, which accounts to a certain extent for the invariable positive results of their treatment. To each and every patient under their care Drs. Copeland & Blair furnish all medicines free of charge.

Drs. Copeland & Blair are responsible to you for what they represent, and are at all times prepared to uphold their every assertion. They court honest, sincere investigation, have no secrets and are only too glad to show all interested and candid people what they are doing for suffering humanity.
